Costello Again Refuses To Tell Crime Probers How Much He Is Worth

O'Dwyer Tells Committee Racketeer Sinister Influence On Tammany Hall

NEW YORK, March 20 (AP)—Racketeer Frank Costello, stubborn from first to last, refused again today to tell Senate crime probers how much money he's worth.

He first balked at the question last Tuesday, the first day he was a witness before the all-star open hearings of the Senate Crime Investigating Committee.

And today—the next to last day—he refused again in just about the same hoarse manner, saying:

"I refuse to answer on constitutional grounds."

His attorney was allowed to argue in a written brief due by Monday that Costello has the right to refuse. If the argument fails, the big-time racketeer faces a contempt citation by the Senate.

Costello came back to the hearing after the committee spent most of the day listening to William O'Dwyer, former mayor or New York. O'Dwyer admitted knowing Costello whom he called a sinister influence on Tammany Hall.

O'Dwyer Met Adonis

O'Dwyer, in his testimony, added Racketeeer Joe Adonis to his list of acquaintances around town, but said they met casually only once.

Costello seemed more relaxed as he went before the committee for the sixth day in a row.

His seemingly naive answers to some questions convulsed the packed hearing room more than once.

Enlarging on his influence in Tammany Hall Costello conceded he knew 14 Tammany leaders. The Democratic Manhattan organization is made up of 42 district leaders, plus 42 co-leaders.

Costello testified yesterday he pulled strings back in 1942 to make Michael Kennedy leader of Tammany. Kennedy died in a plane crash in 1949.

On the witness stand only briefly, Costello was directed to return tomorrow for the grand finale of the colorful hearing.

The committee must wind up its work before its life expires at the end of the month. But Sen. O'Conor (D-Md), said he will talk with other senators about extending the committee's life.

Impellitteri Mentioned

Costello took the witness chair after State Industrial Commissioner Edward Corsi brought Mayor Vincent Impellitteri's name into the record for the first time.

Corsi testified he heard from "reliable sources" that Impellitteri accepted political backing from Underworld Character Thomas (Three Finger Brown) Luchese.

Impellitteri won election as mayor last fall as an independent Democrat. Corsi was the defeated Republican candidate.

The fiery Sen. Tobey (R-N.H.), quieter than usual most of the seventh day of the open hearings suddenly exploded in mid-afternoon with a theory that police murdered a key witness against the old Murder, Inc., gang.

Tobey pecked away all day long at the mystery death a decade ago of Abe (Kid Twist) Reles.

Witness Plunged To Death

Reles plunged to his death from a hotel while six guards were holding him as a material witness for O'Dwyer, then district attorney of Brooklyn. Police said Reles fell trying to escape.

With Reles dead, the chief suspect in the case, Albert Anastasia escaped prosecution.

O'Dwyer had finished his testimony and was about to leave the witness chair when Tobey threw his question.

"Why did the men (guards) in the room throw Reles out the window when you needed another man to back up his testimony?"

Replied O'Dwyer in a seemingly shocked manner:

"Did you say the six men in the room threw him out the window?"

"Yes, that's my theory," said

RFC Director's Secretary Tells Of Letter Incident

Justice Dept. Checks Tax Evasion Angle

WASHINGTON, March 20 (AP) — Mrs. Florence M. Smoot, secretary to RFC Director Walter L. Dunham, has testified that at a time when her employer was out of the city another RFC director urged her to rush Dunham's resignation to the White House.

Mrs. Smoot said the other director was C. Edward Rowe. She said Rowe wanted her to rewrite the first page of a previously prepared letter of resignation, and then hustle it over to Presidential Assistant Donald Dawson.

Dunham has testified the move to get him to resign was an attempt to make him the "goat" in the congressional investigation of RFC. Rowe denied this.

Dunham "Approved" Changes

Rowe testified that it was true he had suggested changes in Dunham's letter. But, he said, it all was done with Dunham's approval. Rowe denied he had urged immediate delivery of the resignation, which Dunham had prepared in case President Truman wanted it.

Mrs. Smoot said the letter was not delivered to the White House. She said that after Rowe urged her to deliver it, she called up Dunham, who was in Florida, and he got "very angry" and told her not to let the letter go.

The testimony was given yesterday behind closed doors, and was made public today by a Senate Banking subcommittee.

The subcommittee has been investigating the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, a government agency which lends billions of dollars. Some of the RFC directors are accused of "favoritism" and yielding to political influence.

Justice Dept. Enters Probe

In addition to the testimony, there were these developments:

1. The Justice Department began looking into possible tax evasions in connection with a grand jury investigation of RFC operations. Edward W. Molenoff of the department's tax division sat in today on the grand jury hearing.

2. Sen. Dworshak (R-Idaho) called for the outright liquidation of RFC. He told a reporter it had outlived its usefulness. Dworshak called the RFC "a political auxiliary for the Truman administration."

3. The chief of the subcommittee's investigating staff, Theodore Herz, said that E. Merl Young, husband of a White House stenographer, and William M. Boyle, Jr., Democratic national chairman, own stock in a company in which Herz also is a stockholder.

U. N. Will Meet In Paris In Fall

LAKE SUCCESS, March 20 (AP)—The United Nations General Assembly voted 24 to 17 tonight to hold its 1951 session in Paris. Twelve countries abstained on the vote and seven were absent.

The session will be held beginning Nov. 6, delayed six weeks from its normal opening date in September to allow the French government to erect new buildings to house the Assembly.

The Assembly also approved — over U. S., Philippine, Iraq and Pakistan objections—spending $2,350,000 and possibly more if the expenses mount, to pay for the extra cost of taking the Assembly to Europe. This is up $600,000 over a sum originally approved last December.

Russia and Britain voted with France and the Latin American nations to put the move over.

Adolfo Costa Du Rels, Bolivian delegate who led the fight for the move, pleaded with the Assembly to meet in Paris "because Europe is a sick continent and this organization for peace should go to sit at its bedside."

American Couple And Australian Executed By Huks

Trussed-Up Bodies Found Near Manila

MANILA, March 20 (AP) — An American couple and their Australian farm manager were found shot dead today with hands tied behind them at their dairy 15 miles east of Manila.

U. S. Ambassador Myron Cowen said the triple killing last midnight was "an indication that the Communist Hukbalahaps have embarked on a deliberate policy of slaying Americans."

He expressed a belief that the Huks are making reprisals for U. S. arms aid to the Philippines government.

Army officers said the three were executed by a band of Huks.

The Huks, military arm of the Philippines Communist Party, have been making hit-and-run terror raids off and on since the end of World War II. The Philippines armed forces have been stepping up operations against the guerrilla forces, originally organized to combat the wartime occupation of the Japanese.

The victims were John Hardie, 53; his wife, Marie Wilkins Hardie, 42, and 25-year-old Donald Capuano, an Australian national.

Their trussed-up bodies were found in a yard of the hacienda when an Army patrol investigated sounds of shooting.

Ambassador Cowen took up with the Philippines government immediately the question of protecting American citizens.

A conference of leading American residents at the U. S. Embassy raised the question of whether it might be necessary to evacuate American families. No decision was reached.

Ambassador Cowen said the Hardie farm executions and the slaying of three American members of a U. S. topographical survey party in Quezon Province Jan. 28 raised the question of "whether the Communists think they are sufficiently strong to begin a deliberate policy of murdering Americans."

Filipino employes at the Hardie dairy told police more than 50 armed Huks quietly entered the hacienda early last night and put guards over the Hardies and Capuano in the house and the employes in the yard.

After looting the house of food and other supplies, they said, the main body of Huks left about 10:30 p. m. Ten Huks left behind then told the three through a farm-hand translator they were to be executed.

"This must be a joke," Hardie is reported to have said.

There was no reply from the execution squad leader.

Mrs. Hardie pleaded with them to state a reason for execution. She got no reply, and the leader had the three mowed down by five men shooting automatic weapons.

Government Lists Alleged Top Underworld Figures

WASHINGTON, March 20 (AP) — The government's secret list of "allegedly prominent underworld figures" was made public tonight in connection with a new congressional probe of racketeers' tax returns.

Chairman King (D-Calif) of a special House Ways and Means subcommittee released the list of 126 names prepared by the Internal Revenue Bureau.

David A. Bolich, assistant revenue commissioner, had told another House committee only a few days ago that the Bureau of Internal Revenue is using the list to investigate tax payments of gamblers and gangsters.

The tax returns of individuals appearing on the list, Bolich said, all come in for especially close scrutiny. He said the bureau takes "nothing for granted" and goes behind the books and records of these people.

The list made public by the committee was sprinkled with names of prominent figures and such aliases as Jimmie Blue Eyes, Fat Joe, Trigger Mike, Cherry Nose, Greasy Thumb, Tootsie, The Camel, Socks, Johnny Bath Beach, Charlie the Blade, and Golfbag Hunt.

Among them were the names of Joe Adonis, Samuel R. Beard, Ralph Capone, Anthony Carfano, Mickey Cohen, Louis Compangna, Frank Costello, Philip D'Andrea, Paul Delucia, Frank Diamond, Rocco Fischetti, Vito Genovese, Charles Gioe, Irving Wexler alias Waxey Gordon, and William Lias.

Taft Sees 15 U. S. Divisions Asked For 'Ike'

Says Administration Won't Hold To Six

WASHINGTON, March 20 (AP) — Sen. Taft (R-Ohio) said today the United States may be asked to contribute 15 divisions to the defense of Western Europe before the end of 1952.

The Republican leader told the Senate the Truman administration has "no intention" of holding the American contribution to six divisions, as outlined recently by defense chiefs.

Entering the heated debate on the Senate's troops-for-Europe resolutions, Taft called for "strictly limited" reinforcement of the international army being raised under Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

One-To-Three Ratio

He said he had arrived at the 15 division figure after consultation with a "high authority," whom he did not name. This authority, Taft reported, said there was discussion of furnishing one American division for every three put up by Western European countries.

On the basis of an eventual force of 60 divisions, he said, this would mean that 15 American divisions would be sent across the Atlantic.

Administration leaders sacrificed the Senate's 10-day Easter recess today in order to press on toward a vote on the troops-for-Europe issue. The question has been debated for three days.

When Sen. McFarland of Arizona, the Democratic floor leader, was unable to get an agreement to vote on Thursday he ruled out the long recess. McFarland said the Senate would recess for Good Friday and Saturday of this week and might also be away next Monday.

Aiken Challenges Theory

Sen. Aiken (R-Vt) challenged Taft's theory that more troops would be called for, asking him where he got the idea.

Taft responded that administration leaders had "bitterly resisted any limitation on their power to send troops, and it is only reasonable to think that they intend to do it."

Taft said that a better man than Eisenhower could not be found to head the Western European forces, "but the mere fact that he is there means that we are going to be called upon constantly to furnish more and more troops."

"Monty" Named "Ike's" Deputy

PARIS, March 20 (AP) — Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower chose British Field Marshal Lord Montgomery as deputy commander of his Atlantic pact army today and completed the high command with the appointment of eight other officers to staff jobs.

Montgomery won fame with his victories over the Germans in the North African desert and served under Eisenhower as commander of British ground forces in Europe in World War II. He is 63.

The appointments nearly wind up the planning stages for an international force of perhaps 3,000,000 men to defend free Europe against Communist aggression.

The force still hasn't many soldiers, airmen or sailors — or guns, planes and ships. These, however, are to be supplied as swiftly as possible by the 12 Atlantic pact nations supporting Eisenhower's Supreme Headquarters, Allied Powers in Europe.

Eisenhower picked another Briton for his deputy commander for air. He is Air Chief Marshal Sir Hugh Saunders, 57, a veteran of air warfare in the Far East.

Nagasaki-Type A-Bomb Data Obtained By Spy

NEW YORK, March 20 (AP) — The atom bomb sketch which Confessed Spy David Greenglass says he gave his brother-in-law for relay to Russia was identified today as a drawing of the bomb dropped at Nagasaki.

The brother-in-law, Julius Rosenberg, his wife, Ethel, and Morton Sobell, a radar expert, are on trial in Federal Court, charged with conspiring to spy for Russia during wartime. Mrs. Rosenberg is Greenglass' sister.

If convicted all three face a possible death penalty.

The sketch and othe data which Greenglass has testified he gave to Rosenberg were identified by John A. Derry, special assistant to the director of production of the Atomic Energy Commission.

Tandem-Rotor Helicopter Demonstrated

A new tandem-rotor, two-place helicopter designed for such jobs as crop dusting, pipe line patrol and forest fire spotting, is demonstrated for the first time at Los Angeles. The craft can climb 1,520 feet per minute or travel horizontally at 100 miles per hour, according to its builders.

Labor Attacks On Mobilization Setup Renewed

New Deal Demanded At Pair Of Rallies

WASHINGTON, March 20 (AP) — Leaders of most of the nation's labor unions heaped new criticism on the mobilization program today, said it was "going on the rocks" and called for a new deal.

Local and statewide leaders of the AFL, CIO, machinists, and non-operating railroad unions met at two separate rallies at which the wage stabilization program and many other phases of the government's planning were assailed.

The meetings were called by the United Labor Policy Committee, composed of leaders of about 15,000,000 organized workers in nearly all unions except John L. Lewis' miners and the operating railroad brotherhoods.

The ULPC recently ordered the withdrawal of all labor members from mobilization agencies, including the Wage Stabilization Board, in a move to emphasize displeasure with what it called "big business" control of defense policy.

"We are convinced the program is going on the rocks—that it cannot mobilize this country to do the task this country faces," Al J. Hayes, head of the machinists, said in speech.

"We withdrew from it because the people were being misled into thinking it was just and equitable."

George M. Harrison, head of the railway clerks and an AFL vice president, said he regarded the program as "hopeless."

Harrison said the mobilization program might have to continue for 20 years, and in that time under present policies he said, workers "will certainly be a regimented bunch of serfs."

Mobilization Director Charles E. Wilson, chief target of the labor attacks, was described as an agent of big business who regards labor "as a commodity."

George Meany, AFL secretary-treasurer, said the order setting up Wilson's office made the former General Electric Corporation chief "more powerful than the President."

Economic Stabilizer Confers With Truman

KEY WEST, Fla., March 20 (AP) — President Truman today directed Economic Stabilizer Eric Johnston to redouble his efforts to find a formula for ending the administration's troubles with labor.

Johnston flew back to Washington immediately after the conference, in which Charles S. Murphy, special counsel to the President, and his chief White House spokesman in negotiations with union leaders, participated.

Student Pilot Killed In Crash Near Elkton

ELKTON, Md., March 20 (AP)—Joseph Lorin Mastin, Wilmington, Del., 37-year-old student pilot, was killed in a plane crash near here this evening.

Mastin was soloing a light plane crashed into a farm fence and was demolished.

13-Year-Old Boy, High Jump Champ, Leaps For His Life

OWENSBORO, Ky., March 20 (AP) —Bobby Cravens, 13-year-old holder of a junior high school high-jumping record, did a jump yesterday that may have saved his life.

Bobby, while engaged in a snowball fight, darted into the path of a police cruiser.

Bobby jumped.

The leap carried him onto the auto hood and against the windshield.

Defense Officials Rapped For Loan

WASHINGTON, March 20 (AP) — Key defense officials went on the griddle today about an alleged "can't lose" venture in which three men put up $600 to get a $7,800,000 government loan on a defense plant.

Chairman Hardy (D-Va) of a House investigating committee roundly criticized the federal officials for approving the loan.

The Virginia legislator discounted a rider which provided that the trio must raise $1,000,000 in private capital before the loan finally becomes effective.

If all goes well, Hardy said, the three men will become "multi-millionaires" in a few years.

In Hazleton, Pa., one of the principals in the loan application, Benjamin S. Dowd, said $1,000,000 in cash is available for completing the loan requirements. He said he and his two associates, Martin C. Charles and James H. Hopkins, have already spent $250,000 in developing the proposed steel plant and said it will be in production by Dec. 1.

"If you were to start from scratch today, it would take at least two and one-half years to three years to finish such a plant," Dowd said.

The House committee's disclosure came while senators were pressing their investigation into charges of "influence peddling" in the granting of huge federal loans by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Butler Backers Brand Printer's Ride Story "Lie"

Cries Of "Perjury" Mark Election Probe

WASHINGTON, March 20 (AP)—Witnesses who opposed the reelection of Sen. Tydings (D-Md.) last fall unfolded their story to Senate investigators today, punctuating it with cries of "perjury" and an attack on what they called Tydings' "wounded ego."

Ewell G. Moore, Jr., denied to a Senate Elections Sumcommittee the story of the "midnight ride" previously related by William H. Fedder, Baltimore printer who did some work for Tydings' successful opponent, Sen. Butler (R-Md.)

Perjury Trial Demanded

Moore testified under oath before a packed hearing room that Fedder "lied" when he said he had been taken for a ride and threatened by members of the staff of Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.). Moore asked the committee to recommend to the Department of Justice that Fedder be prosecuted for perjury.

Moore, a 28-year-old Arlington, Va., lawyer who was a part-time worker for McCarthy during the last campaign, also asked that Tydings and Louis Fried, a committee investigator previously identified as conducting a business near Fedder's in Baltimore, be "investigated for subornation."

(Subornation means inducing someone else to lie).

Commentator Testifies

Moore testified Fried helped Fedder prepare his story and Tydings "put Fedder forward as his witness and adopted part of his testimony as his own."

Donald A. Suvine, another McCarthy employe, also testified that "Fedder lies to this committee when he charges he was threatened or 'taken for a ride.'"

Fulton Lewis, Jr., radio commentator, read a 26-page statement accusing Tydings of making statements to the committee "based on unsubstantiated hearsay, wounded ego, and an irresponsible disregard of fact."

Allies Only 8 1-2 Miles From 38th

Ban On Mention Of Line Lifted

TOKYO, Wednesday, March 21. (AP)—Allied troops pushed today to within eight and one-half miles of Korea's 38th parallel.

South Korean troops reached that close to the artificial boundary between North and South Korea along the east coast above Kangnung.

In West-Central Korea, U. S. Eighth Army troops drove within 11½ miles of the parallel near Hangye.

That road town is 15 miles southeast of Chunchon, the last big enemy base below the 38th. But there was no evidence the retreating Reds would fight for Chunchon. Today Eighth Army forces were five miles south of it in considerable strength.

Chunchon is eight miles from the 38th parallel.

Allied forces were less than 15 miles from the boundary at several other points.

Tuesday night a ban was clamped on any mention of the 38th parallel. Today the ban was lifted.

There was no immediate explanation as to whether the brief ban was linked with military operations or with political implications.

The Allied advance was general all across Korea against Reds showing only rear guard resistance.

Elements of China's Third Field Army were identified in the front line as a screening force for the withdrawal.

Red Patrol, Yanks Clash

Early today a Chinese Red patrol clashed briefly with U. S. troops northeast of Seoul and then withdrew. Elsewhere across the western front, U. S. and South Korean patrols probed north of the Han River without contacting the foe.

In the same area, the Allied troops underwent heavy Red artillery, mortar and small arms fire Tuesday.

The Eighth Army said today that the 26th Chinese Army Corps of the Third Field Army now is on the front line. The corps holds positions north of Allied-won Chungpyong reservoir, some 20 to 30 miles northeast of Seoul.

A field dispatch said this corps was screening the withdrawal of the 50th Army Corps and part of the 38th Army Corps, both of the Chinese Red Fourth Field Army. The Third Field Army has been in reserve in Northeast Korea since the U. S. 10th Corps boarded ships and pulled out of Hungnam last December.

Resistance Stiff In Center

AP Correspondent Jim Becker reported that Chinese Reds manned defense positions in Western Korea to the east of the Seoul-Uijongbu corridor. North Koreans were west of it to the Yellow Sea. Uijongbu is 12 miles north of Seoul.

Rear guard Reds fought bitterly northeast of Hongchon, abandoned Red bastion 55 miles east of Seoul.

New Atom Tests Held In Pacific

WASHINGTON, March 20 (AP) — A new series of atomic bomb blasts is under way at the Eniwetok proving grounds in the Pacific, the Atomic Energy Commission hinted today.

It referred to a "test" program of a "major" character and said one aim is to gather information which will help architects design buildings to stand up better under atomic blasts.

The project at the remote Pacific atoll has been nicknamed "Operation Greenhouse."

The commission gave no hint as to what type, or types, of atomic weapons were involved.

Presumably, they would be models substantially improved compared with those tested in the first series of Eniwetok trials in the spring of 1948. The three bombs tested then were described as "improved" over their predecessors. Presumably, too, the tests would involve something different from the weapons tested recently at Las Vegas, Nevada — that is, different in explosive capabilities, or in proposed use.

It is even conceivable that a trial explosion of the proposed hydrogen bomb might be attempted, just to see what headway has been made on the full-scale studies which have been underway for more than a year now.

Plan To Realign Assembly Seats Proposed In Senate

ANNAPOLIS, Md., March 20 (AP)—A realignment of legislative seats which would give Baltimore seven districts and parcel out the rest on a population basis was proposed in the Senate today.

Sen. Preston (D-Balto. 5th) submitted a constitutional amendment which would increase the members of the House of Delegates to 134 and the Senate to 30 members. It was the latest of the many plans offered in recent years. None has ever received Assembly approval.

If approved, the plan would be submitted in the 1952 election. Preston's bill would work this way:

Baltimore City would have seven legislative districts instead of six as at present, with six delegates and one senator from each.

Each county would still have a senator.

Counties of 25,000 or less population would have two delegates; over 25,000 and 40,000, three delegates; over 40,000 and to 60,000, four delegates; over 60,000 and to 80,000, five delegates; over 80,000 and to 100,000, six delegates; over 100,000 seven and no more.

Under Preston's bill, the lineup would be as follows:

Two delegates—Calvert, Caroline, Charles, Howard, Kent, Queen Anne's.

Three delegates—Cecil, Dorchester, St. Mary's Garrett, Talbot, Somerset, Worsester.

Four delegates—Carroll, Harford, Wicomico.

Six delegates—Allegany, Frederick, Washington.

Seven delegates — Anne Arundel, Baltimore, Montgomery, Prince Georges.

He expressed a belief that the Huks are making reprisals for U. S. arms aid to the Philippines government.

Army officers said the three were executed by a band of Huks.

The Huks, military arm of the Philippines Communist Party, have been making hit-and-run terror raids off and on since the end of World War II. The Philippines armed forces have been stepping up operations against the guerrilla forces, originally organized to combat the wartime occupation of the Japanese.

The victims were John Hardie, 53; his wife, Marie Wilkins Hardie, 42, and 25-year-old Donald Capuano, an Australian national.

Their trussed-up bodies were found in a yard of the hacienda when an Army patrol investigated sounds of shooting.

Ambassador Cowen took up with the Philippines government immediately the question of protecting American citizens.

A conference of leading American residents at the U. S. Embassy raised the question of whether it might be necessary to evacuate American families. No decision was reached.

Ambassador Cowen said the Hardie farm executions and the slaying of three American members of a U. S. topographical survey party in Quezon Province Jan. 28 raised the question of "whether the Communists think they are sufficiently strong to begin a deliberate policy of murdering Americans."

Filipino employes at the Hardie dairy told police more than 50 armed Huks quietly entered the hacienda early last night and put guards over the Hardies and Capuano in the house and the employes in the yard.

After looting the house of food and other supplies, they said, the main body of Huks left about 10:30 p. m. Ten Huks left behind then told the three through a farm-hand translator they were to be executed.

"This must be a joke," Hardie is reported to have said.

There was no reply from the execution squad leader.

Mrs. Hardie pleaded with them to state a reason for execution. She got no reply, and the leader had the three mowed down by five men shooting automatic weapons.

Government Lists Alleged Top Underworld Figures

WASHINGTON, March 20 (AP) — The government's secret list of "allegedly prominent underworld figures" was made public tonight in connection with a new congressional probe of racketeers' tax returns.

Chairman King (D-Calif) of a special House Ways and Means subcommittee released the list of 126 names prepared by the Internal Revenue Bureau.

David A. Bolich, assistant revenue commissioner, had told another House committee only a few days ago that the Bureau of Internal Revenue is using the list to investigate tax payments of gamblers and gangsters.

The tax returns of individuals appearing on the list, Bolich said, all come in for especially close scrutiny. He said the bureau takes "nothing for granted" and goes behind the books and records of these people.

The list made public by the committee was sprinkled with names of prominent figures and such aliases as Jimmie Blue Eyes, Fat Joe, Trigger Mike, Cherry Nose, Greasy Thumb, Tootsie, The Camel, Socks, Johnny Bath Beach, Charlie the Blade, and Golfbag Hunt.

Among them were the names of Joe Adonis, Samuel R. Beard, Ralph Capone, Anthony Carfano, Mickey Cohen, Louis Compangna, Frank Costello, Philip D'Andrea, Paul Delucia, Frank Diamond, Rocco Fischetti, Vito Genovese, Charles Gioe, Irving Wexler alias Waxey Gordon, and William Lias.

Taft Sees 15 U. S. Divisions Asked For 'Ike'

Says Administration Won't Hold To Six

WASHINGTON, March 20 (AP) — Sen. Taft (R-Ohio) said today the United States may be asked to contribute 15 divisions to the defense of Western Europe before the end of 1952.

The Republican leader told the Senate the Truman administration has "no intention" of holding the American contribution to six divisions, as outlined recently by defense chiefs.

Entering the heated debate on the Senate's troops-for-Europe resolutions, Taft called for "strictly limited" reinforcement of the international army being raised under Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

One-To-Three Ratio

He said he had arrived at the 15 division figure after consultation with a "high authority," whom he did not name. This authority, Taft reported, said there was discussion of furnishing one American division for every three put up by Western European countries.

On the basis of an eventual force of 60 divisions, he said, this would mean that 15 American divisions would be sent across the Atlantic.

Administration leaders sacrificed the Senate's 10-day Easter recess today in order to press on toward a vote on the troops-for-Europe issue. The question has been debated for three days.

When Sen. McFarland of Arizona, the Democratic floor leader, was unable to get an agreement to vote on Thursday he ruled out the long recess. McFarland said the Senate would recess for Good Friday and Saturday of this week and might also be away next Monday.

Aiken Challenges Theory

Sen. Aiken (R-Vt) challenged Taft's theory that more troops would be called for, asking him where he got the idea.

Taft responded that administration leaders had "bitterly resisted any limitation on their power to send troops, and it is only reasonable to think that they intend to do it."

Taft said that a better man than Eisenhower could not be found to head the Western European forces, "but the mere fact that he is there means that we are going to be called upon constantly to furnish more and more troops."

"Monty" Named "Ike's" Deputy

PARIS, March 20 (AP) — Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower chose British Field Marshal Lord Montgomery as deputy commander of his Atlantic pact army today and completed the high command with the appointment of eight other officers to staff jobs.

Montgomery won fame with his victories over the Germans in the North African desert and served under Eisenhower as commander of British ground forces in Europe in World War II. He is 63.

The appointments nearly wind up the planning stages for an international force of perhaps 3,000,000 men to defend free Europe against Communist aggression.

The force still hasn't many soldiers, airmen or sailors — or guns, planes and ships. These, however, are to be supplied as swiftly as possible by the 12 Atlantic pact nations supporting Eisenhower's Supreme Headquarters, Allied Powers in Europe.

Eisenhower picked another Briton for his deputy commander for air. He is Air Chief Marshal Sir Hugh Saunders, 57, a veteran of air warfare in the Far East.

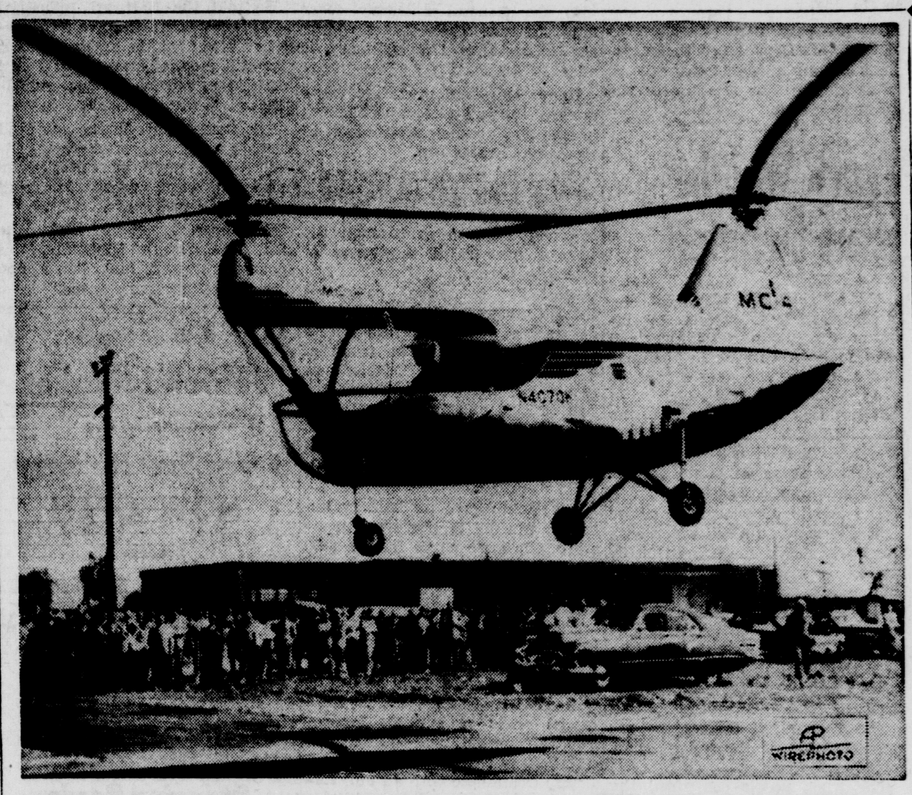
Nagasaki-Type A-Bomb Data Obtained By Spy

NEW YORK, March 20 (AP) — The atom bomb sketch which Confessed Spy David Greenglass says he gave his brother-in-law for relay to Russia was identified today as a drawing of the bomb dropped at Nagasaki.

The brother-in-law, Julius Rosenberg, his wife, Ethel, and Morton Sobell, a radar expert, are on trial in Federal Court, charged with conspiring to spy for Russia during wartime. Mrs. Rosenberg is Greenglass' sister.

If convicted all three face a possible death penalty.

The sketch and othe data which Greenglass has testified he gave to Rosenberg were identified by John A. Derry, special assistant to the director of production of the Atomic Energy Commission.



Tandem-Rotor Helicopter Demonstrated

A new tandem-rotor, two-place helicopter designed for such jobs as crop dusting, pipe line patrol and forest fire spotting, is demonstrated for the first time at Los Angeles. The craft can climb 1,520 feet per minute or travel horizontally at 100 miles per hour, according to its builders.

Labor Attacks On Mobilization Setup Renewed

New Deal Demanded At Pair Of Rallies

WASHINGTON, March 20 (AP) — Leaders of most of the nation's labor unions heaped new criticism on the mobilization program today, said it was "going on the rocks" and called for a new deal.

Local and statewide leaders of the AFL, CIO, machinists, and non-operating railroad unions met at two separate rallies at which the wage stabilization program and many other phases of the government's planning were assailed.

The meetings were called by the United Labor Policy Committee, composed of leaders of about 15,000,000 organized workers in nearly all unions except John L. Lewis' miners and the operating railroad brotherhoods.

The ULPC recently ordered the withdrawal of all labor members from mobilization agencies, including the Wage Stabilization Board, in a move to emphasize displeasure with what it called "big business" control of defense policy.

"We are convinced the program is going on the rocks—that it cannot mobilize this country to do the task this country faces," Al J. Hayes, head of the machinists, said in speech.

"We withdrew from it because the people were being misled into thinking it was just and equitable."

George M. Harrison, head of the railway clerks and an AFL vice president, said he regarded the program as "hopeless."

Harrison said the mobilization program might have to continue for 20 years, and in that time under present policies he said, workers "will certainly be a regimented bunch of serfs."

Mobilization Director Charles E. Wilson, chief target of the labor attacks, was described as an agent of big business who regards labor "as a commodity."

George Meany, AFL secretary-treasurer, said the order setting up Wilson's office made the former General Electric Corporation chief "more powerful than the President."

Economic Stabilizer Confers With Truman

KEY WEST, Fla., March 20 (AP) — President Truman today directed Economic Stabilizer Eric Johnston to redouble his efforts to find a formula for ending the administration's troubles with labor.

Johnston flew back to Washington immediately after the conference, in which Charles S. Murphy, special counsel to the President, and his chief White House spokesman in negotiations with union leaders, participated.

Student Pilot Killed In Crash Near Elkton

ELKTON, Md., March 20 (AP)—Joseph Lorin Mastin, Wilmington, Del., 37-year-old student pilot, was killed in a plane crash near here this evening.

Mastin was soloing a light plane crashed into a farm fence and was demolished.

13-Year-Old Boy, High Jump Champ, Leaps For His Life

OWENSBORO, Ky., March 20 (AP) —Bobby Cravens, 13-year-old holder of a junior high school high-jumping record, did a jump yesterday that may have saved his life.

Bobby, while engaged in a snowball fight, darted into the path of a police cruiser.

Bobby jumped.

The leap carried him onto the auto hood and against the windshield.

Defense Officials Rapped For Loan

WASHINGTON, March 20 (AP) — Key defense officials went on the griddle today about an alleged "can't lose" venture in which three men put up $600 to get a $7,800,000 government loan on a defense plant.

Chairman Hardy (D-Va) of a House investigating committee roundly criticized the federal officials for approving the loan.

The Virginia legislator discounted a rider which provided that the trio must raise $1,000,000 in private capital before the loan finally becomes effective.

If all goes well, Hardy said, the three men will become "multimillionaires" in a few years.

In Hazleton, Pa., one of the principals in the loan application, Benjamin S. Dowd, said $1,000,000 in cash is available for completing the loan requirements. He said he and his two associates, Martin C. Charles and James H. Hopkins, have already spent $250,000 in developing the proposed steel plant and said it will be in production by Dec. 1.

"If you were to start from scratch today, it would take at least two and one-half years to three years to finish such a plant," Dowd said.

The House committee's disclosure came while senators were pressing their investigation into charges of "influence peddling" in the granting of huge federal loans by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Butler Backers Brand Printer's Ride Story "Lie"

Cries Of "Perjury" Mark Election Probe

WASHINGTON, March 20 (AP)—Witnesses who opposed the reelection of Sen. Tydings (D-Md.) last fall unfolded their story to Senate investigators today, punctuating it with cries of "perjury" and an attack on what they called Tydings' "wounded ego."

Ewell G. Moore, Jr., denied to a Senate Elections Sumcommittee the story of the "midnight ride" previously related by William H. Fedder, Baltimore printer who did some work for Tydings' successful opponent, Sen. Butler (R-Md.)

Perjury Trial Demanded

Moore testified under oath before a packed hearing room that Fedder "lied" when he said he had been taken for a ride and threatened by members of the staff of Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.). Moore asked the committee to recommend to the Department of Justice that Fedder be prosecuted for perjury.

Moore, a 28-year-old Arlington, Va., lawyer who was a part-time worker for McCarthy during the last campaign, also asked that Tydings and Louis Fried, a committee investigator previously identified as conducting a business near Fedder's in Baltimore, be "investigated for subornation."

(Subornation means inducing someone else to lie).

Commentator Testifies

Moore testified Fried helped Fedder prepare his story and Tydings "put Fedder forward as his witness and adopted part of his testimony as his own."

Donald A. Suvine, another McCarthy employe, also testified that "Fedder lies to this committee when he charges he was threatened or 'taken for a ride.'"

Fulton Lewis, Jr., radio commentator, read a 26-page statement accusing Tydings of making statements to the committee "based on unsubstantiated hearsay, wounded ego, and an irresponsible disregard of fact."

Allies Only 8 1-2 Miles From 38th

Ban On Mention Of Line Lifted

TOKYO, Wednesday, March 21. (AP)—Allied troops pushed today to within eight and one-half miles of Korea's 38th parallel.

South Korean troops reached that close to the artificial boundary between North and South Korea along the east coast above Kangnung.

In West-Central Korea, U. S. Eighth Army troops drove within 11½ miles of the parallel near Hangye.

That road town is 15 miles southeast of Chunchon, the last big enemy base below the 38th. But there was no evidence the retreating Reds would fight for Chunchon. Today Eighth Army forces were five miles south of it in considerable strength.

Chunchon is eight miles from the 38th parallel.

Allied forces were less than 15 miles from the boundary at several other points.

Tuesday night a ban was clamped on any mention of the 38th parallel. Today the ban was lifted.

There was no immediate explanation as to whether the brief ban was linked with military operations or with political implications.

The Allied advance was general all across Korea against Reds showing only rear guard resistance.

Elements of China's Third Field Army were identified in the front line as a screening force for the withdrawal.

Red Patrol, Yanks Clash

Early today a Chinese Red patrol clashed briefly with U. S. troops northeast of Seoul and then withdrew. Elsewhere across the western front, U. S. and South Korean patrols probed north of the Han River without contacting the foe.

In the same area, the Allied troops underwent heavy Red artillery, mortar and small arms fire Tuesday.

The Eighth Army said today that the 26th Chinese Army Corps of the Third Field Army now is on the front line. The corps holds positions north of Allied-won Chungpyong reservoir, some 20 to 30 miles northeast of Seoul.

A field dispatch said this corps was screening the withdrawal of the 50th Army Corps and part of the 38th Army Corps, both of the Chinese Red Fourth Field Army. The Third Field Army has been in reserve in Northeast Korea since the U. S. 10th Corps boarded ships and pulled out of Hungnam last December.

Resistance Stiff In Center

AP Correspondent Jim Becker reported that Chinese Reds manned defense positions in Western Korea to the east of the Seoul-Uijongbu corridor. North Koreans were west of it to the Yellow Sea. Uijongbu is 12 miles north of Seoul.

Allied troops in Central Korea met the stiffest resistance in days Tuesday.

Rear guard Reds fought bitterly northeast of Hongchon, abandoned Red bastion 55 miles east of Seoul.

New Atom Tests Held In Pacific

WASHINGTON, March 20 (AP) — A new series of atomic bomb blasts is under way at the Eniwetok proving grounds in the Pacific, the Atomic Energy Commission hinted today.

It referred to a "test" program of a "major" character and said one aim is to gather information which will help architects design buildings to stand up better under atomic blasts.

The project at the remote Pacific atoll has been nicknamed "Operation Greenhouse."

The commission gave no hint as to what type, or types. of atomic weapons were involved.

Presumably, they would be models substantially improved compared with those tested in the first series of Eniwetok trials in the spring of 1948. The three bombs tested then were described as "improved" over their predecessors: Presumably, too, the tests would involve something different from the weapons tested recently at Las Vegas, Nevada — that is, different in explosive capabilities, or in proposed use.

It is even conceivable that a trial explosion of the proposed hydrogen bomb might be attempted, just to see what headway has been made on the full-scale studies which have been underway for more than a year now.

Plan To Realign Assembly Seats Proposed In Senate

ANNAPOLIS, Md., March 20 (AP)—A realignment of legislative seats which would give Baltimore seven districts and parcel out the rest on a population basis was proposed in the Senate today.

Sen. Preston (D-Balto. 5th) submitted a constitutional amendment which would increase the members of the House of Delegates to 134 and the Senate to 30 members. It was the latest of the many plans offered in recent years. None has ever received Assembly approval.

If approved, the plan would be submitted in the 1952 election. Preston's bill would work this way:

Baltimore City would have seven legislative districts instead of six as at present, with six delegates and one senator from each.

Each county would still have a senator.

Counties of 25,000 or less population would have two delegates; over 25,000 and 40,000, three delegates; over 40,000 and to 60,000, four delegates; over 60,000 and to 80,000, five delegates; over 80,000 and to 100,000, six delegates; over 100,000 seven and no more.

Under Preston's bill, the lineup would be as follows:

Two delegates—Calvert, Caroline, Charles, Howard, Kent, Queen Anne's.

Three delegates—Cecil, Dorchester, St. Mary's Garrett, Talbot, Somerset, Worsester.

Four delegates—Carroll, Harford, Wicomico.

Five delegates—None.

Six delegates—Allegany, Frederick, Washington.

Seven delegates — Anne Arundel, Baltimore, Montgomery, Prince Georges.

Curfew Imposed On Iran Capital

TEHRAN, Iran, March 20 (AP)—The government imposed a curfew on this capital tonight and made a show of force with tanks under martial law in a hard-hitting effort to smash a reign of terror by assassins.

Premier Hussein Ala's new pro-Western government acted amid strikes and a flood of unconfirmed reports of new assassinations in the wake of the killing of Premier Gen. Ali Razmara 13 days ago and the wounding of former Education Minister Abdul Zanganeh by an enraged student yesterday.

One rumor said Governor General Manouchar Egbal and his police chief had been slain at Tabriz, capital of Azerbaijan Province. That province was ruled by a pro-Soviet separatist government in 1946.

A rumor that was officially denied said Mayor Mehdi Namdar and Jamal Imami, a member of the lower house (Majlis) of parliament had been targets of assassination attempts.

The new government proclaimed martial law immediately after it had been presented to Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi at noon. Some cabinet posts still were not filled because prospective members were too terrorized by assassination threats to accept the jobs.

U. S. Holds Ships Entitled To USSR, Russia Declares

WASHINGTON, March 20 (AP) — Russia, which has been under American pressure for the return of 672 wartime lend-lease ships, came back today with a complaint that the U. S. is holding up 13 craft to which it is "legitimately entitled."

The 13 were among those seized from Nazi Germany at the close of World War II and earmarked as reparations for the victors. An American - British - Soviet commission recommended the transfer to Russia in 1947.

Moscow said in a note delivered to the State Department that three years is long enough for the U. S. to decide whether it approves the recommendation.

Truck Weight Issue Debated

ANNAPOLIS, Md., March 20 (AP)—If Maryland is to preserve its investment in existing roads there will have to be a cutback in the axle load of trucks, a Senate committee was told today.

It just isn't so, said truckers who are battling to keep limits where they are. They argued that all the findings for lower weights so far are based on wrong conclusions.

The Senate Judiciary Committee held a hearing on a bill which says the loads should not exceed 18,000 pounds for a single truck axle. The limit now is 22,400 pounds.

Spokesmen for the State Weight Commission, with charts, mechanical gadgets and testimony, attempted to show that anything over 18,000 pounds in axle weight beats up the roads.

The Senate bill follows the recommendation of the weight commission.

The truck people contended the commission had based its recommendations on the "apparent results" of a six-month road test near La Plata and on some damage to the Pulaski highway. They said any damage at La Plata was because of poor engineering of the road in the first place.

Furthermore, they said, the engineers are still trying to work out final conclusions.

State Senator Acts To Do Something About Flood Of Local Legislation

ANNAPOLIS, Md., March 20 (AP)—An attempt to do something about the flood of local bills in the General Assembly—which probably has more of them than any other state—was made today by Sen. Preston (D-Balto. 5th).

Preston offered a resolution proposing appointment of a state commission to get into the problem of local legislation.

The resolution noted that between 60 and 65 per cent of all bills going into the General Assembly cover local matters. They take up time and reduce legislative efficiency, it added.

Under Maryland procedure, hundreds of things dealing with changes in county or municipal laws have to get Assembly approval.

Ordinarily, the county or city delegation proposes local legislation and everybody else goes along. But the bills have to go through the same routine as if they were of statewide nature.

Preston's resolution contended that statewide problems are of such nature "as to require the ability and capacity of all the members without the distracting efforts now required of them in the consideration of local bills."

The proposed commission would be appointed by the Governor and consist of three members from each judicial circuit.

The House gave preliminary approval to a bill to give every member of the state police force a $300 pay raise. It must pass one more House test before it can go to Gov. McKeldin for signature into law.

The delegates engaged in more jockeying over a bill to compell all trains to stop while setting and releasing brake retainers on mountain grades. Finally, it made a special order of business for tomorrow. The bill, by Delegate Reed (R-Allegany), came out of the Judiciary Committee with an unfavorable report. The delegates refused to accept the committee's recommendation that it be killed.

DiSalle Forecasts Early Price Break

BOSTON, March 20 (AP)—An early break in consumer prices was forecast tonight by Michael V. DiSalle, director of price stabilization.

He told the National Industrial Conference Board that he previously had "felt that the break in prices was still months away. Now I feel justified in moving up that schedule."

Price movements in the spot and primary or producers' markets, DiSalle said, would be reflected in consumer goods prices in retail stores in several weeks.

For four successive weeks, he said, the Bureau of Labor Statistics spot market price index "has gone down with increasing speed."

Death At 65 Ends Militant Career Of Rev. James Cox

PITTSBURGH, March 20 (AP) — Death today ended the militant career of the Rev. James R. Cox, 65-year-old Catholic priest who sandwiched a campaign for the presidency in a lifetime of crusading for the poor and jobless.

He died in Pittsburgh's Mercy Hospital—where he once was chaplain—several hours after suffering a cerebral hemorrhage. He was stricken in the rectory of old St. Patrick's Church, which he served for 28 years.

Father Cox blazed his name across the headlines when he led some 20,000 despairing depression victims on Washington in 1932 to plead with former President Herbert Hoover and Congress for help in finding jobs.

Vets' Dividend Will Be Mailed In April

WASHINGTON, March 20 (AP) — The first of 8,000,000 special life insurance dividend checks for World War II veterans will be put in the mail in early April.

The Veterans Administration said today that the $685,000,000 fund will average out at about $85 apiece.

This dividend is for three years, from 1948 through the 1951 anniversary. The first checks will go to those with a January date. Others will go out within about two months of their anniversary dates, for it takes about that long to figure them, VA said.

First Price Ceiling Violation Is Charged

LOS ANGELES, March 20 (AP) — The first criminal charges filed in the nation under the new price stabilization program were lodged today against a Los Angeles used car dealer and his sales manager.

A complaint, filed late today with the U. S. Commissioner, named as defendants Norman Frank, Inc., doing business as Jack Farmer's Auto, and Albert Rontell, sales manager of the firm.

James E. Harrington, attorney for the Office of Price Stabilization here, said the information stemmed from the sale of an automobile to Burt E. Taylor for an alleged $4,597.92 in place of a ceiling maximum of $3,660.25.

U. S. Holds Ships Entitled To USSR, Russia Declares

WASHINGTON, March 20 (AP) — Russia, which has been under American pressure for the return of 672 wartime lend-lease ships, came back today with a complaint that the U. S. is holding up 13 craft to which it is "legitimately entitled."

The 13 were among those seized from Nazi Germany at the close of World War II and earmarked as reparations for the victors. An American - British - Soviet commission recommended the transfer to Russia in 1947.

Moscow said in a note delivered to the State Department that three years is long enough for the U. S. to decide whether it approves the recommendation.

Truck Weight Issue Debated

ANNAPOLIS, Md., March 20 (AP)—If Maryland is to preserve its investment in existing roads there will have to be a cutback in the axle load of trucks, a Senate committee was told today.

It just isn't so, said truckers who are battling to keep limits where they are. They argued that all the findings for lower weights so far are based on wrong conclusions.

The Senate Judiciary Committee held a hearing on a bill which says the loads should not exceed 18,000 pounds for a single truck axle. The limit now is 22,400 pounds.

Spokesmen for the State Weight Commission, with charts, mechanical gadgets and testimony, attempted to show that anything over 18,000 pounds in axle weight beats up the roads.

The Senate bill follows the recommendation of the weight commission.

The truck people contended the commission had based its recommendations on the "apparent results" of a six-month road test near La Plata and on some damage to the Pulaski highway. They said any damage at La Plata was because of poor engineering of the road in the first place.

Furthermore, they said, the engineers are still trying to work out final conclusions.

State Senator Acts To Do Something About Flood Of Local Legislation

ANNAPOLIS, Md., March 20 (AP)—An attempt to do something about the flood of local bills in the General Assembly—which probably has more of them than any other state—was made today by Sen. Preston (D-Balto. 5th).

Preston offered a resolution proposing appointment of a state commission to get into the problem of local legislation.

The resolution noted that between 60 and 65 per cent of all bills going into the General Assembly cover local matters. They take up time and reduce legislative efficiency, it added.

Under Maryland procedure, hundreds of things dealing with changes in county or municipal laws have to get Assembly approval.

Ordinarily, the county or city delegation proposes local legislation and everybody else goes along. But the bills have to go through the same routine as if they were of statewide nature.

Preston's resolution contended that statewide problems are of such nature "as to require the ability and capacity of all the members without the distracting efforts now required of them in the consideration of local bills."

The proposed commission would be appointed by the Governor and consist of three members from each judicial circuit.

The House gave preliminary approval to a bill to give every member of the state police force a $300 pay raise. It must pass one more House test before it can go to Gov. McKeldin for signature into law.

The delegates engaged in more jockeying over a bill to compell all trains to stop while setting and releasing brake retainers on mountain grades. Finally, it made a special order of business for tomorrow. The bill, by Delegate Reed (R-Allegany), came out of the Judiciary Committee with an unfavorable report. The delegates refused to accept the committee's recommendation that it be killed.

DiSalle Forecasts Early Price Break

BOSTON, March 20 (AP)—An early break in consumer prices was forecast tonight by Michael V. DiSalle, director of price stabilization.

He told the National Industrial Conference Board that he previously had "felt that the break in prices was still months away. Now I feel justified in moving up that schedule."

Price movements in the spot and primary or producers' markets, DiSalle said, would be reflected in consumer goods prices in retail stores in several weeks.

For four successive weeks, he said, the Bureau of Labor Statistics spot market price index "has gone down with increasing speed."

Death At 65 Ends Militant Career Of Rev. James Cox

PITTSBURGH, March 20 (AP) — Death today ended the militant career of the Rev. James R. Cox, 65-year-old Catholic priest who sandwiched a campaign for the presidency in a lifetime of crusading for the poor and jobless.

He died in Pittsburgh's Mercy Hospital—where he once was chaplain—several hours after suffering a cerebral hemorrhage. He was stricken in the rectory of old St. Patrick's Church, which he served for 28 years.

Father Cox blazed his name across the headlines when he led some 20,000 despairing depression victims on Washington in 1932 to plead with former President Herbert Hoover and Congress for help in finding jobs.

Vets' Dividend Will Be Mailed In April

WASHINGTON, March 20 (AP) — The first of 8,000,000 special life insurance dividend checks for World War II veterans will be put in the mail in early April.

The Veterans Administration said today that the $685,000,000 fund will average out at about $85 apiece.

This dividend is for three years, from 1948 through the 1951 anniversary. The first checks will go to those with a January date. Others will go out within about two months of their anniversary dates, for it takes about that long to figure them, VA said.

First Price Ceiling Violation Is Charged

LOS ANGELES, March 20 (AP) — The first criminal charges filed in the nation under the new price stabilization program were lodged today against a Los Angeles used car dealer and his sales manager.

A complaint, filed late today with the U. S. Commissioner, named as defendants Norman Frank, Inc., doing business as Jack Farmer's Auto, and Albert Rontell, sales manager of the firm.

James E. Harrington, attorney for the Office of Price Stabilization here, said the information stemmed from the sale of an automobile to Burt E. Taylor for an alleged $4,587.92 in place of a ceiling maximum of $3,660.25.

Resurgence Of Germany

Whether the present meetings of the deputy foreign ministers in Paris result in some real accomplishment or only in another stalemate, the Germans cannot fail to emerge from them in a stronger international position. The democracies are making more and more concessions, political and economic, to West Germany. The Russians are making noises about a unified Germany, thus testifying to the uneasiness of their control in East Germany.

West Germany, with twice the area and almost thrice the population of East Germany, is treated as an economic equal among the nations in the Schuman plan and as a political equal in the Council of Europe. A way is being sought to give her military recognition under the Atlantic Security treaty. And she might well be a member of UN today, less than six years after German surrender in World War II, if the Soviet Union held no veto power over membership.

It was almost eight years after the end of World War I before Germany was admitted to the League of Nations. It was more than a dozen years after that war's end before the Allies stopped trying to exact reparation payments and gave up their controls over the German internal economy. And it was almost a dozen years after the war before the Allies abandoned their military occupation of the Rhineland.

Crushing defeats in war in the 19th century didn't prevent France from becoming an equal among the great powers soon again. After Waterloo her conquerors immediately wooed her as an ally, explaining that they had fought only against Napoleon, not against France.

The financial and territorial concessions which France had to make to Germany in 1871 failed to prevent Czarist Russia from contracting a French alliance that ultimately took in Great Britain and was able to stand up to the German and Austro-Hungarian camp. Apparently a great nation in the heart of Europe may be down but it is never out.

Mail To GI's

Heard about any "beefs" from soldiers in Korea on delay in getting mail from home? The Army admits it has had "some" complaints along this line, and there must be many more that don't go direct to the Army.

The complaints have prompted the Army and Air Force to send test letters to Korea from various parts of the U.S., and to check on the time required for delivery. Mail to the G.I.'s in Korea goes out of San Francisco and is cleared through Yokohama in Japan.

According to the Army, an airmail letter takes about eight days, on the average, to get to a soldier in Korea after it leaves San Francisco. Two days more may have been needed to get that letter to San Francisco if it came from some place in the eastern part of the U.S. The Army thinks this isn't too bad, considering that many of the G.I.'s are shifting around in active fighting and that a full day is lost when the international date line is crossed west of Hawaii.

But letters sent by regular mail are something else again. These take an average of 25 days out of San Francisco, inasmuch as they have to wait until a surface ship is available and this may not be exactly the fastest one in the world. And the transportation from mailing point to San Francisco by train may need up to five more days. The moral is that Mom and Sugar and Uncle Fred should always use airmail to Joe out in Korea.

The Army says it doesn't have enough space in planes, in view of the supplies urgently needed at the front, to use westbound planes for letters not sent airmail. During World War II this problem of space for mail was met in part by microfilming letters that lent themselves to that process. The Army says it now has microfilming "under study" for mail to Korea.

Peace Without A Treaty

The Western democracies are said to be almost ready with plans for each to declare a state of peace with West Germany. The American, British and French foreign ministers at their meeting in New York last September reached a decision, in effect, to go ahead without Russia in ending the war officially. That is probably one reason why the Kremlin has been calling for new negotiations on a peace treaty with all of Germany.

The legal difficulties are many in declaring a state of peace with only one section, even though the major section, of a country that has been defeated in war. And traditionally you don't have official peace with a nation until a peace treaty with it has been ratified on both sides.

However, the United States broke that tradition after World War I. When the Senate turned thumbs down on the League of Nations, it had to reject the entire peace treaty of Versailles inasmuch as the Covenant of the League was embodied in the treaty.

Then, in 1920, Congress passed a resolution declaring a state of peace with Germany. It was vetoed by President Wilson, and the veto was sustained in a vote pretty much along party lines. But a similar resolution was signed by President Harding in July, 1921, two years and eight months after the end of hostilities. The resolution accepted the settlements of the Versailles treaty insofar as they affected the United States.

The Russians point out that all the nations at war with Germany and Japan in World War II agreed not to conclude a separate peace with the enemy. The democracies reply that this pledge was obviously meant to apply only while hostilities were going on, and that it had no valid meaning any longer after Germany and Japan surrendered.

How To Keep Well

Re-Vaccination Against Smallpox

SMALLPOX is most common in cold months. Up to the time of this writing, we have managed to sail through the winter season with only a handful of cases, but other countries have not fared so well; the rate continues to be excessive in India, for example, and a new epidemic was reported recently from Britain. We have no need to fear that it will cross the ocean and spread to the United States because of our rigid quarantine regulations.

In this country we rely upon vaccination. This to our knowledge is the best preventive. We do not inherit natural immunity to smallpox; even newborn babies are not protected for the first few months of life as they are against most contagious diseases. When smallpox is contracted in pregnancy it may involve the unborn child and reports have appeared in the medical literature about infants who were born with the typical eruption. Immunity is acquired only by having the malady or through vaccination. Unfortunately, the effect of the vaccine may not be permanent and for this reason revaccination is recommended every five years. Most re-vaccinations do not "take," demonstrating immunity. But now and then, to everyone's surprise including the physician's, a positive reaction follows.

One of our editors had this experience recently. Every year he goes to Mexico, where smallpox crops up from time to time. Even as recently as three years ago his vaccination did not "take" because he still had enough immunity in his system to prevent the formation of the pustule. This year a typical "take" followed re-vaccination. As an intelligent man, he appreciated the significance of the incident and now feels more secure because of the realization that he is immune. We could all profit by his experience; the more lax we become, the more unprepared the majority of us are to withstand an epidemic. Furthermore, our negligence invites an epidemic, and in these days of preparing for shortages and pulling in the belt another notch it might be well to think in this direction.

When an individual who is immune to smallpox is vaccinated, nothing happens at the site of inoculation. In some instances the area becomes red within one or two days after the injection, but this soon disappears. Those with partial immunity may encounter a reaction that reaches its height within three to five days. The lesion consists of a water blister surrounded by a slight aching, fatigue, and tenderness in the armpit. Healing takes place after a few days.

This differs from the typical "take" which also begins to manifest itself on the fifth day after inoculation. A spot, varying in diameter from that of a silver half-dollar to that of a grapefruit, becomes red and swollen. Meanwhile, in the center of this area a pimple-like lesion appears which is covered by a tight clear membrane and contains a milky fluid. The central part caves in like an umbilicus and soon becomes crusted with a hard, black substance that remains for several weeks before falling off. A severe reaction may co-exist so that the individual develops chills, fever, and other uncomfortable symptoms.

The best plan is to keep the lesion clean and as dry as possible. A shield never should be used; it is better to wash the site carefully with alcohol and apply a loose dressing to prevent irritation. Cleanliness is stressed to discourage a secondary infection, but, should this occur, hot compresses and one of the antibotics are used.

TOMORROW: Dr. Van Dellen tells of the management of varicose veins.

GOITER AREAS

E. R. writes: Where is the goiter belt in the United States?

REPLY

This name has been applied to areas around the Great Lakes, Minnesota, the Dakotas, the valley of the upper Mississippi, and certain parts of the Pacific northwest. The incidence of goiter formerly was high in these regions because the iodine content of the soil and water was low; but with modern food transportation and the use of iodized salt, iodine deficiency is not as common as in the past

BEVERAGES IN DIET

Mrs. R. writes: Are coffee and tea allowed in reducing diets?

REPLY

Yes, provided there are no other reasons why the physician should want to exclude stimulants. Tea and coffee are devoid of calories when they are taken without cream or sugar.

SPASM

M. W. writes: Can the heart have a spasm?

REPLY

Not in the usual sense of the word. The heart does not cramp like the calf muscle nor do the valves clamp down like those located at the entrance and exit of the stomach. "Heart spasm" usually refers to an attack of angina pectoris, which some believe to be caused by spasm of the coronary arteries.

Iron Curtain Not Hard To Penetrate Personally; Voice Of America With Berlin-To-Turkey Radio Network Would Pay Dividends For Peace

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Drew Pearson is making a flying tour of the Middle East and Europe, surveying the world situation.)

BERLIN — This is the extreme northern end of the iron curtain. I started this trip at the southern end where it begins, between Bulgaria and Turkey—a long line of barbed wire extending north—and have now reached the other end, where it isn't even barbed wire but fans out into the east zone of Berlin.

One of the most important conclusions I've reached on this trip is that Winston Churchill did the democratic world a disservice when he talked about the border between Russia and the Western world as an iron curtain, because the border isn't as impervious as the word "iron" indicates. Not only is Stalin's curtain between the East and the West not even marked by barbed wire in many places, but it can be crossed fairly easily.

The border between Czechoslovakia and the American zone in Germany, for instance, can be crossed almost any night. In fact, it is crossed constantly by Germans who make their living smuggling goods back and forth.

The border between East and West Germany is like a sieve while, in Berlin, thousands of people walk or ride back and forth daily between the Russian and American zones. I entered the Russian zone without even knowing I was in it and drove through several miles of its battered streets. The only way you have of knowing you are in the Russian zone is through the signs on the streets which say: "You are now entering the democratic section of Berlin."

This fairly easy access into restricted areas behind the iron curtain raises one of the most important omissions on the part of the United States Government—namely, why are we not doing more to influence the people on the other side of the curtain? Obviously the curtain was rung down by Stalin for only one reason: Because he fears intercourse between East and West—he knew contact with the modern marvels of capitalism would make it difficult to keep the Russian people happy under communism.

Therefore our best bet to head off war obviously is to go over the Kremlin's head and reach the Russian people and the satellite millions also forced to remain behind the curtain.

Eager For Information

How effectively this can be done and how eager the satellites are for information about the U. S. A. is shown right here in Berlin, where our State Department is doing its most effective job of propaganda through radio station RIAS. This station, which gets its abbreviated name from "Radio In American Sector," was originally started by the Army but is now operated by three State Department radio men plus 600 Germans.

RIAS carries a regular schedule of radio entertainment not unlike the average American station with quiz programs having the highest Hooper rating and musical cabaret shows second. Interspersed through all these programs, however, are telling wisecracks and political comment which nickle-nursing Congressman John Taber of New York probably couldn't understand and wouldn't approve of but which have East Germans roaring with laughter—at the expense of Joe Stalin.

RIAS is so popular in Eastern Germany that when the Soviet held its big youth meeting in Berlin last December several thousand supposedly Communist youngsters called at the station out of friendly curiosity, while streams of letters pour into the RIAS offices each month from all parts of Soviet Germany.

One of the most popular features on RIAS is the evening news show at which the commentator uncovers a Communist agent in East Germany.

"You may know Hans Goering, the butcher on the corner of Wilhelmstrasse and Luxemburgplatz," says the commentator. "He may pretend to be your friend but he isn't. He's a Communist agent and is reporting what you do and say to the Soviet police."

East Germans eat this up and the East bureau of the Social Democratic party has kept RIAS well supplied with the names and details of Communist agents.

Lack Of Funds Hampers "Voice"

The State Department operates another Voice of America radio station in Salonika, near the southern end of the iron curtain, but because of insufficient funds, it hasn't really begun to scratch the surface of the iron curtain with effective propaganda.

One trouble with the Voice of America is that it operates via short wave. RIAS, on the other hand, operates on a standard wave and fits its programs right in on regular East German programs. And, being close to the scene, it covers local news, uses local wisecracks, and disseminates local political gossip. Making the Voice of America effective from 4,000 miles away is like publishing a newspaper in Chicago from a news desk located in London.

If, therefore, we are to puncture the easily punctured iron curtain, what we need is a series of local radio stations extending from Berlin to Turkey—one along the Czechoslovak border in the American zone of Germany broadcasting in Czech and Slovak languages, one in the American zone in Austria, one in Yugoslavia to reach nearby Hungary and Albania, and one in Turkey to reach Southern Russia.

Such a radio network would pay 100 per cent dividends in getting our ideas beyond and behind the iron curtain.

However, radio propaganda alone, while important, won't do the job. My examination of the iron curtain convinces me that, in addition, we could get all sorts of propaganda into satellite countries. Thousands of people in Czechoslovakia, Hungary and Poland are eager for information about the outside world and are even willing to risk their lives to get it and help disseminate it.

During the war we devised all sorts of schemes to get our propaganda behind the enemy lines. We devised waterproof propaganda leaflets, which could not be destroyed by rain. We devised small printing presses, which one man could carry and operate. We printed messages in Bibles and got them distributed in churches.

But we are neglecting much of this today. We are spending billions to rearm a reluctant Europe, many parts of which don't particularly want to be rearmed. Meanwhile, only a few millions spent on getting our propaganda behind the iron curtain might pay a bonanza of dividends for peace.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

War Prevention

DEAN ACHESON, in the course of his discussion before the Connally committee, said:

"So our first purpose—and this is something we need to make absolutely clear to our friends in Europe—is to deter the aggressors from attacking Europe. Our primary concern is not how to win a war after it gets started, but how to prevent it, and how to help Europe stay free in the meantime."

This seems to me poor reasoning, because no nation can go to war without feeling confident that it can win, and when steps are taken to prevent a war, they must be such as would convince the part of the second part that war does not pay.

The learned Secretary of State must have caught himself tripping, for he answers himself:

"There are three deterrent factors to be considered. One is the retalitatory power now in our possession—our capability of striking with air power against the centers of aggression. Another is the reserve power which helps to convince the Russians that they could not win in the end. And finally, there are the integrated forces in being of the North Atlantic Treaty nations."

Then he goes on to talk about the third deterrent, which is the one he likes, but it is obviously a side issue if the first one is not fully achieved. That means that we must be armed to the hilt and have a huge army before we can convince the Russians that war will not pay. Therefore, it is necessary to assess our capacities and those of our allies and the will to fight of the entire group of 12 nations in the North Atlantic Alliance. Unless there is a keen will to fight among these countries, what is there to deter Soviet Russia?

Surely the United States, a nation of 153,000,000, cannot alone produce the strength to fight an empire of 800,000,000 even with our advantage of production. The problem then comes down to ratios: What is the share that each of the members of the North Atlantic Alliance will put up? Dean Acheson does not say.

But the Secretary of State does say this:

"One reason why we cannot continue to rely on retaliatory air power as a sufficient deterrent is the effect of time. We have a substantial lead in air power and in atomic weapons. At the present moment, this may be the most powerful deterrent against aggression. But with the passage of time, even though we continue our advances in this field, the value of our lead diminishes."

Again, it is difficult to understand his reasoning. Why can we not maintain our "substantial lead in air power and in atomic weapons?" If, as he says, this has given us an advantage, why not keep the advantage?

The answer, of course, is that the more money we spend on ground forces, the less we shall have to spend on the airforce and atomic weapons. The supply of money is not unlimited. The 1951-1952 budget will probably run as high as $100,000,000,000. This comes during a period of distressing and frightening inflation.

The decision to use ground forces in Korea was an infantryman's error and has proved costly. Thus far, no evidence has been presented to Senator Connally's committee to prove that American ground forces are sufficient to deter Soviet Russia. Plenty of evidence has been

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — The question which recently upset markets and caused many a flurry of excitement in the last few days is this: "Is there a chance of an end soon to the war in Korea?"

Rumors of a peace settlement, even in the midst of big wars, usually have some basis which starts them going. When General Ridgway, our field commander in Korea, said the other day that our forces could consider that they had won a big victory upon reaching the 38th Parallel again, stock market observers jumped to the conclusion that this was about as far as our armies planned to go. But that wasn't really what General Ridgway meant. He was merely clearing the air for a settlement, if the Communists were really intent on making one. A somewhat similar hint came from General MacArthur, who said the best we could hope for in Korea was a stalemate, if the United Nations forces were not going to be permitted to bomb the Chinese bases of supply north of the Manchurian border.

Chinese Resources Drained

All this adds up to one thing—our military commanders in Korea are restless and are asking for some definition of purpose, some plan that will either let the UN forces liberate all of Korea by bombing the Red Chinese bases and occupying more and more North Korean territory, or else some plan that will permit the UN to negotiate a settlement by diplomacy.

Neither our commanders nor our high government officials intend to waste the fruits of victory by letting the Communists keep their control of North Korea. What they evidently do mean is that if the Chinese Communists have had enough—and they are taking frightful losses every day—maybe a way can be found to let them wiggle out with a negotiated settlement. But such a settlement undoubtedly would require that a plan for evacuation of all Korea by foreign troops would be agreed upon and that some guarantees or assurances would be given by the Communists that Korea will not be attacked again.

While the Chinese Communists may have unlimited manpower, they do not have unlimited supplies of arms or equipment. The Korean War has drained Chinese resources and already has prevented them from sending reinforcements to Indo-China and from starting trouble in Formosa. They also have their hands full now with more and more internal trouble.

It may be that the Chinese Communist leaders will try just one more offensive. The weather in Korea will be getting bad soon—bad for our fliers and for the movement of motor vehicles as the mud and rain slow down everything. Maybe after this last offensive the Red Chinese will be ready for a settlement. The climax in Korea certainly will come within a few months, perhaps weeks, and, just as the Communists suddenly gave up their blockade of Berlin, they may just as suddenly give up their war in Korea. For it is we who are winning the war against aggression by preventing the aggressor from attaining his objective.

Supply And Demand Reaction

There may be a connection between the rumors of peace in Korea and the recent drop in prices. The price readjustment, however, has been in the cards for some time. Tin and rubber prices went skyrocketing when the armament program was announced but, now that the government has stepped in and slowed down its stockpiling, those two commodity prices started downward. In fact, commodity prices generally are leveling off. This is to be noted in grain prices, too. For the last two weeks in February, the retail food index, issued by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, has shown a decline and food prices at wholesale continued a decline after that.

The price levels seem to suggest that maybe the peak in the Korean boom has been reached. What really is happening is that the old law of "supply and demand" is beginning to operate in certain categories of economic action. Some of those who built unusually large inventories of goods are discovering that demand is not as great as they thought, and that some of the hoarded stuff had better be moved, even if it requires lower prices.

The controversy over interest rates—whether the government should hold the bond market at a pegged price or give it a chance to find its own level—is also having some effect on the general situation. There is a testing going on. Bank credit is a target of attack, and an effort is being made to tighten it up, which means that some concerns with heavy inventories may be compelled to get rid of them in order to pay back their loans.

On top of this, a steady reconversion process is going on in industry and there may be some unemployment while the factories change over from civilian goods to the making of military goods. This is a deflationary aspect. It may be expected, however, that this situation will be only temporary, because the build-up of armament is to be larger instead of smaller during the next several months. The peak of our military production is not to come until a year or two from now.

Savers Need Help

By MARK SULLIVAN

WE ARE NOW in the ninth month since Korea created the necessity for controls over the country's economy, including and emphasizing arrest of inflation. We are in the eighth month since President Truman sent to Congress a request for legislation giving him authority to impose controls. We are in the sixth month since Congress gave Mr. Truman announced "ceilings" over prices and wages.

In the present stage, forces entering into what may be called the spiral mechanism accompanying inflation continue in motion. On the part of labor there is resistance to some of the ceilings the control agencies set up. To this resistance the reaction of control agencies is in part compromise, in part firmness. Some ceilings have been relaxed in deference to labor. On the other hand, Economic Stabilizer Eric Johnston a week ago turned down a wage raise of 11 cents an hour for workers in the meat packing industry, on the ground that the raise would pierce the ceiling that the control agency had set up. In general, much depends on the firmness of the control agencies and on whether they are supported by President Truman.

Future Made Uncertain

In a large area of ceilings over prices — that is, prices of farm crops — a condition exists which makes the future uncertain. In the law passed by Congress last September which created the control agencies, it was stipulated that no ceilings should be put over any farm crop selling below the parity price which the Department of Agriculture fixes. This covers a very large proportion of all farm crops. So long as these remain immune from imposition of ceilings by the control agencies, it is doubtful whether rising cost of living can be checked, hence whether rising wages can be checked, hence whether rising wages can be checked, hence whether the spiral mechanism that accompanies inflation can be checked. While control agency eads have made guarded statements about the immunity enjoyed by farm crops, they have made no formal request to Congress that it end this immunity. It is a common apprehension that so long as a large number of farm crops have immunity it will be difficult for the control agencies to effectively control the country's economy as a whole. There is speculation to the effect that President Truman may make the request of Congress which the control agencies are obviously reluctant to make.

The malevolent vitality of the wage-price spiral, its tendency to perpetuate itself automatically, is illustrated by an action that took place recently. The present action was an order by the Interstate Commerce Commission granting railroads increases of freight rates. Preceding this action were others that led up to it. First, railroad workers demanded increases in wage rates and got them. Thereupon the railroads computed the increased cost of service which the wage raises caused them. On this basis the railroads asked the Interstate Commerce Commission to grant increases in freight rates and the Commission did so. This sequence has taken place frequently.

Sacrifice Is Needed

From this point proceeds a far-reaching ramification. Increased freight rates cause increased prices of many kinds of goods that railroads carry, and increased prices of each line of goods ramify into others. As a specially dynamic example, coal carried by railroads is used as fuel in industries, and increased price of the fuel leads to increased prices of goods these industries make. Automatically reciprocal increases of wages and of prices go on throughout the whole of the country's economy.

The control agencies at Washington have the responsibility for checking the wage-price spiral and the inflation of which it is an accompaniment. The steps they take call for sacrifice on the part of many individuals and groups, and

BEARING THE CROSS

And they compel one Simon a Cyrenian, who passed by, coming out of the country, the father of Alexander and Rufus, to bear his cross. Mark 15:21 (K. J. V.). Read the chapter.

None of us will ever be able literally to carry the Cross of Jesus. That honor belongs to Simon of Cyrene alone. But cross-bearing is nevertheless a necessity to salvation.

Only now and then does a man meet with a great event. And successful living does not so much depend upon what he is compelled to do as upon the thought he brings to it. There was once a woman who made a supper for Jesus; another who poured ointment on his head; a man who gave him a grave. Little deeds! But they live in the pages of history and work their way into simple souls who stand and wait before God to whom great and small are terms that have no meaning.

Again, there is blessedness and honor in helping the Christian cause. Jesus stumbling on his Calvary road represents a spirit that is today struggling to make itself felt in the midst of an evil world. The honor of giving it impetus falls on us.

Let Us Pray: O God, may the knowledge of Jesus bearing his Cross teach us the joy of walking beside him in his sufferings. May it never be a burden, but a lift to our spirits. Amen.

Mail To GI's

Heard about any "beefs" from soldiers in Korea on delay in getting mail from home? The Army admits it has had "some" complaints along this line, and there must be many more that don't go direct to the Army.

The complaints have prompted the Army and Air Force to send test letters to Korea from various parts of the U.S., and to check on the time required for delivery. Mail to the G.I.'s in Korea goes out of San Francisco and is cleared through Yokohama in Japan.

According to the Army, an airmail letter takes about eight days, on the average, to get to a soldier in Korea after it leaves San Francisco. Two days more may have been needed to get that letter to San Francisco if it came from some place in the eastern part of the U.S. The Army thinks this isn't too bad, considering that many of the G.I.'s are shifting around in active fighting and that a full day is lost when the international date line is crossed west of Hawaii.

But letters sent by regular mail are something else again. These take an average of 25 days out of San Francisco, inasmuch as they have to wait until a surface ship is available and this may not be exactly the fastest one in the world. And the transportation from mailing point to San Francisco by train may need up to five more days. The moral is that Mom and Sugar and Uncle Fred should always use airmail to Joe out in Korea.

The Army says it doesn't have enough space in planes, in view of the supplies urgently needed at the front, to use westbound planes for letters not sent airmail. During World War II this problem of space for mail was met in part by microfilming letters that lent themselves to that process. The Army says it now has microfilming "under study" for mail to Korea.

Peace Without A Treaty

The Western democracies are said to be almost ready with plans for each to declare a state of peace with West Germany. The American, British and French foreign ministers at their meeting in New York last September reached a decision, in effect, to go ahead without Russia in ending the war officially. That is probably one reason why the Kremlin has been calling for new negotiations on a peace treaty with all of Germany.

The legal difficulties are many in declaring a state of peace with only one section, even though the major section, of a country that has been defeated in war. And traditionally you don't have official peace with a nation until a peace treaty with it has been ratified on both sides.

However, the United States broke that tradition after World War I. When the Senate turned thumbs down on the League of Nations, it had to reject the entire peace treaty of Versailles inasmuch as the Covenant of the League was embodied in the treaty.

Then, in 1920, Congress passed a resolution declaring a state of peace with Germany. It was vetoed by President Wilson, and the veto was sustained in a vote pretty much along party lines. But a similar resolution was signed by President Harding in July, 1921, two years and eight months after the end of hostilities. The resolution accepted the settlements of the Versailles treaty insofar as they affected the United States.

The Russians point out that all the nations at war with Germany and Japan in World War II agreed not to conclude a separate peace with the enemy. The democracies reply that this pledge was obviously meant to apply only while hostilities were going on, and that it had no valid meaning any longer after Germany and Japan surrendered.

How To Keep Well

Re-Vaccination Against Smallpox

SMALLPOX is most common in cold months. Up to the time of this writing, we have managed to sail through the winter season with only a handful of cases, but other countries have not fared so well; the rate continues to be excessive in India, for example, and a new epidemic was reported recently from Britain. We have no need to fear that it will cross the ocean and spread to the United States because of our rigid quarantine regulations.

In this country we rely upon vaccination. This to our knowledge is the best preventive. We do not inherit natural immunity to smallpox; even newborn babies are not protected for the first few months of life as they are against most contagious diseases. When smallpox is contracted in pregnancy it may involve the unborn child and reports have appeared in the medical literature about infants who were born with the typical eruption. Immunity is acquired only by having the malady or through vaccination. Unfortunately, the effect of the vaccine may not be permanent and for this reason revaccination is recommended every five years. Most re-vaccinations do not "take," demonstrating immunity. But now and then, to everyone's surprise including the physician's, a positive reaction follows.

One of our editors had this experience recently. Every year he goes to Mexico, where smallpox crops up from time to time. Even as recently as three years ago his vaccination did not "take" because he still had enough immunity in his system to prevent the formation of the pustule. This year a typical "take" followed re-vaccination. As an intelligent man, he appreciated the significance of the incident and now feels more secure because of the realization that he is immune. We could all profit by his experience; the more lax we become, the more unprepared the majority of us are to withstand an epidemic. Furthermore, our negligence invites an epidemic, and in these days of preparing for shortages and pulling in the belt another notch it might be well to think in this direction.

When an individual who is immune to smallpox is vaccinated, nothing happens at the site of inoculation. In some instances the area becomes red within one or two days after the injection, but this soon disappears. Those with partial immunity may encounter a reaction that reaches its height within three to five days. The lesion consists of a water blister surrounded by a slight aching, fatigue, and tenderness in the armpit. Healing takes place after a few days.

This differs from the typical "take" which also begins to manifest itself on the fifth day after inoculation. A spot, varying in diameter from that of a silver half-dollar to that of a grapefruit, becomes red and swollen. Meanwhile, in the center of this area a pimple-like lesion appears which is covered by a tight clear membrane and contains a milky fluid. The central part caves in like an umbilicus and soon becomes crusted with a hard, black substance that remains for several weeks before falling off. A severe reaction may co-exist so that the individual develops chills, fever, and other uncomfortable symptoms.

The best plan is to keep the lesion clean and as dry as possible. A shield never should be used; it is better to wash the site carefully with alcohol and apply a loose dressing to prevent irritation. Cleanliness is stressed to discourage a secondary infection, but, should this occur, hot compresses and one of the antibotics are used.

TOMORROW: Dr. Van Dellen tells of the management of varicose veins.

GOITER AREAS

E. R. writes: Where is the goiter belt in the United States?

REPLY

This name has been applied to areas around the Great Lakes, Minnesota, the Dakotas, the valley of the upper Mississippi, and certain parts of the Pacific northwest. The incidence of goiter formerly was high in these regions because the iodine content of the soil and water was low; but with modern food transportation and the use of iodized salt, iodine deficiency is not as common as in the past

BEVERAGES IN DIET

Mrs. R. writes: Are coffee and tea allowed in reducing diets?

REPLY

Yes, provided there are no other reasons why the physician should want to exclude stimulants. Tea and coffee are devoid of calories when they are taken without cream or sugar.

SPASM

M. W. writes: Can the heart have a spasm?

REPLY

Not in the usual sense of the word. The heart does not cramp like the calf muscle nor do the valves clamp down like those located at the entrance and exit of the stomach. "Heart spasm" usually refers to an attack of angina pectoris, which some believe to be caused by spasm of the coronary arteries.

Iron Curtain Not Hard To Penetrate Personally; Voice Of America With Berlin-To-Turkey Radio Network Would Pay Dividends For Peace

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Drew Pearson is making a flying tour of the Middle East and Europe, surveying the world situation.)

BERLIN — This is the extreme northern end of the iron curtain. I started this trip at the southern end where it begins, between Bulgaria and Turkey—a long line of barbed wire extending north—and have now reached the other end, where it isn't even barbed wire but fans out into the east zone of Berlin.

One of the most important conclusions I've reached on this trip is that Winston Churchill did the democratic world a disservice when he talked about the border between Russia and the Western world as an iron curtain, because the border isn't as impervious as the word "iron" indicates. Not only is Stalin's curtain between the East and the West not even marked by barbed wire in many places, but it can be crossed fairly easily.

The border between Czechoslovakia and the American zone in Germany, for instance, can be crossed almost any night. In fact, it is crossed constantly by Germans who make their living smuggling goods back and forth.

The border between East and West Germany is like a sieve while, in Berlin, thousands of people walk or ride back and forth daily between the Russian and American zones. I entered the Russian zone without even knowing I was in it and drove through several miles of its battered streets. The only way you have of knowing you are in the Russian zone is through the signs on the streets which say: "You are now entering the democratic section of Berlin."

This fairly easy access into restricted areas behind the iron curtain raises one of the most important omissions on the part of the United States Government—namely, why are we not doing more to influence the people on the other side of the curtain? Obviously the curtain was rung down by Stalin for only one reason: Because he fears intercourse between East and West—he knew contact with the modern marvels of capitalism would make it difficult to keep the Russian people happy under communism.

Therefore our best bet to head off war obviously is to go over the Kremlin's head and reach the Russian people and the satellite millions also forced to remain behind the curtain.

Eager For Information

How effectively this can be done and how eager the satellites are for information about the U. S. A. is shown right here in Berlin, where our State Department is doing its most effective job of propaganda through radio station RIAS. This station, which gets its abbreviated name from "Radio In American Sector," was originally started by the Army but is now operated by three State Department radio men plus 600 Germans.

RIAS carries a regular schedule of radio entertainment not unlike the average American station with quiz programs having the highest Hooper rating and musical cabaret shows second. Interspersed through all these programs, however, are telling wisecracks and political comment which nickle-nursing Congressman John Taber of New York probably couldn't understand and wouldn't approve of but which have East Germans roaring with laughter—at the expense of Joe Stalin.

RIAS is so popular in Eastern Germany that when the Soviet held its big youth meeting in Berlin last December several thousand supposedly Communist youngsters called at the station out of friendly curiosity, while streams of letters pour into the RIAS offices each month from all parts of Soviet Germany.

One of the most popular features on RIAS is the evening news show at which the commentator uncovers a Communist agent in East Germany.

"You may know Hans Goering, the butcher on the corner of Wilhelmstrasse and Luxemburgplatz," says the commentator. "He may pretend to be your friend but he isn't. He's a Communist agent and is reporting what you do and say to the Soviet police."

East Germans eat this up and the East bureau of the Social Democratic party has kept RIAS well supplied with the names and details of Communist agents.

Lack Of Funds Hampers "Voice"

The State Department operates another Voice of America radio station in Salonika, near the southern end of the iron curtain, but because of insufficient funds, it hasn't really begun to scratch the surface of the iron curtain with effective propaganda.

One trouble with the Voice of America is that it operates via short wave. RIAS, on the other hand, operates on a standard wave and fits its programs right in on regular East German programs. And, being close to the scene, it covers local news, uses local wisecracks, and disseminates local political gossip. Making the Voice of America effective from 4,000 miles away is like publishing a newspaper in Chicago from a news desk located in London.

If, therefore, we are to puncture the easily punctured iron curtain, what we need is a series of local radio stations extending from Berlin to Turkey—one along the Czechoslovak border in the American zone of Germany broadcasting in Czech and Slovak languages, one in the American zone in Austria, one in Yugoslavia to reach nearby Hungary and Albania, and one in Turkey to reach Southern Russia.

Such a radio network would pay 100 per cent dividends in getting our ideas beyond and behind the iron curtain.

However, radio propaganda alone, while important, won't do the job. My examination of the iron curtain convinces me that, in addition, we could get all sorts of propaganda into satellite countries. Thousands of people in Czechoslovakia, Hungary and Poland are eager for information about the outside world and are even willing to risk their lives to get it and help disseminate it.

During the war we devised all sorts of schemes to get our propaganda behind the enemy lines. We devised waterproof propaganda leaflets, which could not be destroyed by rain. We devised small printing presses, which one man could carry and operate. We printed messages in Bibles and got them distributed in churches.

But we are neglecting much of this today. We are spending billions to rearm a reluctant Europe, many parts of which don't particularly want to be rearmed. Meanwhile, only a few millions spent on getting our propaganda behind the iron curtain might pay a bonanza of dividends for peace.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

War Prevention

DEAN ACHESON, in the course of his discussion before the Connally committee, said:

"So our first purpose—and this is something we need to make absolutely clear to our friends in Europe—is to deter the aggressors from attacking Europe. Our primary concern is not how to win a war after it gets started, but how to prevent it, and how to help Europe stay free in the meantime."

This seems to me poor reasoning, because no nation can go to war without feeling confident that it can win, and when steps are taken to prevent a war, they must be such as would convince the part of the second part that war does not pay.

The learned Secretary of State must have caught himself tripping, for he answers himself:

"There are three deterrent factors to be considered. One is the retalitatory power now in our possession—our capability of striking with air power against the centers of aggression. Another is the reserve power which helps to convince the Russians that they could not win in the end. And finally, there are the integrated forces in being of the North Atlantic Treaty nations."

Then he goes on to talk about the third deterrent, which is the one he likes, but it is obviously a side issue if the first one is not fully achieved. That means that we must be armed to the hilt and have a huge army before we can convince the Russians that war will not pay. Therefore, it is necessary to assess our capacities and those of our allies and the will to fight of the entire group of 12 nations in the North Atlantic Alliance. Unless there is a keen will to fight among these countries, what is there to deter Soviet Russia?

Surely the United States, a nation of 153,000,000, cannot alone produce the strength to fight an empire of 800,000,000 even with our advantage of production. The problem then comes down to ratios: What is the share that each of the members of the North Atlantic Alliance will put up? Dean Acheson does not say.

But the Secretary of State does say this:

"One reason why we cannot continue to rely on retaliatory air power as a sufficient deterrent is the effect of time. We have a substantial lead in air power and in atomic weapons. At the present moment, this may be the most powerful deterrent against aggression. But with the passage of time, even though we continue our advances in this field, the value of our lead diminishes."

Again, it is difficult to understand his reasoning. Why can we not maintain our "substantial lead in air power and in atomic weapons?" If, as he says, this has given us an advantage, why not keep the advantage?

The answer, of course, is that the more money we spend on ground forces, the less we shall have to spend on the airforce and atomic weapons. The supply of money is not unlimited. The 1951-1952 budget will probably run as high as $100,000,000,000. This comes during a period of distressing and frightening inflation.

The decision to use ground forces in Korea was an infantryman's error and has proved costly. Thus far, no evidence has been presented to Senator Connally's committee to prove that American ground forces are sufficient to deter Soviet Russia. Plenty of evidence has been

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — The question which recently upset markets and caused many a flurry of excitement in the last few days is this: "Is there a chance of an end soon to the war in Korea?"

Rumors of a peace settlement, even in the midst of big wars, usually have some basis which starts them going. When General Ridgway, our field commander in Korea, said the other day that our forces could consider that they had won a big victory upon reaching the 38th Parallel again, stock market observers jumped to the conclusion that this was about as far as our armies planned to go. But that wasn't really what General Ridgway meant. He was merely clearing the air for a settlement, if the Communists were really intent on making one. A somewhat similar hint came from General MacArthur, who said the best we could hope for in Korea was a stalemate, if the United Nations forces were not going to be permitted to bomb the Chinese bases of supply north of the Manchurian border.

Chinese Resources Drained

All this adds up to one thing—our military commanders in Korea are restless and are asking for some definition of purpose, some plan that will either let the UN forces liberate all of Korea by bombing the Red Chinese bases and occupying more and more North Korean territory, or else some plan that will permit the UN to negotiate a settlement by diplomacy.

Neither our commanders nor our high government officials intend to waste the fruits of victory by letting the Communists keep their control of North Korea. What they evidently do mean is that if the Chinese Communists have had enough—and they are taking frightful losses every day—maybe a way can be found to let them wiggle out with a negotiated settlement. But such a settlement undoubtedly would require that a plan for evacuation of all Korea by foreign troops would be agreed upon and that some guarantees or assurances would be given by the Communists that Korea will not be attacked again.

While the Chinese Communists may have unlimited manpower, they do not have unlimited supplies of arms or equipment. The Korean War has drained Chinese resources and already has prevented them from sending reinforcements to Indo-China and from starting trouble in Formosa. They also have their hands full now with more and more internal trouble.

It may be that the Chinese Communist leaders will try just one more offensive. The weather in Korea will be getting bad soon—bad for our fliers and for the movement of motor vehicles as the mud and rain slow down everything. Maybe after this last offensive the Red Chinese will be ready for a settlement. The climax in Korea certainly will come within a few months, perhaps weeks, and, just as the Communists suddenly gave up their blockade of Berlin, they may just as suddenly give up their war in Korea. For it is we who are winning the war against aggression by preventing the aggressor from attaining his objective.

Supply And Demand Reaction

There may be a connection between the rumors of peace in Korea and the recent drop in prices. The price readjustment, however, has been in the cards for some time. Tin and rubber prices went skyrocketing when the armament program was announced but, now that the government has stepped in and slowed down its stockpiling, those two commodity prices started downward. In fact, commodity prices generally are leveling off. This is to be noted in grain prices, too. For the last two weeks in February, the retail food index, issued by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, has shown a decline and food prices at wholesale continued a decline after that.

The price levels seem to suggest that maybe the peak in the Korean boom has been reached. What really is happening is that the old law of "supply and demand" is beginning to operate in certain categories of economic action. Some of those who built unusually large inventories of goods are discovering that demand is not as great as they thought, and that some of the hoarded stuff had better be moved, even if it requires lower prices.

The controversy over interest rates—whether the government should hold the bond market at a pegged price or give it a chance to find its own level—is also having some effect on the general situation. There is a testing going on. Bank credit is a target of attack, and an effort is being made to tighten it up, which means that some concerns with heavy inventories may be compelled to get rid of them in order to pay back their loans.

On top of this, a steady reconversion process is going on in industry and there may be some unemployment while the factories change over from civilian goods to the making of military goods. This is a deflationary aspect. It may be expected, however, that this situation will be only temporary, because the build-up of armament is to be larger instead of smaller during the next several months. The peak of our military production is not to come until a year or two from now.

Savers Need Help

By MARK SULLIVAN

WE ARE NOW in the ninth month since Korea created the necessity for controls over the country's economy, including and emphasizing arrest of inflation. We are in the eighth month since President Truman sent to Congress a request for legislation giving him authority to impose controls. We are in the sixth month since Congress gave Mr. Truman announced "ceilings" over prices and wages.

In the present stage, forces entering into what may be called the spiral mechanism accompanying inflation continue in motion. On the part of labor there is resistance to some of the ceilings the control agencies set up. To this resistance the reaction of control agencies is in part compromise, in part firmness. Some ceilings have been relaxed in deference to labor. On the other hand, Economic Stabilizer Eric Johnston a week ago turned down a wage raise of 11 cents an hour for workers in the meat packing industry, on the ground that the raise would pierce the ceiling that the control agency had set up. In general, much depends on the firmness of the control agencies and on whether they are supported by President Truman.

Future Made Uncertain

In a large area of ceilings over prices — that is, prices of farm crops — a condition exists which makes the future uncertain. In the law passed by Congress last September which created the control agencies, it was stipulated that no ceilings should be put over any farm crop selling below the parity price which the Department of Agriculture fixes. This covers a very large proportion of all farm crops. So long as these remain immune from imposition of ceilings by the control agencies, it is doubtful whether rising cost of living can be checked, hence whether rising wages can be checked, hence whether rising wages can be checked, hence whether the spiral mechanism that accompanies inflation can be checked. While control agency eads have made guarded statements about the immunity enjoyed by farm crops, they have made no formal request to Congress that it end this immunity. It is a common apprehension that so long as a large number of farm crops have immunity it will be difficult for the control agencies to effectively control the country's economy as a whole. There is speculation to the effect that President Truman may make the request of Congress which the control agencies are obviously reluctant to make.

The malevolent vitality of the wage-price spiral, its tendency to perpetuate itself automatically, is illustrated by an action that took place recently. The present action was an order by the Interstate Commerce Commission granting railroads increases of freight rates. Preceding this action were others that led up to it. First, railroad workers demanded increases in wage rates and got them. Thereupon the railroads computed the increased cost of service which the wage raises caused them. On this basis the railroads asked the Interstate Commerce Commission to grant increases in freight rates and the Commission did so. This sequence has taken place frequently.

Sacrifice Is Needed

From this point proceeds a far-reaching ramification. Increased freight rates cause increased prices of many kinds of goods that railroads carry, and increased prices of each line of goods ramify into others. As a specially dynamic example, coal carried by railroads is used as fuel in industries, and increased price of the fuel leads to increased prices of goods these industries make. Automatically reciprocal increases of wages and of prices go on throughout the whole of the country's economy.

The control agencies at Washington have the responsibility for checking the wage-price spiral and the inflation of which it is an accompaniment. The steps they take call for sacrifice on the part of many individuals and groups, and

BEARING THE CROSS

And they compel one Simon a Cyrenian, who passed by, coming out of the country, the father of Alexander and Rufus, to bear his cross. Mark 15:21 (K. J. V.). Read the chapter.

None of us will ever be able literally to carry the Cross of Jesus. That honor belongs to Simon of Cyrene alone. But cross-bearing is nevertheless a necessity to salvation.

Only now and then does a man meet with a great event. And successful living does not so much depend upon what he is compelled to do as upon the thought he brings to it. There was once a woman who made a supper for Jesus; another who poured ointment on his head; a man who gave him a grave. Little deeds! But they live in the pages of history and work their way into simple souls who stand and wait before God to whom great and small are terms that have no meaning.

Again, there is blessedness and honor in helping the Christian cause. Jesus stumbling on his Calvary road represents a spirit that is today struggling to make itself felt in the midst of an evil world. The honor of giving it impetus falls on us.

Let Us Pray: O God, may the knowledge of Jesus bearing his Cross teach us the joy of walking beside him in his sufferings. May it never be a burden, but a lift to our spirits. Amen.

The Old Second Guesser

By JOHN N. WHEELER

The Grass Roots Are 100% American

LA GRANGE, Ga.

AFTER listening to some of the intelligentsia around the big wheels, it is refreshing and encouraging to come to a small town and hear sentiments about the advantages of opportunity and regards for enterprise which made this country great. Usually when an orator refers to the "solid south" he ~~means~~ solid in favor of the Democratic party, but I got here the impression it also should stand for solid Americanism. When I mentioned this to a friend, he said,

"Remember our people are a pretty pure strain, and we are only two generations away from a devastating war, the effects of which we have had to overcome."

For the first ime in more than a year I traveled on a highclass train—the Crescent Limited, an all-Pullman conveyance. The trip was interesting and gave me a chance to observe my fellow passengers, although I hope I won't be considered snobbish when I hasten to add I avoided acquaintance with members of both sexes. Sitting in the club car, I noticed a fairly stylish lady who might be described as aging, and that would be giving her a break. She had blue hair.

There had been a gent, who was no springer himself, sitting at the table next to me sipping a drink, but he had stepped out to see a man about a fox terrier dog or something. Our heroine took the seat the male passenger had been occupying.

"There is someone sitting there," said the porter politely.

The woman moved to the other side of the table, and soon he came back, so shortly they were engaged in conversation, and he was picking up the tabs. I left, spending an hour or so reading, and then had my dinner. When I returned to smoke a cigar, the man had a collection of checks which looked like a deck of cards, and both were pretty "stiff". She said,

"I hope you won't tell your wife I picked you up, because I didn't mean to."

Why he should mention the matter to his wife at all was beyond my comprehension, especially as it turned out she was at home by her telephone, or supposed to be.

"My, my missus only worries about blondes," he answered with a certain lack of gallantry. She smiled and maybe by now she thought she fitted the description.

He rang for the porter and asked him to wake up a male traveling companion so they could all have dinner, and it looked to me like he was trying to shake the lady. In a few minutes the messenger returned with the information that his and the friend's car had been cut off at Washington and was now rolling south as part of the second section.

"Ye gods and little fishes," she said.

What he said to the porter, you could put in an asbestos capsule and still run some risk of an explosion.

"You heard me ask him whether my car stayed on the train," he kept repeating and, of course, she agreed. It turned out he could wait at Greenville for the other section and his baggage. He paid the checks and the last I saw of them they were weaving towards the diner.

When I arrived I found an invitation to go to the weekly Rotary Club luncheon, and I was a little skeptical. It used to be fashionable from the days when Sinclair Lewis, Henry Mencken, and George Jean Nathan were in their prime, to sneer at these small-town groups as boobs. Therefore, it was surpising

By JOHN N. WHEELER

LA GRANGE, Ga.

AFTER listening to some of the intelligentsia around the big wheels, it is refreshing and encouraging to come to a small town and hear sentiments about the advantages of opportunity and regards for enterprise which made this country great. Usually when an orator refers to the "solid south" he means solid in favor of the Democratic party, but I got here the impression it also should stand for solid Americanism. When I mentioned this to a friend, he said,

"Remember our people are a pretty pure strain, and we are only two generations away from a devastating war, the effects of which we have had to overcome."

For the first ime in more than a year I traveled on a highclass train—the Crescent Limited, an all-Pullman conveyance. The trip was interesting and gave me a chance to observe my fellow passengers, although I hope I won't be considered snobbish when I hasten to add I avoided acquaintance with members of both sexes. Sitting in the club car, I noticed a fairly stylish lady who might be described as aging, and that would be giving her a break. She had blue hair.

There had been a gent, who was no springer himself, sitting at the table next to me sipping a drink, but he had stepped out to see a man about a fox terrier dog or something. Our heroine took the seat the male passenger had been occupying.

"There is someone sitting there," said the porter politely.

The woman moved to the other side of the table, and soon he came back, so shortly they were engaged in conversation, and he was picking up the tabs. I left, spending an hour or so reading, and then had my dinner. When I returned to smoke a cigar, the man had a collection of checks which looked like a deck of cards, and both were pretty "stiff". She said,

"I hope you won't tell your wife I picked you up, because I didn't mean to."

Why he should mention the matter to his wife at all was beyond my comprehension, especially as it turned out she was at home by her fireside, or supposed to be.

"My, my missus only worries about blondes," he answered with a certain lack of gallantry. She smiled and maybe by now she thought she fitted the description.

He rang for the porter and asked him to wake up a male traveling companion so they could all have dinner, and it looked to me like he was trying to shake the lady. In a few minutes the messenger returned with the information that his and the friend's car had been cut off at Washington and was now rolling south as part of the second section.

"Ye gods and little fishes," she said.

What he said to the porter, you could put in an asbestos capsule and still run some risk of an explosion.

"You heard me ask him whether my car stayed on the train," he kept repeating and, of course, she agreed. It turned out he could wait at Greenville for the other section and his baggage. He paid the checks and the last I saw of them they were weaving towards the diner.

When I arrived I found an invitation to go to the weekly Rotary Club luncheon, and I was a little skeptical. It used to be fashionable from the days when Sinclair Lewis, Henry Mencken, and George Jean Nathan were in their prime, to sneer at these small-town groups as boobs. Therefore, it was surpising

"HOW I RELIEVE DISTRESS of MONTHLY FEMALE AILMENTS which make me so nervous several days before!" Read why Lydia Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is 'the woman's friend'

"Almost every month I suffered from cramps, headache, or backache—due to female functional ailments. What bothered me most was that I'd start feeling so nervous, tense and strangely restless several days before my period.

"My druggist recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to relieve this distress. He told me to take it regularly throughout the month to help build up resistance against such female misery. (It tastes swell in a little fruit juice.) I must say Lydia Pinkham's Compound is simply wonderful and gives me amazing relief—not only from monthly pain but pre-period nervous tension and tired, dragged-out feelings of this nature. I urge every girl and woman troubled this way to try Pinkham's Compound."

P. S. Many women prefer Lydia Pinkham's TABLETS with added iron. Handy to carry in purse.

An unusual and interesting feature of tomorrow nights regular Duplicate Bridge Club session, in the ballroom of the Fort Cumberland Hotel, is that all the bridge hands in the 24 boards, will be prepared in advance and all players will have an opportunity to play the cards the way the experts say they should be played, Albert Heacox, president, announces.

The team that plays the boards the nearest to the experts' method will be tomorrow night's winners, he says.

The 1500 programmes of the first annual Sectional Tournament, which the local club and the American Contract Bridge League are promoting at the Cumberland Country Club, April 14, 15, were mailed from the New York headquarters o all bridge clubs in Pennsylvania, Maryland, West Virginia and Washington, Mr. Heacox said last night.

There are 200 programmes available for the local players to send to their personal friends and will be distributed at tomorrow nights session.

Fred L. Karpin, a life master from Washington, and a feature writer of the "Bridge World" and other bridge publications, will be here with a group of Washington players for the tournament, next month, Mr. Heacox announces.

Ensign Margaret Logsdon, NNC, who has been stationed at the Philadelphia Naval Hospital, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Logsdon, 108 North Smallwood Street, before reporting for duty at Camp LeJeune, N. C., April 3.

The fire brigade immediately arrived on the scene and put out the fire, showing true Stalinist discipline in their work.

"They used new fire hoses manufactured at The Joseph Stalin Factory.

"Only under the wise leadership of the genius Stalin was it possible to prepare such efficient hoses. Again, Comrade Stalin has heartened the workers and has shown them the right road."

For a little daughter, turn a weekly manicure session into fun! It's the way to cultivate hand loveliness.

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

It's never too soon in the life of a little lass to start cultivating hand loveliness. Good habits are sure to turn ten little fingers into two beautiful hands. Let your little girl's introduction to hand care be fun!

To make her feel importantly adult at the time of her weekly manicure, turn the bathroom into a "let's-pretend" beauty salon. Through just such simple make-believe, you can teach her correct hand-care methods and instill life-long pride in pretty, groomed hands.

Pretty Little Fingers

Let her help you gather all the equipment before you start. You will need an emery board, oatmeal, baking soda, a soft nail brush, your own bottle of facial oil, cuticle nipper and a new type of instrument, available for a few cents, which is an orange stick with a small nylon brush at one end.

Start by shaping the nails with the emery. Keep them short but oval to encourage graceful finger-tips in later years. After the nails are shaped, run your fingers over them to detect any snagging edges.

Now have the child soak both hands in the basin of warm water to which you have added two tablespoons of dry, uncooked oatmeal, two teaspoons of baking soda and enough mild soap for rich suds. After a moment, brush under the nails, across the knuckles and wrists with the nail brush. Should a speck of grime remain under the nails, remove it with the little brush attached to the orange stick.

Growing Loveliness

Rinse the hands thoroughly, pat them dry and massage a small quantity of your facial oil into the hands, wrists and elbows. Pay particular attention to the cuticle. While the oil soaks into the skin, go over each nail with the flat of the orange stick, pushing the cuticle back gently. (Never cut it—if a hangnail develops, remove it with nippers.

Next rinse and dry the hands. To cultivate pride—and to banish nail biting — apply a thin coat of nail protector which is colorless and lustreless. The little lady will feel so grown-up that the first thing you know, she'll master this manicure technique herself. Then you can make a pleasant, companion-duet of your manicure sessions!

NEW YORK (INS)

YOUNG GRIFFO was an old time fighter who, in blowsy retirement, used to make coffee and cake by dropping a handkerchief on a bar room floor and betting any stew in the joint that the stew could not hit him in the head with a punch.

Young Griffo would not move the handkerchief. He'd just weave and bob, and in time the stew would have to pay off. Between these bouts, Young Griffo also could pick up a buck or two by catching flies with his index finger and thumb. He was a fast man, and the artful dodger to end them all.

Well, he was a bum compared to some of the punch slippers we've had on the stand in the Kefauver hearing. Sample:

"What's your name?"

"I refuse to answer on the ground it might incriminate me."

"Did you have a meeting on September 17, 1934, at the Brass Knuckles A.C. with Butch McGlook, Mahem Murphy, and Shifty Shaughnessy?"

"Who, me?"

"Yes. Did you?"

"I didn't get the question. Would you repeat it?"

• — • — •

The question is repeated.

"Oh, you mean September 17, 1934, at the Brass Knuckles A.C., right? No, I didn't go to no meeting there."

"Well now, Mr. O'Gargantua, were you there on that date?"

"Sure."

"Did you talk with McGlook, Murphy and Shaughnessy there?"

"I did and I didn't."

"Did you?"

"Yeah. But it wasn't no meeting. Just a get-together to discuss things."

Then we had Walter Ahearn, the greatest detective since Perry Mason.

"Are you trying to tell us that you've worked in Saratoga for 18 years, and part of that time for such clubs as Piping Rock and Arrowhead Inn and you didn't know they had gambling there?"

"What gambling?"

And then "Honest Mike" Borelli, stalward "scourge" of Hoboken gambling.

"Have you read Malcolm Johnson's 'Crime On The Labor Front?'"

"I don't believe what's in that book."

"Did you read it?"

"I didn't care to."

And Bully-Boy Ed Florio, paunchy Hoboken longshoremen's organizer.

• — • — •

"'Crime On The Labor Front' charges that you got your job by maneuvering with Joe Ryan, president of the International Longshoremen's Association. How about that?" he was asked.

"I deny it."

"Then how did you get the job?"

"I asked Ryan for it."

"What about violence on the waterfront? What about the bombings?"

"That wasn't violence."

My two favorite witnesses during the endless Monday session were Johnny Broderick, the tough ex-cop, and a Mr. Rosenblat.

Mr. Broderick appeared out of the blue in answer to a passing remark by Sen. Tobey earlier in the day to the effect that "one Broderick, said to be an ex-cop, gets $25 a nite for taking gamblers over to Jersey."

Johnny came to the stand, was sworn in, blurted "I'm not that Broderick. I'm the one who beat Costello's man Toplitz. I don't fear Costello or all his gunmen;" and left.

Mr. Rosenblat was an even more concise witness. His name was called by Bill O'Dwyer, to confirm O'Dwyer's contention that Sen. Tobey's home state of New Hampshire is a bookie's paradise.

"Is Mr. Rosenblat here?" O'Dwyer called several times.

He wasn't, and therefore endeared himself to the reporters who by then were suffering several cases of "the bends" from writer's cramp.

If there were some way to strip a Cadillac of every identifying emblem it possesses, and judge it solely by the way it rides and handles and performs—it would still be quickly recognizable as the "Standard of the World."

But think what a Cadillac brings you in addition to the solid value of its engineering and performance and comfort and handling ease—the wonderful Cadillac name!

Perhaps in all the world, there is no inanimate object which speaks so eloquently as the Cadillac shield. It talks of background, of progress, and of faultless workmanship. It proclaims a promise of years and years of the utmost motoring satisfaction. It speaks of its owner, and identifies him as a man of accomplishment and discrimination.

In fact, there is nothing good and wonderful a motor car can bring that isn't promised or implied by the beautiful Cadillac shield. And it speaks a universal language, which is understood and appreciated the wide world over.

And remember, you pay no extra penalty for the pride and pleasure of having this great and distinguished name. They come as a "special dividend" with every Cadillac car.

We deeply regret that we are unable to deliver new Cadillac cars without some delay. But the demand for the car is unprecedented—and much of the company's energies and materials are now being devoted to the needs of national security. Once the car is delivered into your hands, however, we know you'll agree that—patience never brought a richer reward.

Former Eckhart Man Enters Baltimore Mayoralty Race

A native of Eckhart will be running for the Republican nomination for Mayor of Baltimore when the primaries are held this spring.

He is Joseph L. Carter, attorney, and chairman of the Maryland Republican Central Committee. He was born at Eckhart, July 20, 1904, and at the age of 18 went to Baltimore.

An old friend and classmate of Governor McKeldin, Carter was the successful campaign manager for McKeldin when he was elected Mayor in 1943 and when he was elected governor last fall.

Carter financed his way through the night law school of the University of Maryland by working for the Fidelity and Deposit Company.

He and McKeldin both worked for this firm while attending night classes. Upon his admission to the bar, he continued as claim attorney in the company's trust department. He began the private practice of law in 1930.

A lifelong Republican, he was appointed assistant U. S. attorney, under Simon E. Sobeloff, in 1932, and served until 1934.

During McKeldin's administration as mayor of Baltimore, he served on the City Planning Commission.

Carter is a director of the Baltimore Civic Opera Company and has served as a trustee and treasurer of Morgan State College.

Swallows On Schedule

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO, Calif., March 20 (AP)—Right on schedule, the swallows swooped down on Mission San Juan Capistrano yesterday.

They flew north out of the dawn and were on hand to greet the mission gardeners when they arrived for work about 6 a. m. (PST), Father Arthur J. Hutchinson, OFM, reported.

Local Historians note that the swallows have almost invariably arrived on St. Joseph's Day, March 19.

Sid Gordon of Boston tied a National League record when he hit four homers with the bases loaded during the 1950 season.

Former LaVale Man Quits Post In West Virginia

M. Burns Stanley, formerly of LaVale, has resigned his position as assistant attorney general of the State of West Virginia to enter private industry.

Stanley will become a member of the legal staff of the Ford Motor Company at Detroit on April 15.

A native of Bluefield, W. Va., he was graduated from Allegany High School in 1938. He received his bachelor's degree from Emory University and during World War II served as a lieutenant in the Marine Corps. He was wounded on Saipan.

Stanley was graduated from Harvard Law School and in September 1948 became head of the gross sales tax division of the Tax Commission of West Virginia. He became assistant attorney general for the Tax Commission in October, 1949.

He is married to the former Miss Alice Keller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Keller, 776 Fayette Street.

Stanley, a son of Rolley S. Stanley, former head of the police department at the Celanese Corporation plant here, and now of Hartford, Conn., will be replaced in Charleston by Joseph E. Hodgson, Fayetteville, W. Va.

Hodgson, 37, was born in Morgantown, W. Va., and lived later in Keyser, and was graduated from the West Virginia University School of Law in 1938. He practiced law in Keyser and in 1940 was elected prosecuting attorney of Mineral county.

During his four years in the Army during World War II, he was assigned to the Criminal Investigation Division in India and to the War Crimes Investigation Division in Singapore.

Hodgson became a legal assistant in the West Virginia State Department of Unemployment Compensation in 1946, but the following year went to Fayetteville to practice law.

Goss Freed Under Bond In Bookie Case

State Asks Trial In Circuit Court

Raymond Henry Goss, 214 Maryland Avenue, arraigned in Trial Magistrate's Court on a state gaming charge, will appear in Circuit Court at the April term, according to Paul M. Fletcher, state's attorney.

Goss waived his right to jury trial when arraigned before Magistrate Frank A. Perdew, but the state requested trial in Circuit Court.

Bond was fixed at $500 and Goss was released when Jesse E. Hopcraft, 219 Maryland Avenue, posted surety.

The action was the result of a raid on a downtown alleged "bookie" establishment over the weekend.

The charge against Goss reads that he "did on March 17 keep rent, occupy and maintain a building (23 Mechanic Street) for the purpose of gambling, betting or making bets, selling pools or books on the result of any race or contest."

Lt. Edwin R. Lilya, head of the Cumberland Police Department Detective Bureau, led the raid Saturday and confiscated a loud speaker, several telephones, pencils, papers, marked racing forms and books.

It was learned the "search and seizure" warrant for the raid was prepared by the state's attorney's office at the request of City Attorney W. Earle Cobey, and with the knowledge of Police Commissioner John J. Long.

The warrant was signed by Associate Judge Morgan C. Harris on the oath of Lt. Lilya, who obtained the gaming warrant yesterday before Goss was required to post bond in court.

Commissioner Long referred to the raid at Monday's meeting of the Mayor and Council, and commented more will be heard of the action later.

Carter financed his way through the night law school of the University of Maryland by working for the Fidelity and Deposit Company.

He and McKeldin both worked for this firm while attending night classes. Upon his admission to the bar, he continued as claim attorney in the company's trust department. He began the private practice of law in 1930.

A lifelong Republican, he was appointed assistant U. S. attorney, under Simon E. Sobeloff, in 1932, and served until 1934.

During McKeldin's administration as mayor of Baltimore, he served on the City Planning Commission.

Carter is a director of the Baltimore Civic Opera Company and has served as a trustee and treasurer of Morgan State College.

Swallows On Schedule

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO, Calif., March 20 (AP)—Right on schedule, the swallows swooped down on Mission San Juan Capistrano yesterday.

They flew north out of the dawn and were on hand to greet the mission gardeners when they arrived for work about 6 a. m. (PST), Father Arthur J. Hutchinson, OFM, reported.

Local Historians note that the swallows have almost invariably arrived on St. Joseph's Day, March 19.

Sid Gordon of Boston tied a National League record when he hit four homers with the bases loaded during the 1950 season.

Former LaVale Man Quits Post In West Virginia

M. Burns Stanley, formerly of LaVale, has resigned his position as assistant attorney general of the State of West Virginia to enter private industry.

Stanley will become a member of the legal staff of the Ford Motor Company at Detroit on April 15.

A native of Bluefield, W. Va., he was graduated from Allegany High School in 1938. He received his bachelor's degree from Emory University and during World War II served as a lieutenant in the Marine Corps. He was wounded on Saipan.

Stanley was graduated from Harvard Law School and in September 1948 became head of the gross sales tax division of the Tax Commission of West Virginia. He became assistant attorney general for the Tax Commission in October, 1949.

He is married to the former Miss Alice Keller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Keller, 776 Fayette Street.

Stanley, a son of Rolley S. Stanley, former head of the police department at the Celanese Corporation plant here, and now of Hartford, Conn., will be replaced in Charleston by Joseph E. Hodgson, Fayetteville, W. Va.

Hodgson, 37, was born in Morgantown, W. Va., and lived later in Keyser, and was graduated from the West Virginia University School of Law in 1938. He practiced law in Keyser and in 1940 was elected prosecuting attorney of Mineral county.

During his four years in the Army during World War II, he was assigned to the Criminal Investigation Division in India and to the War Crimes Investigation Division in Singapore.

Hodgson became a legal assistant in the West Virginia State Department of Unemployment Compensation in 1946, but the following year went to Fayetteville to practice law.

Goss Freed Under Bond In Bookie Case

State Asks Trial In Circuit Court

Raymond Henry Goss, 214 Maryland Avenue, arraigned in Trial Magistrate's Court on a state gaming charge, will appear in Circuit Court at the April term, according to Paul M. Fletcher, state's attorney.

Goss waived his right to jury trial when arraigned before Magistrate Frank A. Perdew, but the state requested trial in Circuit Court.

Bond was fixed at $500 and Goss was released when Jesse E. Hopcraft, 219 Maryland Avenue, posted surety.

The action was the result of a raid on a downtown alleged "bookie" establishment over the weekend.

The charge against Goss reads that he "did on March 17 keep rent, occupy and maintain a building (23 Mechanic Street) for the purpose of gambling, betting or making bets, selling pools or books on the result of any race or contest."

Lt. Edwin R. Lilya, head of the Cumberland Police Department Detective Bureau, led the raid Saturday and confiscated a loud speaker, several telephones, pencils, papers, marked racing forms and books.

It was learned the "search and seizure" warrant for the raid was prepared by the state's attorney's office at the request of City Attorney W. Earle Cobey, and with the knowledge of Police Commissioner John J. Long.

The warrant was signed by Associate Judge Morgan C. Harris on the oath of Lt. Lilya, who obtained the gaming warrant yesterday before Goss was required to post bond in court.

Commissioner Long referred to the raid at Monday's meeting of the Mayor and Council, and commented more will be heard of the action later.

I got a Fresh Start with a cash loan at HFC

"Ever get in a spot where you needed extra cash fast? I guess we all do at one time or another. Well, I needed $300 to clean up some old bills. I was plenty worried—until a friend of mine recommended Household Finance. So I phoned HFC. I got a pleasant surprise. I found I could borrow three ways—on my signature, car or furniture. And I could get as little as $20 or as much as $1000 and repay it in monthly instalments. Best of all, I didn't need endorsers or guarantors.

"And talk about service! Take my word for it, HFC is really a friendly, helpful place to do business. And HFC specializes in fast service. I got money I needed right then, without the slightest embarrassment.

Annual Spring Visits Made By Delegations

A stormy session of the Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday saw Millard Hughes, spokesman for a delegation from the Town Creek Club, and Commissioners William H. Lemmert and James Holmes clash over road-building in the eastern area of the county.

Hughes stated the residents of the Lower Town Creek section felt the board did not give that area much consideration as it failed to provide for two miles of hardsurfaced construction on the Lower Town Creek Road. Hughes said that Lemmert had promised that two miles would be built, but that only one mile has been included in the federal aid program for this year.

Lemmert and Holmes took exception to Hughes' statements in general and pointed out the two miles of road were to be built if money was available. They also stated that failure of property owners along the road to grant right-of-ways promptly also delayed the projected work.

The case of one man who wanted $500 for five walnut trees in front of his property was cited as an example of the snags in obtaining rights-of-ways. Surveys have been made by the State Roads Commission for the additional mile in question, but the county board said the necessary money is not available.

Part of the heated discussion was a rehash of arguments concerning the inclusion of the Mill Run Road in the Georges Creek area near Barton in the county's federal aid road building program. Both Lemmert and Holmes said the Mill Run project affected quite a bit of traffic and was one of the first roads considered for the federal aid program.

The county commissioners also told Hughes that the eastern section of the county has been given as much consideration as other areas.

Members of the board told the group that the two throughfares in question were not bona fide county roads and that the board would have to wait until after the next levy to determine if there would be money available for the repairs.

The group said that a bad sewage situation prevails in the area due to seepage from septic tanks and other sewers. They declared the Allegany County Health Department has jurisdiction on this. It was also pointed out that sewage disposal is the responsibility of the property owner involved.

A graduate of Allegany High School, Storey works in the traffic department of the University station. He was a member of the 1947 state championship basketball team and also played football. At the university he is a member of Alpha Delta Sigma, professional advertising fraternity.

State May Buy County Owned Land

Several tracts of rugged land on the east side of Dan's Mountain comprising about 1,490 acres have been offered by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners to the State Game and Inland Fish Commission for use as a public hunting grounds.

Leslie J. Clark, local attorney, appeared before the county board yesterday as the representative of the state agency. Clark said the state wishes to take options on the land and he listed the tracts involved.

All of the land reverted to the county in tax sales. Located in the Big Survey tract, the land has been offered to the state for $2.50 per acre. Members of the county board said that the land is to be used for wildlife purposes and will be a fine addition to public hunting grounds in the county.

The area is covered by scrub growth and had been cut over by timber men years ago. The state is buying approximately 5,000 acres in the Dan's Mountain area for use in its wildlife program.

A large part of the money to be spent acquiring the land will come from federal funds provided under an act of Congress to propagate wild life and provide public hunting grounds.

Besides aiding in the program of the State Game and Inland Fish Commission the action of the county board yesterday will take more or less useless land off the tax books and bring in $3,925 to the county.

Annual Spring Visits Made By Delegations

A stormy session of the Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday saw Millard Hughes, spokesman for a delegation from the Town Creek Club, and Commissioners William H. Lemmert and James Holmes clash over road-building in the eastern area of the county.

Hughes stated the residents of the Lower Town Creek section felt the board did not give that area much consideration as it failed to provide for two miles of hardsurfaced construction on the Lower Town Creek Road. Hughes said that Lemmert had promised that two miles would be built, but that only one mile has been included in the federal aid program for this year.

Lemmert and Holmes took exception to Hughes' statements in general and pointed out the two miles of road were to be built if money was available. They also stated that failure of property owners along the road to grant right-of-ways promptly also delayed the projected work.

The case of one man who wanted $500 for five walnut trees in front of his property was cited as an example of the snags in obtaining rights-of-ways. Surveys have been made by the State Roads Commission for the additional mile in question, but the county board said the necessary money is not available.

Part of the heated discussion was a rehash of arguments concerning the inclusion of the Mill Run Road in the Georges Creek area near Barton in the county's federal aid road building program. Both Lemmert and Holmes said the Mill Run project affected quite a bit of traffic and was one of the first roads considered for the federal aid program.

The county commissioners also told Hughes that the eastern section of the county has been given as much consideration as other areas.

Members of the board told the group that the two throughfares in question were not bona fide county roads and that the board would have to wait until after the next levy to determine if there would be money available for the repairs.

The group said that a bad sewage situation prevails in the area due to seepage from septic tanks and other sewers. They declared the Allegany County Health Department has jurisdiction on this. It was also pointed out that sewage disposal is the responsibility of the property owner involved.

State May Buy County Owned Land

Several tracts of rugged land on the east side of Dan's Mountain comprising about 1,490 acres have been offered by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners to the State Game and Inland Fish Commission for use as a public hunting grounds.

Leslie J. Clark, local attorney, appeared before the county board yesterday as the representative of the state agency. Clark said the state wishes to take options on the land and he listed the tracts involved.

All of the land reverted to the county in tax sales. Located in the Big Survey tract, the land has been offered to the state for $2.50 per acre. Members of the county board said that the land is to be used for wildlife purposes and will be a fine addition to public hunting grounds in the county.

The area is covered by scrub growth and had been cut over by timber men years ago. The state is buying approximately 5,000 acres in the Dan's Mountain area for use in its wildlife program.

A large part of the money to be spent acquiring the land will come from federal funds provided under an act of Congress to propagate wild life and provide public hunting grounds.

Besides aiding in the program of the State Game and Inland Fish Commission the action of the county board yesterday will take more or less useless land off the tax books and bring in $3,925 to the county.

Industry And Revenue

To The Editor of The News,
Sir:

I have read the article in The Sunday Times paper by Staff Writer John Byrd, Jr., relative to statements of Mr. Richardson Wood, city and county industrial consultant.

Frankly, I wish I could say that after reading the article, that same degree of optimism as expressed by Mr. Wood was as deeply imbued in my mind. But no. I still have that same old feeling and it is this, "Unless those people who are charged with the moral responsibility of the welfare of the people of the tri-state area use the brains that God gave them," make a proper analysis of the ills that have contributed to our economic unrest and security, then the only optimistic outlook I, as a parent, can entertain for the future is that my son may, after completing his primary education, enlist in the United States Army or walk the streets; my daughter can either stay at home and help take care of the house or find some menial employment; or the other alternative of leaving home and going to some town or city where they do have initiative and have provided those inducements that all industries demand and must have.

I had hoped that the firm of which Mr. Wood is the head, would by this time have been able to tell the people of this area what has been the contributing factor to the loss or lack of industrial facilities in Allegany County and then have been in a position to offer the corrective measures. In other words he could have furnished the window dressing to enable us citizens to sell Cumberland and the surrounding area. By window dressing I mean providing some inducement for industry to want to locate in Cumberland, abolishing the harassments that keep industry away.

The citing of the Frostburg situation, namely the Berkowitz pajama factory, is creditable only to the people of Frostburg. If the people of Allegany County must use that as a yardstick for every future industrial accomplishment, then I would say that the cost is not only too great but the means will prove unsound for general practice. Our problem is not a local one, but one that effects the entire area and was recognized as such when the county authorities were asked to contribute to the payment of fees for the above named industrial consultants. Does the potential exist in this area to secure adequate industry for our economic needs as a growing community? Personally I believe it does; I also believe that it may become a reality if the people of the area are acquainted with all the basci facts relative to our needs.

First, I believe we should determine the derogatory factors that must be recognized and then, if possible, eliminate those factors. I would enumerate them not in their importance but as they come to mind, thus: The high prevailing tax rate in the county, high utilities and general public practices that are classified as contributing harassments to the welfare of industrial expansion and continuity of employment. These factors must be eliminated if we are to compete with other sections of the nation in securing new industry; until we do so every cent we spend either with consultants or other ideas of promotion is so much wasted. In other words we've just got to sell the package with the coupon on the back.

To correct the above abuses I would suggest that while the Legislature is still in session, whether it be by constitutional amendment or by general law, that proper authority be given those in charge of such matters, to exempt of any and all taxes, both municipal and county. That suggestion to apply to existing industry as well as potential.

That the Legislature grant the County Commissioners the authority to issue bonds to pay the cost of constructing an adequate water line from the Savage River Dam down the Potomac River Valley to Cumberland as an added inducement for industry to locate in that area bordering the Western Maryland and Baltimore and Ohio Railroads between Westernport and Cumberland.

That local authorities endeavor to secure an adequate working agreement with local utilities without interference from the Public Service Commission of Maryland. I believe that this can be done a basis of profit by expansion and that the utility will cooperate fully.

In order that the burden of these corrective measures be not placed entirely on the taxpayers of the county by additional taxes and that we be able to meet existing problems of taxation that also play a part in making Cumberland and other sections of Allegany County a worthwhile package to sell, in that we are a community that is able to take care of our public servants, such as muncipial employes, policemen, firemen, street workers. etc., our county teachers and other county employes, I have suggestions to make. It is indeed unfortunate that at a time when we are in the midst of a multi-million dollar school building program, we must tell teachers and other employes we are unable to keep pace with industry in the payment of wages.

The cost of defraying all the expenses I have enumerated above can be done if the officials of this county will only look to the east of us and see what Montgomery County has accomplished by going after revenue in the proper direction. They have taken over the wholesale part of the retail of alcoholic beverages in that country.

So I suggest that local authorities recommend to the members of the Legislature a bill providing for the county wholesaling of all liquor sold here, and the establishing of county-owned retail outlets for packaged goods to compete with bordering states and acquire the needed additional revenue.

As there has been a great deal of good service, such as the building of hospitals, and in the case of the City of Annapolis where the city fathers were faced with a 20-cent increases in taxes, they increased the license fees on slot machines, I suggest a bill providing for a referendum on the legalizing of slot and other machines of chance. Let's not be hypocritical in this matter. Today the state and county are benefitting from the legalized horse racing and I believe that every source of revenue should be explored.

Mr. Editor, my letter has proven much longer than I anticipated; it may be attributed to the fact that I as a citizen am deeply interested in the future of Cumberland and the surrounding area. I am fully aware of the economic plight of many of the good citizens of this county, as hardly a day goes by that I do not have requests from men and women

Sailor And Ex-Marine To Tangle At Boston

BOSTON, March 20 (AP) — Irish Bob Murphy, the slugging sailor from San Diego, and Boston's "dynamite" Joe Rindone have been signed to fight in Boston Garden April 16, the Callahan A. C. said tonight.

Promoter Sam Silverman said Murphy, who weighed in at 177 pounds for his recent technical knockout win over Danny Bucceroni of Philadelphia in Madison Square Garden, has agreed to get down to 172 for Rindone.

Rindone, a 28-year-old ex-marine, was at 164½ for his recent draw with middleweight Paul Pender here. Joe, a sturdy aggressive puncher, gave a good account of himself before being kayoed by Sugar Ray Robinson and also lost a close decision to France's Robert Villemain.

In an unprecedented happening in North American horse racing, French-bred horses finished one-two-three in the same race this season at Hialeah.

Capt. Tichnell, Tim Clark Get Barton Awards

150 Attend Affair Honoring Champions, Suter Kegg Speaker

BARTON, March 20—Thomas J. "Tim" Clark and Capt. Arnold Tichnell were presented sportsmanship awards at the dinner held tonight in Barton High School in honor of the school's state championship Class "B" basketball team.

Clark received the award offered by Kirk's Confectionery—an engraved belt buckle and belt—which was presented by David Kirk. A $5 cash award, donated by "two friends," was presented by Paul Footen to Arnold Tichnell, center, captain and leading scorer of the team.

The dinner was served in the cafeteria and the remainder of the program was held in the school auditorium. Footen acted as toastmaster.

J. Suter Kegg, sports editor of the Cumberland Evening Times and Sunday Times, was the principal speaker. The address of welcome was delivered by Miss Emma Schramm, president of the Student Council which sponsored the affair. Among others who spoke were John J. Thomas, coach of Barton's 1950 and 1951 Maryland Class "C" champions; Alfred H. Benna, principal, and Capt. Tichnell.

William Hyde sang "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling," Joyce Moore presented "Nevertheless" and "I Don't Know Why" and William Frankenberry, William Hyde, William Brown and Bobby Lee Montgomery entertained with instrumental selections. Mrs. Doris Mitchell was accompanist. Two school cheers were presented by the cheerleaders.

A tape recording of the final quarter of the championship game in which Barton defeated Ocean City last Saturday afternoon at College Park was played and enjoyed by the 150 persons present.

Phillips' Oilers Breeze To Victory

DENVER, March 20 (AP)—Phillips 66ers from Bartlesville, Okla., opened defense of their National AAU basketball championship today with a 95-53 breeze over a collection of Wyoming University freshmen.

Hutchinson Hurls Bombshell Into Commissioner Squabble

Players In Majors Ask Part In Picking Chandler Successor

TAMPA, Fla., March 20 (AP)—Top drawer baseball reaction ran the gamut from chagrin to shocked silence today following the suggestion that ball players be given a voice in naming the new commissioner.

Detroit pitcher Freddie Hutchinson, official player-representative of the American League, threw the bombshell into the seething commissioner squabble with the statement yesterday that owners will be petitioned in July to give the players a part in choosing a successor to A. B. Chandler.

If the owners don't agree to this, Hutchinson warned in Lakeland, Fla., then the players may go out and hire a man of their own—maybe the deposed Happy Chandler, himself.

"Players feel we could pay a commissioner $40,000 a year to represent us," the Tiger pitcher added. "That would be an assessment of $100 a player for the 400 major leaguers."

Bob Carpenter, president of the Philadelphia Phillies, expressed shock at the idea.

St. Louis Cardinals owner Fred Saigh, who led the anti-Chandler forces, said if the players knew the facts they would go along with what the owners are doing.

"Actually the gains they made were through their own representatives' efforts," Saigh said, "not what the commissioner did for them."

The Washington Senators' Clark Griffith, militantly pro-Chandler, said of the players' move: "I don't believe it would pan out although I would dearly love for them (the players) to like and respect their new commissioner, but players come and go so much I'm afraid it would spread out too thick."

Warren Giles of Cincinnati asserted: "A general majority of the players realize the advantages they have as professional ball players and that they are being treated fairly," Giles said.

Hutchinson was sharply critical of owner policy, saying the average player felt the owners refused to renew Chandler's contract because the commissioner had done a lot for the ball players which had never been done before.

Koszarek Is Champ

By C. V. BURNS

Lou Koszarek, of Portage, Pa. now a member of the Penn State College boxing team, won the Eastern Intercollegiate Boxing Association's 165-pound championship recently by decisioning Billy Maher of Catholic U. in the annual tourney at Charlottesville, Va.

Lou will compete in the national championship tourney at Michigan State College, April 5-7.

Koszarek flattened Lou Morin of Army in the second round of the Eastern tourney's semi-final.

Local amateur fistic fans will recall that Koszarek appeared in two shows here in 1948 and won both matches. He knocked out Robert "Red" Howard, Washington, D. C., in five rounds and earned the nod over "Skeets" Starkey in five. In fact, Koszarek's left hooks floored Starkey twice in the third round of their match.

Mike Valan, owner of the Wheeling Blues, told us Sunday night that he will not enter a team in the All-American Pro League if the circuit is in operation next winter. The reason: Mike doesn't like to set-up and it's costing him too much money.

The Blues really "moidered" the Spas this season, winning seven out of the eight games. When the campaign started Wheeling held a 14-12 edge over Cumberland in games won in three years of league play. Now it's 21-13.

• — • — •

The Spas foul shooting in Sunday's game in which they were eliminated from the playoffs even though they tied Wheeling in field goals 33-33, was the local team's worst performance in 31 contests this season.

The 11 out of 29 for an average of .379 was lower than the 8 for 21 and .381 or the 13 for 33 and .394 earlier in the season against Erie and Johnstown.

In a game against Altoona the locals made 18 out of 20 for .900. Three other times the Spas hit above 85 per cent with 25-28, 22-25 and 23-27.

Les Cosgrove of Mt. St. Mary's College, Emmitsburg, led the Maryland college scorers for 1950-51 with 596 points, 126 of which he tallied in the Catholic tourney at Albany, N. Y.

Nick Scallion, Washington College, was 2nd with 592 and Art (Western Maryland) Press was next with 589.

CHISOX BLANK YANKS

GLENDALE, Calif., March 20 (AP) —The Chicago White Sox embarrassed Yankee manager Casey Stengel in his own home town this afternoon by shutting out the New York club, 5-0 before an overflow crowd of 4,117. The champions could get only four hits off the pitching of rookies Hal Brown and Marv Rotblatt, these being shared by Hank Bauer and Phil Rizzuto. Rotblatt permitted but one single over the last five innings.

The Sox slammed 11 safeties, with Shortstop Chico Carrasquel getting three of them. The infielder also starred afield with 11 chances, nine of them assists. Score:

Big Ten Champs Bag 79-71 Win Before 17,107 Fans In Garden

St. John's Conquers Connecticut, 63-52

NEW YORK, March 20 (AP) — Illinois splintered Columbia's proud unbeaten record 79-71, on the phenomenal long-range sharpshooting substitute Ted Beach tonight and St. John's breezed past Connecticut 63-52, to gain the semi-finals of the NCAA eastern basketball tournament.

The Big Ten champions qualified to meet North Carolina State, 67-62 conqueror of Villanova at Raleigh, N. C., in Thursday's round of four at Madison Square Garden. St. John's will play the winner of the game between top-ranked Kentucky and Louisville.

Although the Illinois - Columbia game was not decided until the final minutes before a roaring Garden crowd of 17,107, it was Beach, a senior troubleshooter who goes in when the sophomores fail, who broke the Lions' hearts with a fantastic exhibition of set shooting just before the end of the half.

Eight pops Beach took at the Columbia basket in the space of as many minutes and seven times the ball went through the nets. He scored 22 points for the evening, including ten field goals.

Columbia matched this scoring pace, however, with a driving attack built around lanky Jack Molinas and went to intermission clutching a 45-38 lead.

The Brooklyn Redmen, completely lacking in fire and spirit, either left their zing in the exhaustive National Invitation Tournament last week or were saving it for their next game here Thursday.

Nevertheless, they rolled up an effortless 25-point lead in the second half against the futile Uconns in a game so dull it bored the fans.

Then at the three-quarter point, the fans were electrified as Connecticut's Vince Yokabaskas and Bill Ebel sparked a surge that whacked St. John's lead to 11 points.

N. C. State, Kentucky Score At Raleigh

RAWLEIGH, N. C., March 20 (AP)—High scoring Kentucky, battled to a virtual standstill most of the game, pulled away in the last eight minutes to defeat a fired-up Louisville team, 79-68, in the NCAA southern basketball quarter-finals tonight before 12,400 fans.

North Carolina State's Wolfpack, trailing 38-32 at halftime, fought back behind the brilliant shooting of forward Bill Kukoy to upset Villanova, 67-62, in the opener of the NCAA quarter-finals.

Kukoy, a Gary, Ind., sophomore filling in for All-American Sam Ranzino, bagged 27 points.

A capacity crowd in N. C. State's huge Coliseum saw the inspired Wolfpack come flying back in the second half to defeat the same team that had defeated it twice during the regular season.

Villanova, paced by forward Ben Stewart of York, Pa., with 19 points, got off to a fast start and built up a 12 point lead in the first half. But the Wolfpack, with Kukoy and Forward Bobby Speight finding the range, began to cut down the margin.

The Wolfpack was without Ranzino and two other senior stars, center Paul Horvath and guard Vic Bubas, because of an NCAA ban on four-year varsity players. All three played varsity ball as freshmen.

Yokabaskas, a six foot two forward from Bloomfield, Conn., racked up 17 points in the last half comeback and finished the evening with 22, high for the game. Ebel, a six-foot-four center and biggest man on the team, had nine points in the last half, 12 for the night.

Zawoluk scored 18 points, collecting seven field goals, while Dombrosky popped in 17 on six field goals and five foul throws.

Sailor And Ex-Marine To Tangle At Boston

BOSTON, March 20 (AP) — Irish Bob Murphy, the slugging sailor from San Diego, and Boston's "dynamite" Joe Rindone have been signed to fight in Boston Garden April 16, the Callahan A. C. said tonight.

Promoter Sam Silverman said Murphy, who weighed in at 177 pounds for his recent technical knockout win over Danny Bucceroni of Philadelphia in Madison Square Garden, has agreed to get down to 172 for Rindone.

Rindone, a 28-year-old ex-marine, was at 164½ for his recent draw with middleweight Paul Pender here. Joe, a sturdy aggressive puncher, gave a good account of himself before being kayoed by Sugar Ray Robinson and also lost a close decision to France's Robert Villemain.

In an unprecedented happening in North American horse racing, French-bred horses finished one-two-three in the same race this season at Hialeah.

HOMER SINKS TRIBE

BURBANK, Calif., March 20 (AP)—Tommy Upton, usually not considered a big man with a bat, led the St. Louis Browns to a 6-5 decision over the Cleveland Indians today with an eleventh inning homer.

It was the Browns' first victory over a major league opponent in spring exhibition games this year.

Koszarek Is Champ
Spas' 11 Of 29 Low
Papers Use Pigeons
Powers To Bat Fifth

By C. V. BURNS

Lou Koszarek, of Portage, Pa. now a member of the Penn State College boxing team, won the Eastern Intercollegiate Boxing Association's 165-pound championship recently by decisioning Billy Maher of Catholic U. in the annual tourney at Charlottesville, Va.

Lou will compete in the national championship tourney at Michigan State College, April 5-7.

Koszarek flattened Lou Morin of Army in the second round of the Eastern tourney's semi-final.

Local amateur fistic fans will recall that Koszarek appeared in two shows here in 1948 and won both matches. He knocked out Robert "Red" Howard, Washington, D. C., in five rounds and earned the nod over "Skeets" Starkey in five. In fact, Koszarek's left hooks floored Starkey twice in the third round of their match.

Mike Valan, owner of the Wheeling Blues, told us Sunday night that he will not enter a team in the All-American Pro League if the circuit is in operation next winter. The reason: Mike doesn't like to set-up and it's costing him too much money.

• — • — •

The Blues really "moidered" the Spas this season, winning seven out of the eight games. When the campaign started Wheeling held a 14-12 edge over Cumberland in games won in three years of league play. Now it's 21-13.

• — • — •

The Spas foul shooting in Sunday's game in which they were eliminated from the playoffs even though they tied Wheeling in field goals 33-33, was the local team's worst performance in 31 contests this season.

The 11 out of 29 for an average of .379 was lower than the 8 for 21 and .381 or the 13 for 33 and .394 earlier in the season against Erie and Johnstown.

In a game against Altoona the locals made 18 out of 20 for .900. Three other times the Spas hit above 85 per cent with 25-28, 22-25 and 23-27.

Les Cosgrove of Mt. St. Mary's College, Emmitsburg, led the Maryland college scorers for 1950-51 with 596 points, 126 of which he tallied in the Catholic tourney at Albany, N. Y.

Nick Scallion, Washington College, was 2nd with 592 and Art (Western Maryland) Press was next with 589.

CHISOX BLANK YANKS

GLENDALE, Calif., March 20 (AP) —The Chicago White Sox embarrassed Yankee manager Casey Stengel in his own home town this afternoon by shutting out the New York club, 5-0 before an overflow crowd of 4,117. The champions could get only four hits off the pitching of rookies Hal Brown and Marv Rotblatt, these being shared by Hank Bauer and Phil Rizzuto. Rotblatt permitted but one single over the last five innings.

The Sox slammed 11 safeties, with Shortstop Chico Carrasquel getting three of them. The infielder also starred afield with 11 chances, nine of them assists. Score:

Big Ten Champs Bag 79-71 Win Before 17,107 Fans In Garden

St. John's Conquers Connecticut, 63-52

NEW YORK, March 20 (AP) — Illinois splintered Columbia's proud unbeaten record 79-71, on the phenomenal long-range sharpshooting substitute Ted Beach tonight and St. John's breezed past Connecticut 63-52, to gain the semi-finals of the NCAA eastern basketball tournament.

The Big Ten champions qualified to meet North Carolina State, 67-62 conqueror of Villanova at Raleigh, N. C., in Thursday's round of four at Madison Square Garden. St. John's will play the winner of the game between top-ranked Kentucky and Louisville.

Although the Illinois - Columbia game was not decided until the final minutes before a roaring Garden crowd of 17,107, it was Beach, a senior troubleshooter who goes in when the sophomores fail, who broke the Lions' hearts with a fantastic exhibition of set shooting just before the end of the half.

Eight pops Beach took at the Columbia basket in the space of as many minutes and seven times the ball went through the nets. He scored 22 points for the evening, including ten field goals.

Columbia matched this scoring pace, however, with a driving attack built around lanky Jack Molinas and went to intermission clutching a 45-38 lead.

The Brooklyn Redmen, completely lacking in fire and spirit, either left their zing in the exhaustive National Invitation Tournament last week or were saving it for their next game here Thursday.

Nevertheless, they rolled up an effortless 25-point lead in the second half against the futile Uconns in a game so dull it bored the fans.

Then at the three-quarter point, the fans were electrified as Connecticut's Vince Yokabaskas and Bill Ebel sparked a surge that whacked St. John's lead to 11 points.

N. C. State, Kentucky Score At Raleigh

RAWLEIGH, N. C., March 20 (AP)—High scoring Kentucky, battled to a virtual standstill most of the game, pulled away in the last eight minutes to defeat a fired-up Louisville team, 79-68, in the NCAA southern basketball quarter-finals tonight before 12,400 fans.

North Carolina State's Wolfpack, trailing 38-32 at halftime, fought back behind the brilliant shooting of forward Bill Kukoy to upset Villanova, 67-62, in the opener of the NCAA quarter-finals.

Kukoy, a Gary, Ind., sophomore filling in for All-American Sam Ranzino, bagged 27 points.

A capacity crowd in N. C. State's huge Coliseum saw the inspired Wolfpack come flying back in the second half to defeat the same team that had defeated it twice during the regular season.

Villanova, paced by forward Ben Stewart of York, Pa., with 19 points, got off to a fast start and built up a 12 point lead in the first half. But the Wolfpack, with Kukoy and Forward Bobby Speight finding the range, began to cut down the margin.

The Wolfpack was without Ranzino and two other senior stars, center Paul Horvath and guard Vic Bubas, because of an NCAA ban on four-year varsity players. All three played varsity ball as freshmen.

Yokabaskas, a six foot two forward from Bloomfield, Conn., racked up 17 points in the last half comeback and finished the evening with 22, high for the game. Ebel, a six-foot-four center and biggest man on the team, had nine points in the last half, 12 for the night.

Zawoluk scored 18 points, collecting seven field goals, while Dombrosky popped in 17 on six field goals and five foul throws.

TIGER OUTLOOK FOR SEASON NOT TOO BRIGHT

Detroit Needs Punch, More Speed And Pitching Aid For 1951

EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the eighth of a series of articles on the 1951 prospects of the major league baseball teams.

By WALTER L. JOHNS
Central Press Sports Editor

LAKELAND, Fla. — "With some real hitting by my catchers, we would have won the pennant."

Robert (Red) Rolfe, beginning his third season as manager of the Detroit Tigers, was talking in the team's clubhouse here and diagnosing the ills of 1950.

"I was dissatisfied with my catchers last year," the carrot-top ex-Yankee star said, recalling how the Tigers led the American league race for two-thirds of the season only to fold up in the stretch and finish second.

"And now," the readhead continued, "I've pitching troubles, too. The loss of Art Houtteman really will hurt, unless Virgil Trucks comes back and helps us.

"My pitching is weaker, that's for sure. Why, in the last two years I lost two 19-game winners in Trucks and Houtteman. If Trucks doesn't help us, who will?"

The catching last year was handled by Aaron Robinson and Bob Swift, who hit a meager .226 and .227. The third catcher, Frank House, the boy who signed for that $65,000 bonus, sat on the bench most of the season.

Brought up this year again is Myron Ginsberg, who batted .336 for Toledo and who has a lot of fire.

"I'm going to work Ginsberg and House this spring and if they can do the work, one of those other boys will go. Of course, I can send House out now, where I couldn't before because of the bonus rule." Rolfe carried on: "What we need, besides help in our pitching and good catching, is more of that long ball. More speed, too. We need somebody who can belt it out of the park. We were only fourth in the league in home runs last year, you know.

"Our situation doesn't look good but it's not hopeless. I look for Boston to do it this year and the Yankees will be tough as usual. And don't forget those Indians, either."

It's in the pitching where the Tigers have to find help. Trucks, who won 19 games in 1949, did little last year, winning only three and getting in few games because of ailments.

Rolfe looks for Hal Newhouser, the ace lefty, to do as well and better this year. Rolfe predicts a 20-game win season for Big Hal, who now is up to 183 pounds in weight.

Dizzy Trout, Ted Gray and Fred Hutchinson are first-line starters but there is no Houtteman on the scene.

There is a terrific prospect in camp, however, in Bill Hoeft, an 18-year-old schoolboy whiz from Oshkosh, Wis., who looks and pitches like Newhouser. He has a terrific record but is not ready and probably will be sent out for seasoning.

Best of the experienced newcomers appears to be Wayne McLeland, a Milton, Ia., boy who won 21 games for Dallas last season. He looked good in a training game here and knows how to pitch.

For relief Manager Rolfe is planning on Harold White and Earl Johnson. The last-named formerly was with the Red Sox but now comes up from Louisville. "I'm hoping Johnson can do it," says Rolfe.

Paul Calvert, former Washington pitcher who was with the Tigers last year, has a fight on his hands to stay with the club, according to Rolfe. Saul Rogovin, who came up highly heralded last year, also is being given another good look in the the hopes he may be the guy to help. Still another flinger is young Ray Herbert, who came up from Toledo after pitching five ball there.

The infield will be the same as last year. Don Kolloway is at first, Jerry Priddy at second, Johnny Lipon at short and George Kell at third.

Dick Kryhoski who started last season as the Tigers' first sacker and failed to make good, is back for another try. He finished with Toledo where he hit .333.

Steve Souchok, who twice served sessions with the Yankees, comes up from Sacramento where he had a big year. He hit 30 homers and wound up with a .291 batting mark. He has been one of the hitting stars in camp here. Rolfe plans to use him only as a pinch-hitter although he says Steve can play the outfield, first base and third base.

All three hit over the .300 mark with Wertz and Evers both recording more than 100 RB's each. And the trio belted 60 home runs.

The utility gardeners will be the same. They are Pat Mullin and Charley Keller.

One rookie had a chance to stick. He is George Lerchen, who socked 27 homers and batted in 97 runs for Toledo.

Actually, the Tigers of 1951 will be the same as the Tigers of 1950—with the exception of 19-game winner Houtteman, serving Uncle Sam now.

They'll be in the first division, off last year's showing, but one could hardly pick them for the pennant against the Red Sox or Yanks.

Maryland Bettors On Doubles To Get Consolation Payoff

BALTIMORE, March 20 (AP)—Maryland horse bettors on daily doubles are going to get a consolation payoff even if their second choice fails to start.

They'll still have to pick the first winner, naturally.

But in the past, if they did and their selection in the second race was scratched they got only their $2 back.

The Racing Commission announced today a consolation daily double for such cases. The money bet on all combinations including the scratched horse will be divided among those who picked the first race right.

The consolation double will be in force for the first time in Maryland at the Laurel meeting opening Friday.

Bucs Sign Pitchers

PITTSBURGH, March 20 (AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates home office today reported signing up two pitchers who tried out at a recent camp at Anaheim, Calif. They are Jack Maddy, Phoenix, Ariz., who will play for Waco of the Big State League; and Wallace Sinner, Bell, Calif., who will be sent to Mayfield, Ky., of the Kitty League.

Tommy Holmes Named Manager At Hartford

BRADENTON, Fla., March 20 (AP)—Owner Lou Perini of the Boston Braves announced today that veteran right fielder Tommy Holmes has agreed to become player-manager of the Hartford Chiefs of the Class A Eastern League. Tommy was about to launch his 10th season with the Tribe.

Holmes will assume his new duties at the Myrtle Beach, S. C., training camp site of the Braves' minor league club in about a week.

The 33-year-old Holmes batted .298 last season in 105 games and has a liftime major league average of .304.

TIGER OUTLOOK FOR SEASON NOT TOO BRIGHT

Detroit Needs Punch, More Speed And Pitching Aid For 1951

EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the eighth of a series of articles on the 1951 prospects of the major league baseball teams.

By WALTER L. JOHNS
Central Press Sports Editor

LAKELAND, Fla. — "With some real hitting by my catchers, we would have won the pennant."

Robert (Red) Rolfe, beginning his third season as manager of the Detroit Tigers, was talking in the team's clubhouse here and diagnosing the ills of 1950.

"I was dissatisfied with my catchers last year," the carrot-top ex-Yankee star said, recalling how the Tigers led the American league race for two-thirds of the season only to fold up in the stretch and finish second.

"And now," the readhead continued, "I've pitching troubles, too. The loss of Art Houtteman really will hurt, unless Virgil Trucks comes back and helps us.

"My pitching is weaker, that's for sure. Why, in the last two years I lost two 19-game winners in Trucks and Houtteman. If Trucks doesn't help us, who will?"

The catching last year was handled by Aaron Robinson and Bob Swift, who hit a meager .226 and .227. The third catcher, Frank House, the boy who signed for that $65,000 bonus, sat on the bench most of the season.

Brought up this year again is Myron Ginsberg, who batted .336 for Toledo and who has a lot of fire.

"I'm going to work Ginsberg and House this spring and if they can do the work, one of those other boys will go. Of course, I can send House out now, where I couldn't before because of the bonus rule." Rolfe carried on: "What we need, besides help in our pitching and good catching, is more of that long ball. More speed, too. We need somebody who can belt it out of the park. We were only fourth in the league in home runs last year, you know.

"Our situation doesn't look good but it's not hopeless. I look for Boston to do it this year and the Yankees will be tough as usual. And don't forget those Indians, either."

It's in the pitching where the Tigers have to find help. Trucks, who won 19 games in 1949, did little last year, winning only three and getting in few games because of ailments.

Rolfe looks for Hal Newhouser, the ace lefty, to do as well and better this year. Rolfe predicts a 20-game win season for Big Hal, who now is up to 183 pounds in weight.

Dizzy Trout, Ted Gray and Fred Hutchinson are first-line starters but there is no Houtteman on the scene.

There is a terrific prospect in camp, however, in Bill Hoeft, an 18-year-old schoolboy whiz from Oshkosh, Wis., who looks and pitches like Newhouser. He has a terrific record but is not ready and probably will be sent out for seasoning.

Best of the experienced newcomers appears to be Wayne McLeland, a Milton, Ia., boy who won 21 games for Dallas last season. He looked good in a training game here and knows how to pitch.

For relief Manager Rolfe is planning on Harold White and Earl Johnson. The last-named formerly was with the Red Sox but now comes up from Louisville. "I'm hoping Johnson can do it," says Rolfe.

Paul Calvert, former Washington pitcher who was with the Tigers last year, has a fight on his hands to stay with the club, according to Rolfe. Saul Rogovin, who came up highly heralded last year, also is being given another good look in the the hopes he may be the guy to help. Still another flinger is young Ray Herbert, who came up from Toledo after pitching five ball there.

The infield will be the same as last year. Don Kolloway is at first, Jerry Priddy at second, Johnny Lipon at short and George Kell at third.

Dick Kryhoski who started last season as the Tigers' first sacker and failed to make good, is back for another try. He finished with Toledo where he hit .333.

Steve Souchok, who twice served sessions with the Yankees, comes up from Sacramento where he had a big year. He hit 30 homers and wound up with a .291 batting mark. He has been one of the hitting stars in camp here. Rolfe plans to use him only as a pinch-hitter although he says Steve can play the outfield, first base and third base.

All three hit over the .300 mark with Wertz and Evers both recording more than 100 RB's each. And the trio belted 60 home runs.

The utility gardeners will be the same. They are Pat Mullin and Charley Keller.

One rookie had a chance to stick. He is George Lerchen, who socked 27 homers and batted in 97 runs for Toledo.

Actually, the Tigers of 1951 will be the same as the Tigers of 1950—with the exception of 19-game winner Houtteman, serving Uncle Sam now.

They'll be in the first division, off last year's showing, but one could hardly pick them for the pennant against the Red Sox or Yanks.

Maryland Bettors On Doubles To Get Consolation Payoff

BALTIMORE, March 20 (AP)—Maryland horse bettors on daily doubles are going to get a consolation payoff even if their second choice fails to start.

They'll still have to pick the first winner, naturally.

But in the past, if they did and their selection in the second race was scratched they got only their $2 back.

The Racing Commission announced today a consolation daily double for such cases. The money bet on all combinations including the scratched horse will be divided among those who picked the first race right.

The consolation double will be in force for the first time in Maryland at the Laurel meeting opening Friday.

Four Towns Aim To Eliminate River Pollution

Meeting Scheduled In Piedmont Library

PIEDMONT, W. Va.—A second meeting to discuss the elimination of pollution of the Potomac River by garbage disposal will be held in the Piedmont Library at 8 p. m. Thursday.

Mayors of Piedmont, Keyser, Westernport and Luke and City Councils of the four towns, the Chambers of Commerce of the Tri-Towns and Keyser, representatives of 11 service clubs and other interested persons are invited to attend.

Two films will be shown. Talks will be given by William Waller, Keyser, senior state sanitarian, a representative of the Health Department of West Virginia from Charleston and a member of the Maryland Health Department from Baltimore.

The first meeting was held recently by the Mayors and city officials in Keyser with J. B. Dowling, Maryland state Sanitarian.

The proposal calls for the burying of garbage and other rubbish in trenches measuring 20 to 100 feet in length and at a depth just above the water line. Disposal of garbage would be accomplished by dumping the rubbish in a trench and at the end of each day cover it over with a bulldozer and clam scoop. This method averts flies, mosquitoes, vermin and other unsanitary conditions.

This plan has been successful in Baltimore and other easterr cities. Elkins is the nearest location where such a method is used.

Four Towns Aim To Eliminate River Pollution

Meeting Scheduled In Piedmont Library

PIEDMONT, W. Va.—A second meeting to discuss the elimination of pollution of the Potomac River by garbage disposal will be held in the Piedmont Library at 8 p. m. Thursday.

Mayors of Piedmont, Keyser, Westernport and Luke and City Councils of the four towns, the Chambers of Commerce of the Tri-Towns and Keyser, representatives of 11 service clubs and other interested persons are invited to attend.

Two films will be shown. Talks will be given by William Waller, Keyser, senior state sanitarian, a representative of the Health Department of West Virginia from Charleston and a member of the Maryland Health Department from Baltimore.

The first meeting was held recently by the Mayors and city officials in Keyser with J. B. Dowling, Maryland state Sanitarian.

The proposal calls for the burying of garbage and other rubbish in trenches measuring 20 to 100 feet in length and at a depth just above the water line. Disposal of garbage would be accomplished by dumping the rubbish in a trench and at the end of each day cover it over with a bulldozer and clam scoop. This method averts flies, mosquitoes, vermin and other unsanitary conditions.

This plan has been successful in Baltimore and other easterr cities. Elkins is the nearest location where such a method is used.

KEEPING UP WITH HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, March 20 (INS)—Excited and happy, Maureen O'Hara telephoned to tell me she is being divided into more pieces among the studios than was Gregory Peck. What she meant is that she and 20th Century-Fox rearranged her contract, so now she only makes one a year for them.

Maureen O'Hara

She has a new multiple picture deal, non-exclusive, with Universal-International.

"I made my best pictures for Bill Goetz," said Maureen, "and I am so happy over going back to that studio. Moreover, I can now free lance, too."

Maureen's next picture is "Wild-life" at U.I., which will be made right away. Then Maureen goes to Galway for John Ford's "The Quiet One," which she co-stars in with John Wayne.

"I envy you, Maureen, going to Ireland," I told her.

"Isn't it grand?" she said, "I'll see my mother in Dublin and all my friends."

Dore Schary only had to catch one of the New York Yankees exhibition games against the Los Angeles Angels to realize just how immensely popular Joe DiMaggio is with the diamond fans. Now he wants to do Joe's life story as an M.G.M. picture.

Dore, however, doesn't think any of the Hollywood actors could play the part of the American League's famous swatter as well as DiMaggio could himself.

He and Joe have already huddled over the idea of making the picture with DiMaggio in the leading role, and though the deal hasn't been closed, it probably will be this week. Joe promised to talk it over with his Yankee bosses. If they give him the go signal, he'll sign with M.G.M.

From New York I get the tip a fiction story inspired from the Kefauver Senate Crime Investigating Committee has been written by veteran Newspaper Man Jess Stearn. Far be it from me to hint that it it a disguised saga of Virginia Hill — but that 's the gist of it.

Under the title "The Story of Gloria Wayne," Stearn has drawn a solid drama of a beauty whose life of luxury is lived in the shadow of mobster activities.

Yes, I remember that Joan Crawford starred in a Warner version of what happens to little girls who become gangster's molls in "The Damned Can't Cry." But that had gloves on. The Stearn story doesn't.

Jack Dempsey, who is doing all right as an insurance and real estate broker, is still stage struck. That's why he just signed a contract with Bing Crosby Enterprises to star in the first of a new TV film series, "The Show of Champions."

It's a half-hour program on film about the squared circle and Jack will not only play himself, but also handle the narration. Camera work begins this week at the Hal Roach Studios. Other sports champs of the past and present who have also been signed for the series are: Ben Hogan, Jack Kramer, Gorgeous George, Joe DiMaggio and Joe Louis.

An example: Tim and Mike were working on the same construction job, when Tim suddenly lost his balance and plunged five stories to the ground. Is it natural to hate "deadlines"?

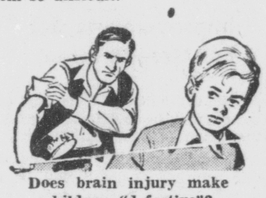
Answer: I do not believe so. To one type of person a deadline is a challenge which inspires him to his best efforts while a person of the other type is thrown into a panic in which he cannot do anything at all. The contrast may stem from the fact that the demands their parents made on people of the former type were fair and reasonable, so that they knew they could win approval by complying with them, whereas people who are paralyzed by deadlines never felt as children that they knew or could achieve what was expected of them.

Can you cure yourself of "talking too muc "?

Answer: It is not easy, but you'll find it more than worth while not to have to say so often: "How I wish I had kept my mouth shut!" The trick is to form and hold on to the habit of asking yourself beforehand: "What will be the consequences of my saying what is on the tip of my tongue?" You may say there usually isn't time to do this, but you'll be mistaken. Mental processes take almost no time at all. It is your resistance to allowing anything except the moment's mood to enter your mind that makes "stopping to think" seem so difficult.



Does brain injury make children "defective"?

Answer: No, writes Eloise Oxtoby of the North Jersey Training School in the Journal of Correctional Education. There is no one type of behavior that is characteristic of children with brain injuries. They differ from normal children mainly in being restless and overactive but do not become idiots or morons. The main effect of brain injury is a lack of control which makes the child "restless, erratic, unpredictable, impulsive and illogical." He acts out whatever comes into his mind without regard for consequences.

Child's World Is Wonderful

Carmelita Plonka

The world that children live in is mighty wonderful . . . filled with little daydreams and hopes and joys that make the older folks sometimes wish they were school-age again. But boys and girls have their ups and downs, too, particularly when they are not feeling well. Ten-year-old Carmelita Plonka, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Plonka of 3202 S. Aberdeen, Chicago, Ill., was not feeling good recently and was just too listless to get the most out of her school days. Fortunately for Carmelita, though, her grandmother suggested that her mother give her HADACOL, because she had heard how much it was helping children dificient in Vitamins B1, B2, Iron and Niacin. Now, Carmelita feels fine and her mother says she has a big appetite.

Here is Mrs. Plonka's statement: "My daughter Carmelita, who is 10 years old and in the fifth grade, had always been underweight and I had to positively force her to eat. She had no interest in food whatsoever, but I knew that she had to eat. When we were visiting my mother in Missouri over the Christmas holidays she suggested I give Carmelita HADACOL. I bought a large bottle of it that same day and was amazed at the change in Carmelita. Her appetite picked right up and she now eats three hearty meals a day plus in-between snacks. I have really praised HADACOL, and highly recommend it for everyone."

HADACOL can help you if you suffer such deficiencies. Ask your druggist for HADACOL today.

First—a scientific coating carries the tablets into the bowels before they dissolve. Then—Jayne's modern, medically-approved ingredient goes right to work—kills Pin-Worms quickly and easily.

Don't take chances with this dangerous, highly contagious condition. At the first sign of Pin-Worms, ask your druggist for genuine Jayne's P-W Vermifuge . . . the small, easy-to-take tablets perfected by famous Dr. D. Jayne & Son, specialists in worm remedies for over 100 years.

The world that children live in is mighty wonderful . . . filled with little daydreams and hopes and joys that make the older folks sometimes wish they were school-age again. But boys and girls have their ups and downs, too, particularly when they are not feeling well. Ten-year-old Carmelita Plonka, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Plonka of 3202 S. Aberdeen, Chicago, Ill., was not feeling good recently and was just too listless to get the most out of her school days. Fortunately for Carmelita, though, her grandmother suggested that her mother give her HADACOL, because she had heard how much it was helping children dificient in Vitamins B1, B2, Iron and Niacin. Now, Carmelita feels fine and her mother says she has a big appetite.

Here is Mrs. Plonka's statement:

"My daughter Carmelita, who is 10 years old and in the fifth grade, had always been underweight and I had to positively force her to eat. She had no interest in food whatsoever, but I knew that she had to eat. When we were visiting my mother in Missouri over the Christmas holidays she suggested I give Carmelita HADACOL. I bought a large bottle of it that same day and was amazed at the change in Carmelita. Her appetite picked right up and she now eats three hearty meals a day plus in-between snacks. I have really praised HADACOL, and highly recommend it for everyone."

HADACOL can help you if you suffer such deficiencies. Ask your druggist for HADACOL today.

PIN-WORMS GO! Jayne's P-W Gets Real Results

Fidgeting, nose-picking and a tormenting rectal itch are often telltale signs of Pin-Worms . . . ugly parasites that medical experts say infest one out of every three persons examined. Entire families may be victims and not know it.

To get rid of Pin-Worms, these pests must not only be killed, but killed in the large intestine where they live and multiply. That's exactly what Jayne's P-W tablets do . . . and here's how they do it:

First—a scientific coating carries the tablets into the bowels before they dissolve. Then—Jayne's modern, medically-approved ingredient goes right to work—kills Pin-Worms quickly and easily.

Don't take chances with this dangerous, highly contagious condition. At the first sign of Pin-Worms, ask your druggist for genuine Jayne's P-W Vermifuge . . . the small, easy-to-take tablets perfected by famous Dr. D. Jayne & Son, specialists in worm remedies for over 100 years.

This made it easy to cast a dinner party. You put a pro-Morgan next to an anti-Morgan, all the way down the line. Within five minutes the pros would be breaking soup plates over the heads of the antis and everyone would have a lovely time. It was a surefire way to break a lease, too.

Now success looms. He's got a sponsor and everything. Pretty soon, the teenagers will be annoying him for his autograph, the tradespeople will expect him to pay his bills, he'll have to learn how to deposit money, and, in general, life will be vexing.

To get down to the show itself, "The Great Talent Hunt" (NBC-TV, 9:30 p. m. EST Fridays) is a parody on all the talent shows that infest television. That in itself is significant. When television starts parodying itself on a regular weekly basis—it's been done intermittently before—it has reached a degree of self-anlysis which is one of the first inklings of maturity.

In announcing his new show, Mr. Morgan said he was seeking odd talents. "You know, a man who tap-dances on Jello, things like that." I don't think anyone has tap-danced on Jello yet but the talents on display have been almost equally curious. At various times, Morgan has produced the world's champion lady wood-chopper, a lady punchingbag expert from South America, a farmer who played castanets with his muscles, a welder who played "Sleepy Time Gal" on a matchbox, and a couple who sang arias while standing on their heads.

An appearance on his show, Mr. Morgan cheerfully confesses, is the first step on the ladder to oblivion. "Immediately after his appearance here," said Morgan of one contestant, "a very important producer called him. He rushed to the phone, fell through the cellar door and broke his neck."

It's a very gentle, disarming and rather surprisingly handsome Morgan who wanders through these innocent proceedings. "Welcome, to the great Talent Hunt or as it is often called 'Movies are better than ever.' This program is performing an enormous contribution to television. Makes all the other shows look good." Then on come the people who play xylophones with their kneecaps. I don't know what enchanted forest Henry flushes these people out of but he seems to have an inexhaustible supply of them.

Morgan treats them gingerly, as if he were afraid they might disappear before his eyes. There is no real meeting of minds. The lady punching-bag expert, a humorless lady, didn't seem to know what Henry was doing there or what he stood for exactly and Henry seemed a little puzzled about it himself.

• — • — •

Arnold Stang, Morgan's perennial sidekick, whose face matches his ludicrous accent in every particular, has passages at arms with Mr. M. when the talent gets out of the way. Very funny exchanges, too, these two supplementing each other perfectly.

"Got a terrific act to close the show," says Stang.

"Baboon?"

"No."

"A flight of pigeons?"

"No, this is a person."

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of Don Laffey who passed away eight years ago, March 21st, 1943.

Many silent thoughts,
Many silent tears,
Many beautiful memories
Of one I loved so dear.
May his soul rest in peace.
Sadly missed by his Grandmother,
Mrs. Jessie Kalbaugh

In loving memory of our Dear Mother, Alice V. Spiker, who departed this life one year ago today, March 21, 1950.

A precious one from us has gone
A voice we love is stilled
A place is vacant in our home
Which never can be filled
In our hearts your memory lingers
Sweetly tender, fond and true
There is not a day, dear Mother
That we do not think of you.
Sadly missed by her children.

Cards of Thanks

I wish to thank those who were so kind during my bereavement, the death of my beloved cousin, Raymond Sheppard, and also want to thank those who sent flowers and donated the use of their cars. I especially want to thank Ronald B. Landis and those who were pallbearers.

Anna R. Van

In Memoriam

In loving memory of Don Laffey who passed away eight years ago, March 21st, 1943.

Many silent thoughts,
Many silent tears,
Many beautiful memories
Of one I loved so dear.
May his soul rest in peace.
Sadly missed by his Grandmother,
Mrs. Jessie Kalbaugh

In loving memory of our Dear Mother, Alice V. Spiker, who departed this life one year ago today, March 21, 1950.

A precious one from us has gone
A voice we love is stilled
A place is vacant in our home
Which never can be filled
In our hearts your memory lingers
Sweetly tender, fond and true
There is not a day, dear Mother
That we do not think of you.
Sadly missed by her children.

Cards of Thanks

I wish to thank those who were so kind during my bereavement, the death of my beloved cousin, Raymond Sheppard, and also want to thank those who sent flowers and donated the use of their cars. I especially want to thank Ronald B. Landis and those who were pallbearers.
Anna R. Van

Miniature Atomic Detection Devices Unveiled At Exhibit

NEW YORK—(INS)—A miniature atom bomb detection device, which can be worn around the neck like a "dog tag," may soon come into common use in America.

So may several other atom-age gadgets.

The device, developed by Eastman Kodak Company for the U. S. Navy, was unveiled in the naval exhbit at the 1951 convention of the Institute of Radio Engineers.

The detection gadget will enable persons subjected to an atom bomb attack to determine quickly the amount of radiation they have absorbed.

It is a one-inch silver capsule about the size of a lipstick and weighs only two ounces. In the capsule are four crystals which change colors as radiation strikes.

The color of the crystals indicates the amount of radiation.

The capsule can be hung from the neck on a cord like a "dog tag." It is called a "self indicator."

It enables your doctor to tell immediately whether the radition effects on you are minor, whether your need a blood transfusion or whether you are likely to die.

Naval personnel everywhere will soon be wearing the gadget and, ultimately, it may be as coomon to Mr. and Mrs. Average Citizen as was the gas mask in World War II.

Gadget No. 2 is about the size of a cigaret lighter. In it is a special piece of glass which, when exposed to raditon, changes its ability to transmit infra-red light.

You can also wear this around your neck. You can't make the radition reading yourself. You've got to take it to a doctor, or to the casualty official.

Two other devices, for use by civil defense workers, were also shown at the exhibit.

One of them looks like a bulldog-faced flashlight battery and actually is a miniature Geiger counter which can determine the amount of radiation in any given area.

It weighs two and one-half pounds. You turn it on by pushing a button and the amount of radioactivity is recorded on a tiny-meter. It can be worn around your waist, attached to a belt. It records the rate of exposure.

The fourth device resembles an alarm clock and is called a "self indicator dosimeter with alarm." It is six inches, by four inches, by 1¾ inches.

It is set like an alarm clock. You set the mark at 40, 50 or whatever degree of radiation you decide to subpect yourself to.. If you select 50, the alarm rings at the 50 mark. It is for military and area work, after an atom bomb has been dropped.

The devices are the outcome of intensive activities in atom bomb detection on the part of the electronics division of the Navy's Bureau of Ships.

The Old Second

and pleasing to find such genuine friendliness and Americanism.

W. H. Duckworth, Chief Justice of the Georgia Supreme Court, made a speech in which he criticized sharply the waste in Washington, and the idea of encouraging the people to vote for a paternal government. He reminded his audience of the stern qualities of the citizens who had built this country. You don't hear any sound sentiments like those at Twenty One, the Stork Club or other glittery places in New York. The next day I attended a lunch of the Kiwanis, and found the same wholesome spirit of concern for the country and patriotism.

That night I had dinner with a young man and his pretty bride, just starting out in life, and their eagerness and earnestness were impressive. Before the meal, she said,

"Will you ask a blessing, dear?" We bowed our heads in thanks, as he said grace.

They drove me back to the hotel. He remarked,

"You were talking to Governor Cox in Miami today."

Surprised and thinking he was a mind reader, I inquired,

"How did you know?"

"Because when I asked for you at the desk, the clerk said,

"'You'll have to wait. He's talking to Governor Cox in Miami on the telephone'."

These Days

presented to establish that an American airforce is invaluable. I refer to General MacArthur's stalemate statement.

Dean Acheson's conclusion is:

"In other words, the best use we can make of our present advantage in retaliatory air power, is to move ahead under this protective shield to build the balanced collective forces in Western Europe that will continue to deter aggression after our atomic advantage has been diminished."

If what he calls the "protective shield" is all that has deterred Russia thus far, why does he not want to strengthen "the protective shield" but to substitute something else for it? This exercise in logic is hard to follow except that some men, having long lived with a good and faithful wife who helped to build the family fortune, discard the wife to spend her sacrifices upon some floozie. It is often done, but not with too much credit for the doer.

It is a serious matter for the country when the Secretary of State speaks so casually about the expenditure of American lives.

Savers Need Help

the sacrifice is not always willing. Those who resist or deplore sacrifices they are now called on to make ought to give thought to an immense group who have been sacrificing for several years. These are the country's savers.

Year after year the savers have put their savings into life insurance, United States Savings Bonds, savings banks, pension systems and similar institutions. And year after year they have seen the value of their savings diminish through reduction in the purchasing power of the dollar. While the savers have been thus enduring loss, they have seen labor get wage raise after wage raise and have seen farmers benefit by prices of farm crops kept artificially high by the government.

The detriment thus suffered is a cruelty to an immense number of persons, those who have saved in order to have security in their old age and now find their security impaired by reduction in the purchasing power of the dollar. To check reduction in the purchasing power of the dollar, as a part of checking inflation, is a heavy obligation upon the control agencies at Washington.

Three Officers To Get Hearings Today

The Civil Service Commission will conduct a hearing today for three officers dismissed from the Police Department for "conduct unbecoming an officer."

H. Clifford Spiker, chairman, said the public hearing is set for 7:30 p. m. in the Council chamber of City Hall.

The officers, Karl W. Frankfort, Vernon E. Browning and Lewis A. Miller filed an appeal to the commission February 24 after their dismissal.

The men, with a total of 14 months' service, were suspended indefinitely January 30 as a result of an incident at Midway Inn on McMullen Highway early in the morning of January 28.

asking for help in securing them employment. When I have advised some of them to go to some other city I have received an odd look or should I say that I have noted a strange expression on their faces, and I have wondered if that expression was questioning me, such as if my friend questioned my faith in the future of the community, if he as an unemployed person, sometime in want, sometimes ill or with a member of the family ill, still had faith and I was in doubt.

Mr. Editor, your newspaper and you have a moral duty to the people and the community to try and bring before us those questions relative to well being. I am not asking that you endorse any part of the text of this letter but I do ask that you present it to the public that they must digest what I have suggested and probably from the whole some little part may contribute to a better future for your children and mine.

Prices Remain Depressed In Quiet Market Session

NEW YORK, March 20 (AP) — A last-minute flurry of buying in air lines was not enough to budge a torpid stock market today, and most prices remained depressed at the close.

Trading came to only 1,020,000 shares, the smallest session since Oct. 3, 1949, when 760,000 shares changed hands. And it was 100,000 shares under yesterday's extremely quiet day.

Losses ran to a low of $2.50 a share among the leaders with gains extending to around $1.50.

Air lines same to life late and added outside gains of nearly a dollar a share. Three of the 16 most active issues were air lines.

The Associated press average of 60 stocks lost 20 cents at $93.00. The industrial component of the average advanced 10 cents, but rails lost 40 cents and utilities 20 cents.

Trading again involved a narrow list of securities, only 1,074 individual issues were on the tape. Yesterday the total came to 1,071 shares. That was the smallest in a little more than six months. Nevertheless there were nine new highs. New lows were touched by 17 issues.

Westinghouse Electric was the day's most active issue off ⅛ at 36⅞, Radio Corp. was second unchanged at 20, and American Air Lines was third up ½ at 15¾.

Some of the principal losers included Santa Fe off 2¼ at 158¾, Southern Railway ¼ at 53¾, Nickel Plate 2½ at 208, Baltimore & Ohio ¼ at 20⅜, Standard Oil (NJ) ¼ at 101¼, Bethlehem Steel ½ at 53⅝, Douglas Aircraft 1¾ at 95¼, Schenley industries ¼ at 35, American Woolen ⅝ at 40⅝, and American Telephone ⅜ at 154¾.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

A REPEATED DOUBLE

WHEN your partner has made an informatory double, asking that you take out the doubled bid into some other suit, there is no question about your duty in most situations. Some players seem not to understand a good player's meaning if his double had been taken out by an intervening bid, you had passed and he then doubles a second time. With most fine cardsmen, that second double is just as much for a takeout as the first one, so long as the doubled bid is not higher than three.

	♠ 7 6 4 ♥ K J 9 7 ♦ J 7 5 2 ♣ Q 8
♠ K J 9 ♥ 3 ♦ A K Q 10 9 ♣ K J 6 4	N W E S	♠ 8 5 2 ♥ 8 6 5 2 ♦ 6 4 3 ♣ 10 7 3
	♠ A Q 10 3 ♥ A Q 10 4 ♦ 8 ♣ A 9 5 2

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	2 ♦	Pass	Pass
Dbl	3 ♦	Pass	Pass
Dbl	Pass	4 ♥

That neat bid by North was made at one table of a team game. He reckoned that, if his partner could take full responsibility for playing at some contract above 3-Diamonds, the cards in North's own hand were enough additional to justify a game bid. He was right, as nice play made the contract.

In the other room, the bidding was exactly the same up to the double of 3-Diamonds. In this case, North decided to pass, feeling that South's double was now optional and there was a prospect of beating the contract satisfactorily. As the play went here, West made it, losing only one trick in each suit. All of which gave his side a tremendous swing, a big factor in his team's winning of the match.

Where North soundly bid the 4-Hearts, East led the 6 of his partner's diamonds. The Q won that and the heart 3 was returned to limit ruffing. North won with the J and launched a productive cross-ruff. He trumped the diamond 5 with the heart 10 and led the club 2 toward the Q. West scored his K and, disliking other leads, returned the 4 to the Q. The diamond 7 was ruffed then by the heart Q, club A used for discarding the spade 4, club 9 ruffed by the heart K, diamond J by the heart A, the spade A scored and the spade 3 led to the 7 and heart 6. This third and last trick for the defense brought, of course, a heart return to give the 9 and 7 the last two tricks.

What is South's only right way to play for 3-No Trumps after the spade Q is led?

Miniature Atomic Detection Devices Unveiled At Exhibit

NEW YORK—(INS)—A miniature atom bomb detection device, which can be worn around the neck like a "dog tag," may soon come into common use in America.

So may several other atom-age gadgets.

The device, developed by Eastman Kodak Company for the U. S. Navy, was unveiled in the naval exhbit at the 1951 convention of the Institute of Radio Engineers.

The detection gadget will enable persons subjected to an atom bomb attack to determine quickly the amount of radiation they have absorbed.

It is a one-inch silver capsule about the size of a lipstick and weighs only two ounces. In the capsule are four crystals which change colors as radiation strikes.

The color of the crystals indicates the amount of radiation.

The capsule can be hung from the neck on a cord like a "dog tag." It is called a "self indicator."

It enables your doctor to tell immediately whether the radition effects on you are minor, whether your need a blood transfusion or whether you are likely to die.

Naval personnel everywhere will soon be wearing the gadget and, ultimately, it may be as coomon to Mr. and Mrs. Average Citizen as was the gas mask in World War II.

Gadget No. 2 is about the size of a cigaret lighter. In it is a special piece of glass which, when exposed to radition, changes its ability to transmit infra-red light.

You can also wear this around your neck. You can't make the radition reading yourself. You've got to take it to a doctor, or to the casualty official.

Two other devices, for use by civil defense workers, were also shown at the exhibit.

One of them looks like a bulldog-faced flashlight battery and actually is a miniature Geiger counter which can determine the amount of radiation in any given area.

It weighs two and one-half pounds. You turn it on by pushing a button and the amount of radioactivity is recorded on a tiny-meter. It can be worn around your waist, attached to a belt. It records the rate of exposure.

The fourth device resembles an alarm clock and is called a "self indicator dosimeter with alarm." It is six inches, by four inches, by 1¾ inches.

It is set like an alarm clock. You set the mark at 40, 50 or whatever degree of radiation you decide to subpect yourself to.. If you select 50, the alarm rings at the 50 mark. It is for military and area work, after an atom bomb has been dropped.

The devices are the outcome of intensive activities in atom bomb detection on the part of the electronics division of the Navy's Bureau of Ships.

The Old Second

and pleasing to find such genuine friendliness and Americanism.

W. H. Duckworth, Chief Justice of the Georgia Supreme Court, made a speech in which he criticized sharply the waste in Washington, and the idea of encouraging the people to vote for a paternal government. He reminded his audience of the stern qualities of the citizens who had built this country. You don't hear any sound sentiments like those at Twenty One, the Stork Club or other glittery places in New York. The next day I attended a lunch of the Kiwanis, and found the same wholesome spirit of concern for the country and patriotism.

That night I had dinner with a young man and his pretty bride, just starting out in life, and their eagerness and earnestness were impressive. Before the meal, she said,

"Will you ask a blessing, dear?" We bowed our heads in thanks, as he said grace.

They drove me back to the hotel. He remarked,

"You were talking to Governor Cox in Miami today."

Surprised and thinking he was a mind reader, I inquired,

"How did you know?"

"Because when I asked for you at the desk, the clerk said,

"'You'll have to wait. He's talking to Governor Cox in Miami on the telephone'."

These Days

presented to establish that an American airforce is invaluable. I refer to General MacArthur's stalemate statement.

Dean Acheson's conclusion is:

"In other words, the best use we can make of our present advantage in retaliatory air power, is to move ahead under this protective shield to build the balanced collective forces in Western Europe that will continue to deter aggression after our atomic advantage has been diminished."

If what he calls the "protective shield" is all that has deterred Russia thus far, why does he not want to strengthen "the protective shield" but to substitute something else for it? This exercise in logic is hard to follow except that some men, having long lived with a good and faithful wife who helped to build the family fortune, discard the wife to spend her sacrifices upon some floozie. It is often done, but not with too much credit for the doer.

It is a serious matter for the country when the Secretary of State speaks so casually about the expenditure of American lives.

Savers Need Help

the sacrifice is not always willing. Those who resist or deplore sacrifices they are now called on to make ought to give thought to an immense group who have been sacrificing for several years. These are the country's savers.

Year after year the savers have put their savings into life insurance, United States Savings Bonds, savings banks, pension systems and similar institutions. And year after year they have seen the value of their savings diminish through reduction in the purchasing power of the dollar. While the savers have been thus enduring loss, they have seen labor get wage raise after wage raise and have seen farmers benefit by prices of farm crops kept artificially high by the government.

The detriment thus suffered is a cruelty to an immense number of persons, those who have saved in order to have security in their old age and now find their security impaired by reduction in the purchasing power of the dollar. To check reduction in the purchasing power of the dollar, as a part of checking inflation, is a heavy obligation upon the control agencies at Washington.

Three Officers To Get Hearings Today

The Civil Service Commission will conduct a hearing today for three officers dismissed from the Police Department for "conduct unbecoming an officer."

H. Clifford Spiker, chairman, said the public hearing is set for 7:30 p. m. in the Council chamber of City Hall.

The officers, Karl W. Frankfort, Vernon E. Browning and Lewis A. Miller filed an appeal to the commission February 24 after their dismissal.

The men, with a total of 14 months' service, were suspended indefinitely January 30 as a result of an incident at Midway Inn on McMullen Highway early in the morning of January 28.

A few papers are installing telephones but most have their baseball writers release a carrier pigeon from the press box at the end of each inning.

When I have advised some of them to go to some other city I have received an odd look or should I say that I have noted a strange expression on their faces, and I have wondered if that expression was questioning me, such as if my friend questioned my faith in the future of the community, if he as an unemployed person, sometime in want, sometimes ill or with a member of the family ill, still had faith and I was in doubt.

Mr. Editor, your newspaper and you have a moral duty to the people and the community to try and bring before us those questions relative to well being. I am not asking that you endorse any part of the text of this letter but I do ask that you present it to the public that they must digest what I have suggested and probably from the whole some little part may contribute to a better future for your children and mine.

Prices Remain Depressed In Quiet Market Session

NEW YORK, March 20 (AP) — A last-minute flurry of buying in air lines was not enough to budge a torpid stock market today, and most prices remained depressed at the close.

Trading came to only 1,020,000 shares, the smallest session since Oct. 3, 1949, when 760,000 shares changed hands. And it was 100,000 shares under yesterday's extremely quiet day.

Losses ran to a low of $2.50 a share among the leaders with gains extending to around $1.50.

Air lines same to life late and added outside gains of nearly a dollar a share. Three of the 16 most active issues were air lines.

The Associated press average of 60 stocks lost 20 cents at $93.00. The industrial component of the average advanced 10 cents, but rails lost 40 cents and utilities 20 cents.

Trading again involved a narrow list of securities, only 1,074 individual issues were on the tape. Yesterday the total came to 1,071 shares. That was the smallest in a little more than six months. Nevertheless there were nine new highs. New lows were touched by 17 issues.

Westinghouse Electric was the day's most active issue off ⅛ at 36⅞, Radio Corp. was second unchanged at 20, and American Air Lines was third up ½ at 15¾.

Some of the principal losers included Santa Fe off 2¼ at 158¾, Southern Railway ¼ at 53¾, Nickel Plate 2½ at 208, Baltimore & Ohio ¼ at 20⅜, Standard Oil (NJ) ¼ at 101¼, Bethlehem Steel ½ at 53⅝, Douglas Aircraft 1¾ at 95¼, Schenley industries ¼ at 35, American Woolen ⅝ at 40⅝, and American Telephone ⅜ at 154¾.

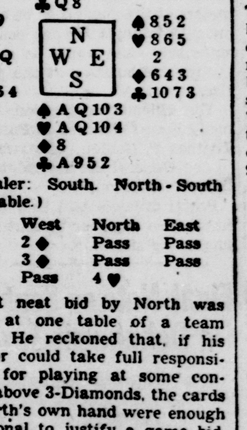
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

A REPEATED DOUBLE

WHEN your partner has made an informatory double, asking that you take out the doubled bid into some other suit, there is no question about your duty in most situations. Some players seem not to understand a good player's meaning if his double had been taken out by an intervening bid, you had passed and he then doubles a second time. With most fine cardsmen, that second double is just as much for a takeout as the first one, so long as the doubled bid is not higher than three.



(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	2 ♦	Pass	Pass
Dbl	3 ♦	Pass	Pass
Dbl	Pass	4 ♥

That neat bid by North was made at one table of a team game. He reckoned that, if his partner could take full responsibility for playing at some contract above 3-Diamonds, the cards in North's own hand were enough additional to justify a game bid. He was right, as nice play made the contract.

In the other room, the bidding was exactly the same up to the double of 3-Diamonds. In this case, North decided to pass, feeling that South's double was now optional and there was a prospect of beating the contract satisfactorily. As the play went here, West made it, losing only one trick in each suit. All of which gave his side a tremendous swing, a big factor in his team's winning of the match.

Where North soundly bid the 4-Hearts, East led the 6 of his partner's diamonds. The Q won that and the heart 3 was returned to limit ruffing. North won with the J and launched a productive cross-ruff. He trumped the diamond 5 with the heart 10 and led the club 2 toward the Q. West scored his K and, disliking other leads, returned the 4 to the Q. The diamond 7 was ruffed then by the heart Q, club A used for discarding the spade 4, club 9 ruffed by the heart K, diamond J by the heart A, the spade A scored and the spade 3 led to the 7 and heart 6. This third and last trick for the defense brought, of course, a heart return to give the 9 and 7 the last two tricks.

Six-Year-Old Boy Dies In Flood Control Ditch

Child Drowns In Eight-Foot Water Pool

Ronnie Knippenberg Falls While Playing

A six-year-old boy war drowned in an open ditch of the local flood control project on Furnace Street, while playing last evening a couple of blocks from his home. The lad fell into about eight feet of water and disappeared from the view of his playmate.

Identified as Ronald Keith Knippenberg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Knippenberg, 530 Riehl Avenue, the little victim was known in his neighborhood, school and Sunday School, as a well mannered, personable child who seldom wandered far from his home.

Last evening, after eating supper, Ronnie and his friend Bobby Detrick, eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Detrick, 539 Fairview Street, went to the flood control area to play.

Bobby said his playmate suddenly slipped on the edge of the ditch, and fell into the deep muddy water. Ronnie went down . . . came up once . . . went down again and disappeared, Bobby said. Unable to reached his friend, and unable to see him, the Detrick boy ran to his home and told his father.

Detrick went immediately to the area, while Mrs. Detrick notified police.

Several Attempts Made

At the scene, Detrick said he was unable to locate the child although he tried several times to find him in the bottom of the muddy pool.

In the meantime, Charles A. Drew, Jr., 23, of 539 Furnace Street heard the commotion. He went outside jumped into the pool and in a few minutes discovered the boy's body.

Efforts were made to revive the child by artificial respiration and the police resuscitator, but the little boy did not respond.

He was taken to Allegany Hospital, where further efforts to revive him failed.

Dr. H. V. Deming, county deputy medical examiner, said last night that death was due to drowning at about 5:55 p. m.

Police and others estimated the child had been in the water about half an hour.

Complaints Made

People in the area have complained to city officials about the delay on the job, as well as complaints of hazards to children playing in the area.

Commissioner of Streets and Public Property Lucile W. Roeder, who said last night she knew Ronnie Knippenberg personally and had him in a nursery school class at Sunday School a couple of years ago, declared the hazardous situation had been called to her attention several times.

Mrs. Roeder said she investigated the hazard in the neighborhood and asked flood control engineers and contractors to either pump out the ditch or cover it to protect children in the area.

Last night she went to the scene of the tragedy and made a personal inspection.

She declared, "this was ordered removed or remedied. Now we shall find out why it hasn't been."

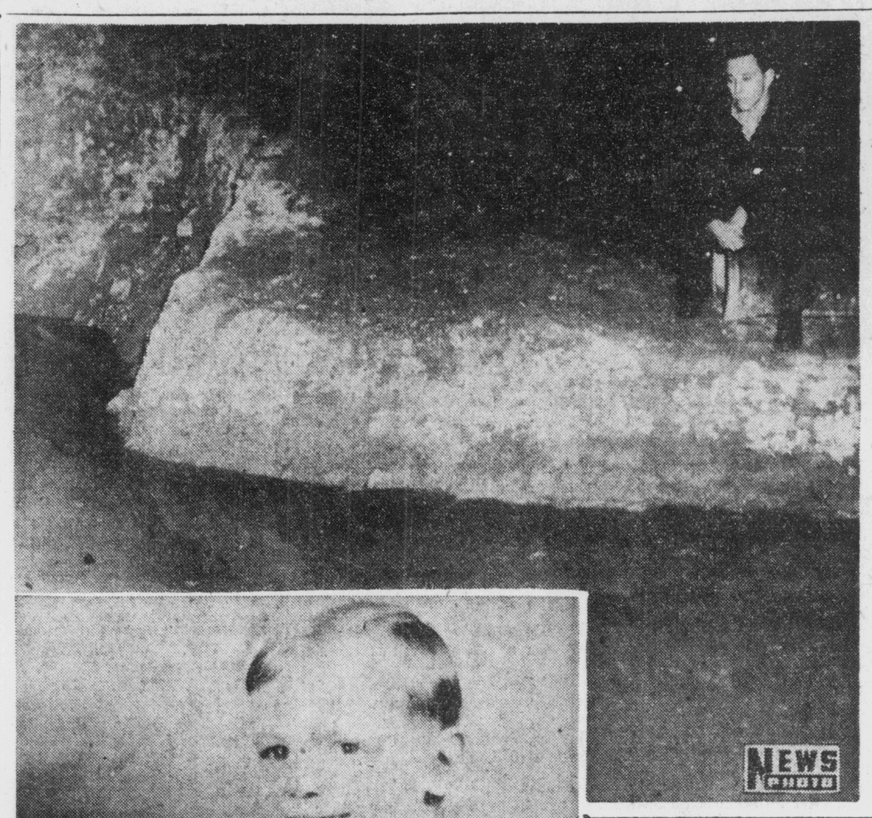
Neighborhood Bitter

People in the neighborhood last night were very bitter over the incident and it was indicated a delegation will go to City Council at the next meeting, on the flood control hazard question.

City Police received notification of the accident at 6:40 p. m. and rushed to the scene. Upon arrival the boy's body had been recovered and artificial respiraton was started. The boy was then put in the patrol wagon and taken to Allegany Hospital where he was admitted about 7 p. m.

Officers John G. Powers, Ernest M. Powell, C. W. Thompson and Assistant Chief B. Frank Gaffney went to the scene. East Side firemen were notified and a crew from the station went to the scene but upon arrival found police already working on the boy.

Knippenberg, a first grade pupil at Columbia Street School was born on October 19, 1944. He is survived by his parents Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Knippenberg, and he lived at the home of his grandmother Mrs. Elizabeth Wills.



Victim Of Flood Control

Shown above is the scene on East Furnace Street where Ronald Keith Knippenberg, 6, of 530 Riehl Avenue, was a victim of drowning last night at about 6 o'clock. Charles A. Drew Jr., 23, of 539 Furnace Street, is shown looking at the spot where he recovered the body of the boy. The hole, which resulted from construction work now underway on one of the phases of the Cumberland flood project, measures about 10 or 12 feet across at the point. The depth of the water in the middle of the hole is about eight feet deep.

Below is a picture of the victim. Ronald was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Knippenberg, and lived with his mother at the home of his grandmother, Mrs. Elizabeth Wills. Ronald was a first grade pupil at Columbia Street School and attended Sunday School at Centre Street Methodist Church.

Plan Proposed To Aid Parking At Post Office

Beall To Be Asked To Support Program

Federal legislators will be asked to support a plan to eliminate the present grass spot in front of the Cumberland post office in order to improve traffic and parking conditions on Pershing Street.

Mrs. Lucile Roeder, commissioner of streets and public property, and Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long introduced the plan sponsored by O. C. Hileman, this city, at a meeting of the Mayor and Council.

Hileman, on February 20, suggested to Commissioner Long that the sidewalk be moved back to the building line in order to improve parking at the post office and to relieve traffic on Pershing Street.

The action included a motion to contact Rep. J. Glenn Beall and other federal legislators, asking support for the plan.

Finance Commissioner William H. Buchholtz suggested that parking meters at the post office be operated on a 12 minutes for one cent basis, since that time would be sufficient for routine business at the post office.

The Hileman suggestion has already been forwarded to Postmaster Thomas F. Conlon, who referred it to the General Service Administration, Washington,

Postal officials said they suggested that an engineer be sent here to survey the situation.

UMW Driving To Unionize Preston County

Bullet Rips Through Caretaker's Shack

By JACK DAVIS

KINGWOOD, W. Va., March 20 (AP) — The United Mine Workers is making its most determined drive in 15 years to unionize Preston County, one of the last non-union fields in West Virginia.

Harry Myers, UMW organizer, said today the union has come into the area "because the miners asked us to." And we're staying, he added.

The UMW began distributing food to the striking miners six weeks ago —two weeks after the strike started. The union also has provided gasoline for the cars hauling the pickets.

Only about 500 of the county's nearly 3,000 miners are UMW members. Many of the non-union mines have been working on a reduced scale until pickets stopped the miners from entering the pits.

Since the fatal shooting of one picket and the wounding of two others last Saturday, feeling between the union and non-union sympathizers has become even more strained.

Last night a non-union miner serving as caretaker of a mine idle since the strike began barely escaped being hit by a "punkin-ball" bullet that ripped through his shack.

Caretaker Leaves

State Police Lt. W. E. Murphy, serving with the reinforced detachment here, said Thomas Kifer, about 65, reported he heard four shots splatter outside his shack beside the Sigley Coal Co. tipple near Tunnelton.

As he reached up to turn off the light, Kifer told officers, a slug ripped through two walls, missed him by about six inches and dug into a third wall. Kifer moved out at 7 a. m. today.

(A "punkin-ball" is a bullet packed into the end of a shotgun shell and fired from a conventional shotgun. It generally is used against big game up to about 200 yards.)

A request for a temporary injunction filed by the operators a week ago to prevent picketing still has not been acted on by Circuit Judge C. P. Wilhelm.

Decision Slated Soon

Wilhelm said today he may announce his decision Thursday or Friday.

Meanwhile, business in this county seat has dropped off considerably. The Albright National Bank of Kingwood reported its clearings last month were down 30 per cent, the lowest since 1946.

Other concerns reported similar decreases in turnover.

Most of the county's UMW sympathizers are expected to turn out in force tomorrow for the funeral of Joe Arnold, 29-year-old Kingwood coal loader, who was shot Saturday night near Clay, nearly 200 miles south of here.

State police at Clay said George Burnett Hudson, 57, in whose front yard the shooting occurred, had admitted firing the shots. He is being held in jail pending filing of a formal murder charge.

Hudson was a foreman at a non-union mine near here.

The two men wounded still were in separate hospitals.

Gloyd Uphold, 37, of Kingwood, is in a Charleston hospital with a bullet wound in his shoulder. Donald Poling, 34, is in a Grafton hospital with a shotgun wound on the side of his face.

Equity Case Filed

An equity case was filed in Allegany County Circuit Court yesterday in a bill of complaint titled Anna Bell Christman vs. Franklin Bane Christman.

Increased City Taxes Opposed By Whitworth

Against Lobbying By Prosecutor's Office

Objecting sharply to lobbying activities of the Allegany County State's Attorney's office, Delegate Horace P. Whitworth, Jr., said last night he will oppose, at a hearing set today to reconsider action on police and fire department increases, any boost in taxes in Cumberland at this time.

Delegate Whitworth said the hearing was set as a result of a visit from William H. Geppert, assistant state's attorney and attorney and spokesman for the Police and Firemen's Welfare Association, urging reconsideration of three bills providing $584 flat annual wage increases, and a boost in vacation and sick leave allowances for the departments.

Saying it was no use to talk economy unless one is willing to follow through with action, Whitworth said he is still opposed to raising taxes in Cumberland at this time.

Depends On Assessments

He said he believes the people of Cumberland would like to give every city employe a raise, but that the burden of taxation is great enough as it is.

He pointed out that the Mayor and Council may be able, if increase in property assessments brings in sufficient money, to grant the increases.

He said he objected to members of the State's Attorney's office who are paid by the people of Allegany County, spending time which belongs to the people in lobbying activities.

Whitworth also attributed to action of lobbyists the flood of telegrams from labor unions of Allegany County asking that the boosts for police and firemen be granted.

Wants To Be Consistent

He said he has had to take an economy stand in state government and saw no reason to be inconsistent in reference to Cumberland, which, because of economic conditions, cannot stand more taxes at this time.

Whitworth said the action of the Delegation in reference to the police and firemen's increases is "one more instance why home rule should be voted for Cumberland, so the people can govern their own destiny."

He said he was sure that if money is available later, the Mayor and Council will do all within their power to increase the salaries of all city employes.

Action on the Bowling Green taxing area bill is expected soon, Whitworth said.

Property Sold For $30,000

Sale of four parcels of real estate for a total of $30,000, was recorded in deeds filed with the clerk of Circuit Court.

Roger M. Combs and Audrey L. Combs sold property on Charles Street in Dressman's Addition of Election District No. 29 to Edward McCagh and Martha F. McCagh for about $12,500, according to one deed.

Guiseppe DiMatteo and Clementina DiMatteo transferred ownership to the Cumberland Realty and Storage Company of property on North Centre Street for about $6,500, their deed discloses.

William O. Shipley and Iris E. Shipley have sold property on Harold Drive in Cresaptown to James W. Tyree and Veronica I. Tyree for about $6.000. according to another deed. Bruce F. Richardson, May M. Richardson, Kirk C. Richardson and Olive J. Richardson have sold property on Fairview Avenue at Riehl Avenue to James W. Cordry and Dorothy K. Cordry for about $5,000, according to another deed.

Street Widening Plan Is Studied

The city is considering the possibility of widening portions of two streets in connection with the flood control project.

Mrs. Lucile Roeder, commissioner of streets and public property, said that department has asked Albert S. Paye, city flood control liaison engineer, to investigate the possibility of widening Wineow Street from the A. and P. market to the B. and O. subway, and South Mechanic Street from Harrison to Williams Street.

It is possible, Mrs. Roeder said, that the work may be done at considerably less expense to the city if it can be coordinated with the flood control work.

Industrial Fund Bill Is Favored

The Allegany County Delegation yesterday gave a favorable report on House Bill 606, which enables the city and county to aid in industrial promotion activities in Allegany County.

Delegate Charles M. See, chairman of the Delegation, said the bill provides legislation authorizing the City of Cumberland and the Board of Allegany County Commissioners to give $5,000 each to the Cumberland-Allegany Industrial Development Company for aid in expanding industrial development.

The Delegation is expected to act today on a Delegation sponsored bill to increase Cumberland's operating tax levy from 90 to 95 cents.

Used Car Lot Ordinance To Be Enforced

Strict observance of a city ordinance regulating used car lots in this city may result from action of the Mayor and Council this week.

Charles C. Sullivan, 304 Magruder Street, had asked permission to operate a used car lot at Thomas and Cresap Streets, a site he said had previously been used for the same purpose.

The application was referred to the chief of police, the fire department and the City Engineer's office.

Mayor Thomas S. Post said that provision should be made, before such a license is approved, that all terms of the city ordinance are met.

The ordinance, No. 1,799, requires that the entire surface of the lot be oiled at least once each 60 days, from April 1 to December 1 or be paved with blacktop or concrete.

Routine action of the Mayor and Council this week includes:

Permission for Charles Heavner, Wiley Ford, W. Va., to operate a parking lot at 140 Harrison Street.

Referred to the Street Department a communication from Lewis C. Soethe, 431 Greene Street, thanking the city for correcting a sewage condition and asking a settlement for expenses he incurred in trying to overcome the situation.

Tabled a recommendation of W. Earle Cobey, city attorney, that the city pay $30 for X-rays in connection with the examination of Mrs. Lillian Simons, following a fall at City Hall.

Man Acquitted In Slots Cases

PARSONS, W. Va.—Two long-pending charges against Fred L. Stone, steward of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Home here, of allowing the operation of slot machines in the home, were settled yesterday when a petit jury in Tucker County Circuit Court here found him not guilty.

Stone was arrested last April by West Virginia State Police. He was charged with allowing the operation of two slot machines, one for nickels and the other for quarters.

Last June the charges against Stone were thrown out of the Tucker county court on grounds that the indictments were improperly drawn. When the cases were heard during the September term of court they resulted in a hung jury

Area Firemen To Further Defense Plan

Meeting Set Tonight At Shaft Fire Hall

Another in the series of Civil Defense meetings of area volunteer fire companies will be held tonight at 8 p. m. in the Shaft Fire Hall. Joseph G. Wenrich, Cresaptown, who has been serving as acting chairman at these weekly meetings said last night it is hoped to have representation from all volunteer fire companies along the Georges Creek section.

Wenrich added he hopes to have representatives from the fire departments of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company at Luke, and the Baltimore and Ohio Shops in Keyser, W. Va.

The program was set up some time ago by the Allegany Garrett Firt Chiefs Association in an effort to map out the immediate area and assign zones to be taken care of by area firemen in the event of attack by bombing.

William C. Barger, county director of Civil Defense is having a map prepared of the entire area. Each volunteer fire company will be given such a map. It will contain a layout of all manufacturing areas, towns etc. and the degree of importance of protection and required help in time of need. Plans are also underway to have fire departments inspect plants of which they will be concerned in time of attack. In this manner they will become acquainted with the layout including water supply and other facilities.

Kimble Supports $250 Boost For State Teachers

Sponsors $100-$200 Increases In County

ANNAPOLIS, Md., March 20 (AP)—Senate Minority Leader Kimble (R-Allegany) today backed $250 pay raises for Maryland school teachers.

His move lacked administration support. Governor McKeldin has rejected additional state aid for teachers.

Neither was Kimble able to muster solid support of the Senate's 11-man Republican bloc.

He said he would introduce a bill to provide for the raises tomorrow. He estimated the cost of approximately $4,000,000 would be met if the Legislature boosts the state income tax on corporations from four to five per cent.

Kimble sponsored a bill calling for the tax increase last week.

His decision on teachers' pay followed two caucuses of minority senators and a midnight conference with Governor McKeldin last night.

Governor Opposes Plan

The governor repeated his opposition to higher taxes for more school funds. He said before he thinks it's primarily a local problem.

After the second caucus today, Kimble said Republicans decided against any action "to commit the minority senators to any program."

Reports indicated most Republicans favored higher pay for teachers but declined to take the initiative because of the governor's attitude toward new taxes.

Kimble said he had found no takers among Democrats to whom he suggested introducing the pay-raise bill under bipartisan sponsorship.

His will be the second teacher salary measure in the legislative mill. A group of delegates last week recommended $500 raises. They sent to the House a bill drafted by school authorities with endorsement of the State Department of Education, Parent-Teacher and faculty associations.

Backs Boosts Here

Earlier today Kimble put in SB394 to instruct Allegany County commissioners to provide their teachers with $100 and $200 increases. The amount would depend on length of service. Existing county revenue sources would pay the cost.

"Until the state changes its policy and decides that it doesn't have any responsibility to render assistance to the local governments for schools, I feel I am justified in introducing the statewide bill," Kimble said.

The Senate yesterday passed and sent to the House SB192, by McLaughlin, which provides for confiscation by Washington, Allegany, Carroll, Cecil, Garrett and Howard Counties, of monies seized in gambling and lottery raids within the county.

Slot Measure Dropped

The largest crowd to sit in a Maryland legislative hall this year wrestled until early yesterday over slot machines.

The debate before more than 800 persons jammed into the House chamber was whether there will be a new bill to legalize the machines in Prince George's county.

The Prince George's delegation, after the hearing decided it would not sponsor any slot machine bill at this session.

The Senate passed and sent to the House a bill to authorize sentencing judges to set the date for hangings. The governor now issues death warrants. He still would be able to stay executions.

Senators shunted to the finance committee a bill by Minority Leader Kimble (R-Allegany) to restore the State Commission on Prevailing Wages. This group was dissolved by a recent Court of Appeals decision.

Set up by the 1950 legislature, it set minimum wage-hour standards for workers on state projects. The high court ruled the legislature had no authority to pass such legislation in an even-year session.

Ballistics Lab Expansion Plan Is Underway

Contract To Be Let On Huge Addition

A 10 to 15 percent increase in employment will take place at the Allegany Ballistics Laboratory at Pinto after completion of the new three-quarter of a million dollar production development line, O. B. Case, plant manager, said yesterday.

Four area contractors are being considered this week for the construction of a new addition expected to be completed in six months. Preliminary work should begin the first week of April Case added. The contractor will be appointed by the Bureau of Yards and Docks of the Navy Department.

Case said yesterday that employment at the Pinto plant has increased about 35 percent in the past year and the increase of 10 to 15 percent will be over and above the present employment figure.

The new line including operating buildings, magazines and a separate boiler house will be located between the present magazine area and X range. The purpose of the line is to develop efficient operational methods for producing certain explosives which have been developed at Pinto on an experimental basis.

A new construction access road will be built so that construction crews, materials and equipment will cause a minimum of interference with normal operations.

Layout plans, drawings, and specifications are being handled by plant engineer William E. Piper, his assistant Clarence Tottschall, and the plant engineer staff. This staff is being assisted by specialists from the Hercules Powder Company's Home Office including Frank McMullen on general layout, building construction, equipment, etc., Joseph Frand, machine design, Walter Applegate, steam requirements and layout, and William Mearns, electrical layout.

Health Forum Plans Complete

Final plans have been completed for the first annual Owners and Managers Conference today at the Health Department Training Center.

Sponsoring the program the Cumberland Health Department is attempting to foster closer cooperation between food establishments and the department. Approximately 75 to 100 are expected to attend the meeting.

Dr. Winter R. Frantz, city and county health officer, will preside at the meeting which will begin at 1:30 p. m. and last until 5 o'clock.

The program will include a film issued by the National Restaurant Association, and talks by Robert J. Wilson, Washington, D. C., executive vice president of the association; C. S. Brinsfield, Baltimore, state food and drug commissioner, Mrs. Myra B. Hays, Baltimore, executive secretary of the Restaurant Association of Maryland; and H. F. Quay, of Swift and Company.

Eighty-seven per cent of Cumberland's restaurants recently received Class A ratings, health departments officials said.

Six Scouts Pass Merit Tests

The session was in charge of Towler assisted by R. E. Hollandsworth, member of the advancement committee.

Judge Henderson Back From Vacation

Tanned and apparently well-rested from a three-week vacation in Florida, Associate Judge George Henderson was back at his desk in the Allegany County House yesterday.

Judge and Mrs. Henderson spent most of their vacation in the vicinity of the Naples Beach Hotel at Naples on the west coast of Florida. The jurist reports that because of high winds fishing was difficult. As a result he had no stories to report about big fish that he caught, or those that got away.

Six-Year-Old Boy Dies In Flood Control Ditch

Child Drowns In Eight-Foot Water Pool

Ronnie Knippenberg Falls While Playing

A six-year-old boy war drowned in an open ditch of the local flood control project on Furnace Street, while playing last evening a couple of blocks from his home. The lad fell into about eight feet of water and disappeared from the view of his playmate.

Identified as Ronald Keith Knippenberg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Knippenberg, 530 Riehl Avenue, the little victim was known in his neighborhood, school and Sunday School, as a well mannered, personable child who seldom wandered far from his home.

Last evening, after eating supper, Ronnie and his friend Bobby Detrick, eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Detrick, 539 Fairview Street, went to the flood control area to play.

Bobby said his playmate suddenly slipped on the edge of the ditch, and fell into the deep muddy water. Ronnie went down . . . came up once . . . went down again and disappeared, Bobby said. Unable to reached his friend, and unable to see him, the Detrick boy ran to his home and told his father.

Detrick went immediately to the area, while Mrs. Detrick notified police.

Several Attempts Made

At the scene, Detrick said he was unable to locate the child although he tried several times to find him in the bottom of the muddy pool.

In the meantime, Charles A. Drew, Jr., 23, of 539 Furnace Street heard the commotion. He went outside jumped into the pool and in a few minutes discovered the boy's body.

Efforts were made to revive the child by artificial respiration and the police resuscitator, but the little boy did not respond.

He was taken to Allegany Hospital, where further efforts to revive him failed.

Dr. H. V. Deming, county deputy medical examiner, said last night that death was due to drowning at about 5:55 p. m.

Police and others estimated the child had been in the water about half an hour.

Complaints Made

People in the area have complained to city officials about the delay on the job, as well as complaints of hazards to children playing in the area.

Commissioner of Streets and Public Property Lucile W. Roeder, who said last night she knew Ronnie Knippenberg personally and had him in a nursery school class at Sunday School a couple of years ago, declared the hazardous situation had been called to her attention several times.

Mrs. Roeder said she investigated the hazard in the neighborhood and asked flood control engineers and contractors to either pump out the ditch or cover it to protect children in the area.

Last night she went to the scene of the tragedy and made a personal inspection.

Neighborhood Bitter

People in the neighborhood last night were very bitter over the incident and it was indicated a delegation will go to City Council at the next meeting, on the flood control hazard question.

City Police received notification of the accident at 6:40 p. m. and rushed to the scene. Upon arrival the boy's body had been recovered and artificial respiraton was started. The boy was then put in the patrol wagon and taken to Allegany Hospital where he was admitted about 7 p. m.

Officers John G. Powers, Ernest M. Powell, C. W. Thompson and Assistant Chief B. Frank Gaffney went to the scene. East Side firemen were notified and a crew from the station went to the scene but upon arrival found police already working on the boy.

Knippenberg, a first grade pupil at Columbia Street School was born on October 19, 1944. He is survived by his parents Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Knippenberg, and he lived at the home of his grandmother Mrs. Elizabeth Wills.

Drew Jr., 23, of 539 Furnace Street, is shown looking at the spot where he recovered the body of the boy. The hole, which resulted from construction work now underway on one of the phases of the Cumberland flood project, measures about 10 or 12 feet across at the point. The depth of the water in the middle of the hole is about eight feet deep.

Plan Proposed To Aid Parking At Post Office

Beall To Be Asked To Support Program

Federal legislators will be asked to support a plan to eliminate the present grass spot in front of the Cumberland post office in order to improve traffic and parking conditions on Pershing Street.

Mrs. Lucile Roeder, commissioner of streets and public property, and Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long introduced the plan sponsored by O. C. Hileman, this city, at a meeting of the Mayor and Council.

Hileman, on February 20, suggested to Commissioner Long that the sidewalk be moved back to the building line in order to improve parking at the post office and to relieve traffic on Pershing Street.

The action included a motion to contact Rep. J. Glenn Beall and other federal legislators, asking support for the plan.

Finance Commissioner William H. Buchholtz suggested that parking meters at the post office be operated on a 12 minutes for one cent basis, since that time would be sufficient for routine business at the post office.

The Hileman suggestion has already been forwarded to Postmaster Thomas F. Conlon, who referred it to the General Service Administration, Washington,

Postal officials said they suggested that an engineer be sent here to survey the situation.

Increased City Taxes Opposed By Whitworth

Against Lobbying By Prosecutor's Office

Objecting sharply to lobbying activities of the Allegany County State's Attorney's office, Delegate Horace P. Whitworth, Jr., said last night he will oppose, at a hearing set today to reconsider action on police and fire department increases, any boost in taxes in Cumberland at this time.

Delegate Whitworth said the hearing was set as a result of a visit from William H. Geppert, assistant state's attorney and attorney and spokesman for the Police and Firemen's Welfare Association, urging reconsideration of three bills providing $584 flat annual wage increases, and a boost in vacation and sick leave allowances for the departments.

Saying it was no use to talk economy unless one is willing to follow through with action, Whitworth said he is still opposed to raising taxes in Cumberland at this time.

Depends On Assessments

He said he believes the people of Cumberland would like to give every city employe a raise, but that the burden of taxation is great enough as it is.

He pointed out that the Mayor and Council may be able, if increase in property assessments brings in sufficient money, to grant the increases.

He said he objected to members of the State's Attorney's office who are paid by the people of Allegany County, spending time which belongs to the people in lobbying activities.

Whitworth also attributed to action of lobbyists the flood of telegrams from labor unions of Allegany County asking that the boosts for police and firemen be granted.

Wants To Be Consistent

He said he has had to take an economy stand in state government and saw no reason to be inconsistent in reference to Cumberland, which, because of economic conditions, cannot stand more taxes at this time.

Whitworth said the action of the Delegation in reference to the police and firemen's increases is "one more instance why home rule should be voted for Cumberland, so the people can govern their own destiny."

He said he was sure that if money is available later, the Mayor and Council will do all within their power to increase the salaries of all city employes.

Action on the Bowling Green taxing area bill is expected soon, Whitworth said.

UMW Driving To Unionize Preston County

Bullet Rips Through Caretaker's Shack

By JACK DAVIS

KINGWOOD, W. Va., March 20 (AP)—The United Mine Workers is making its most determined drive in 15 years to unionize Preston County, one of the last non-union fields in West Virginia.

Harry Myers, UMW organizer, said today the union has come into the area "because the miners asked us to." And we're staying, he added.

The UMW began distributing food to the striking miners six weeks ago—two weeks after the strike started. The union also has provided gasoline for the cars hauling the pickets.

Only about 500 of the county's nearly 3,000 miners are UMW members. Many of the non-union mines have been working on a reduced scale until pickets stopped the miners from entering the pits.

Since the fatal shooting of one picket and the wounding of two others last Saturday, feeling between the union and non-union sympathizers has become even more strained.

Last night a non-union miner serving as caretaker of a mine idle since the strike began barely escaped being hit by a "punkin-ball" bullet that ripped through his shack.

Caretaker Leaves

State Police Lt. W. E. Murphy, serving with the reinforced detachment here, said Thomas Kifer, about 65, reported he heard four shots splatter outside his shack beside the Sigley Coal Co. tipple near Tunnelton.

As he reached up to turn off the light, Kifer told officers, a slug ripped through two walls, missed him by about six inches and dug into a third wall. Kifer moved out at 7 a. m. today.

(A "punkin-ball" is a bullet packed into the end of a shotgun shell and fired from a conventional shotgun. It generally is used against big game up to about 200 yards.)

A request for a temporary injunction filed by the operators a week ago to prevent picketing still has not been acted on by Circuit Judge C. P. Wilhelm.

Decision Slated Soon

Wilhelm said today he may announce his decision Thursday or Friday.

Meanwhile, business in this county seat has dropped off considerably. The Albright National Bank of Kingwood reported its clearings last month were down 30 per cent, the lowest since 1946.

Other concerns reported similar decreases in turnover.

Most of the county's UMW sympathizers are expected to turn out in force tomorrow for the funeral of Joe Arnold, 29-year-old Kingwood coal loader, who was shot Saturday night near Clay, nearly 200 miles south of here.

State police at Clay said George Burnett Hudson, 57, in whose front yard the shooting occurred, had admitted firing the shots. He is being held in jail pending filing of a formal murder charge.

Hudson was a foreman at a non-union mine near here.

The two men wounded still were in separate hospitals.

Gloyd Uphold, 37, of Kingwood, is in a Charleston hospital with a bullet wound in his shoulder. Donald Poling, 34, is in a Grafton hospital with a shotgun wound on the side of his face.

Equity Case Filed

An equity case was filed in Allegany County Circuit Court yesterday in a bill of complaint titled Anna Bell Christman vs. Franklin Bane Christman.

Guiseppe DiMatteo and Clementina DiMatteo transferred ownership to the Cumberland Realty and Storage Company of property on North Centre Street for about $6,500, their deed discloses.

William O. Shipley and Iris E. Shipley have sold property on Harold Drive in Cresaptown to James W. Tyree and Veronica I. Tyree for about $6.000. according to another deed. Bruce F. Richardson, May M. Richardson, Kirk C. Richardson and Olive J. Richardson have sold property on Fairview Avenue at Riehl Avenue to James W. Cordry and Dorothy K. Cordry for about $5,000, according to another deed.

Street Widening Plan Is Studied

The city is considering the possibility of widening portions of two streets in connection with the flood control project.

Mrs. Lucile Roeder, commissioner of streets and public property, said that department has asked Albert S. Paye, city flood control liaison engineer, to investigate the possibility of widening Wineow Street from the A. and P. market to the B. and O. subway, and South Mechanic Street from Harrison to Williams Street.

It is possible, Mrs. Roeder said, that the work may be done at considerably less expense to the city if it can be coordinated with the flood control work.

Industrial Fund Bill Is Favored

The Allegany County Delegation yesterday gave a favorable report on House Bill 606, which enables the city and county to aid in industrial promotion activities in Allegany County.

Delegate Charles M. See, chairman of the Delegation, said the bill provides legislation authorizing the City of Cumberland and the Board of Allegany County Commissioners to give $5,000 each to the Cumberland-Allegany Industrial Development Company for aid in expanding industrial development.

The Delegation is expected to act today on a Delegation sponsored bill to increase Cumberland's operating tax levy from 90 to 95 cents.

Kimble Supports $250 Boost For State Teachers

Sponsors $100-$200 Increases In County

ANNAPOLIS, Md., March 20 (AP)—Senate Minority Leader Kimble (R-Allegany) today backed $250 pay raises for Maryland school teachers.

His move lacked administration support. Governor McKeldin has rejected additional state aid for teachers.

Neither was Kimble able to muster solid support of the Senate's 11-man Republican bloc.

He said he would introduce a bill to provide for the raises tomorrow. He estimated the cost of approximately $4,000,000 would be met if the Legislature boosts the state income tax on corporations from four to five per cent.

Kimble sponsored a bill calling for the tax increase last week.

Governor Opposes Plan

The governor repeated his opposition to higher taxes for more school funds. He said before he thinks it's primarily a local problem.

After the second caucus today, Kimble said Republicans decided against any action "to commit the minority senators to any program."

Reports indicated most Republicans favored higher pay for teachers but declined to take the initiative because of the governor's attitude toward new taxes.

Kimble said he had found no takers among Democrats to whom he suggested introducing the pay-raise bill under bipartisan sponsorship.

His will be the second teacher salary measure in the legislative mill. A group of delegates last week recommended $500 raises. They sent to the House a bill drafted by school authorities with endorsement of the State Department of Education, Parent-Teacher and faculty associations.

Backs Boosts Here

Earlier today Kimble put in SB394 to instruct Allegany County commissioners to provide their teachers with $100 and $200 increases. The amount would depend on length of service. Existing county revenue sources would pay the cost.

"Until the state changes its policy and decides that it doesn't have any responsibility to render assistance to the local governments for schools, I feel I am justified in introducing the statewide bill," Kimble said.

The Senate yesterday passed and sent to the House SB192, by McLaughlin, which provides for confiscation by Washington, Allegany, Carroll, Cecil, Garrett and Howard Counties, of monies seized in gambling and lottery raids within the county.

Slot Measure Dropped

The largest crowd to sit in a Maryland legislative hall this year wrestled until early yesterday over slot machines.

The debate before more than 800 persons jammed into the House chamber was whether there will be a new bill to legalize the machines in Prince George's county.

The Prince George's delegation, after the hearing decided it would not sponsor any slot machine bill at this session.

The Senate passed and sent to the House a bill to authorize sentencing judges to set the date for hangings. The governor now issues death warrants. He still would be able to stay executions.

Senators shunted to the finance committee a bill by Minority Leader Kimble (R-Allegany) to restore the State Commission on Prevailing Wages. This group was dissolved by a recent Court of Appeals decision.

Set up by the 1950 legislature, it set minimum wage-hour standards for workers on state projects. The high court ruled the legislature had no authority to pass such legislation in an even-year session.

Ballistics Lab Expansion Plan Is Underway

Contract To Be Let On Huge Addition

A 10 to 15 percent increase in employment will take place at the Allegany Ballistics Laboratory at Pinto after completion of the new three-quarter of a million dollar production development line, O. B. Case, plant manager, said yesterday.

Four area contractors are being considered this week for the construction of a new addition expected to be completed in six months. Preliminary work should begin the first week of April Case added. The contractor will be appointed by the Bureau of Yards and Docks of the Navy Department.

Case said yesterday that employment at the Pinto plant has increased about 35 percent in the past year and the increase of 10 to 15 percent will be over and above the present employment figure.

The new line including operating buildings, magazines and a separate boiler house will be located between the present magazine area and X range. The purpose of the line is to develop efficient operational methods for producing certain explosives which have been developed at Pinto on an experimental basis.

A new construction access road will be built so that construction crews, materials and equipment will cause a minimum of interference with normal operations.

Layout plans, drawings, and specifications are being handled by plant engineer William E. Piper, his assistant Clarence Tottschall, and the plant engineer staff. This staff is being assisted by specialists from the Hercules Powder Company's Home Office including Frank McMullen on general layout, building construction, equipment, etc., Joseph Frand, machine design, Walter Applegate, steam requirements and layout, and William Mearns, electrical layout.

Health Forum Plans Complete

Final plans have been completed for the first annual Owners and Managers Conference today at the Health Department Training Center.

Sponsoring the program the Cumberland Health Department is attempting to foster closer cooperation between food establishments and the department. Approximately 75 to 100 are expected to attend the meeting.

Dr. Winter R. Frantz, city and county health officer, will preside at the meeting which will begin at 1:30 p. m. and last until 5 o'clock.

The program will include a film issued by the National Restaurant Association, and talks by Robert J. Wilson, Washington, D. C., executive vice president of the association; C. S. Brinsfield, Baltimore, state food and drug commissioner, Mrs. Myra B. Hays, Baltimore, executive secretary of the Restaurant Association of Maryland; and H. F. Quay, of Swift and Company.

Eighty-seven per cent of Cumberland's restaurants recently received Class A ratings, health departments officials said.

Six Scouts Pass Merit Tests

Six Boy Scouts of the Cumberland District passed examinations for advancement and merit badges at the monthly board of review last night at scout headquarters according to John L. Towler, district advancement committee chairman.

The boys were James Duffy, Edward Beery, and Michael Cunningham of Troop No. 2 sponsored by the Baltimore and Ohio YMCA who passed tests for second class rank; Robert Parker, Troop No. 4 of Centre Street Church who met the requirements for Bird Study merit badge; and Ken Smith, also of Troop No. 4, and John Fogle, Troop No. 2, who passed tests for Home Repairs merit badges.

The session was in charge of Towler assisted by R. E. Hollandsworth, member of the advancement committee.

Judge Henderson Back From Vacation

Tanned and apparently well-rested from a three-week vacation in Florida, Associate Judge George Henderson was back at his desk in the Allegany County House yesterday.

Judge and Mrs. Henderson spent most of their vacation in the vicinity of the Naples Beach Hotel at Naples on the west coast of Florida. The jurist reports that because of high winds fishing was difficult. As a result he had no stories to report about big fish that he caught, or those that got away.

U. N. OFFENSIVE GRINDS FORWARD

Costello Again Refuses To Tell Crime Probers How Much He Is Worth

O'Dwyer Tells Committee Racketeer Sinister Influence On Tammany Hall

NEW YORK, March 20 (AP)—Racketeer Frank Costello, stubborn from first to last, refused again today to tell Senate crime probers how much money he's worth.

He first balked at the question last Tuesday, the first day he was a witness before the all-star open hearings of the Senate Crime Investigating Committee.

And today—the next to last day—he refused again in just about the same hoarse manner, saying:

"I refuse to answer on constitutional grounds."

His attorney was allowed to argue in a written brief due by Monday that Costello has the right to refuse. If the argument fails, the big-time racketeer faces a contempt citation by the Senate.

Costello came back to the hearing after the committee spent most of the day listening to William O'Dwyer, former mayor or New York. O'Dwyer admitted knowing Costello whom he called a sinister influence on Tammany Hall.

O'Dwyer Met Adonis

O'Dwyer, in his testimony, added Racketeeer Joe Adonis to his list of acquaintances around town, but said they met casually only once.

Costello seemed more relaxed as he went before the committee for the sixth day in a row.

His seemingly naive answers to some questions convulsed the packed hearing room more than once.

Enlarging on his influence in Tammany Hall Costello conceded he knew 14 Tammany leaders. The Democratic Manhattan organization is made up of 42 district leaders, plus 42 co-leaders.

Costello testified yesterday he pulled strings back in 1942 to make Michael Kennedy leader of Tammany. Kennedy died in a plane crash in 1949.

On the witness stand only briefly, Costello was directed to return tomorrow for the grand finale of the colorful hearing.

The committee must wind up its work before its life expires at the end of the month. But Sen. O'Conor (D-Md), said he will talk with other senators about extending the committee's life.

Impellitteri Mentioned

Costello took the witness chair after State Industrial Commissioner Edward Corsi brought Mayor Vincent Impellitteri's name into the record for the first time.

Corsi testified he heard from "reliable sources" that Impellitteri accepted political backing from Underworld Character Thomas (Three Finger Brown) Luchese.

Impellitteri won election as mayor last fall as an independent Democrat. Corsi was the defeated Republican candidate.

The fiery Sen. Tobey (R-N.H.), quieter than usual most of the seventh day of the open hearings suddenly exploded in mid-afternoon with a theory that police murdered a key witness against the old Murder, Inc., gang.

Tobey pecked away all day long at the mystery death a decade ago of Abe (Kid Twist) Reles.

Witness Plunged To Death

Reles plunged to his death from a hotel while six guards were holding him as a material witness for O'Dwyer, then district attorney of Brooklyn. Police said Reles fell trying to escape.

With Reles dead, the chief suspect in the case, Albert Anastasia escaped prosecution.

O'Dwyer had finished his testimony and was about to leave the witness chair when Tobey threw his question.

"Why did the men (guards) in the room throw Reles out the window when you needed another man to back up his testimony?"

Replied O'Dwyer in a seemingly shocked manner:

"Did you say the six men in the room threw him out the window?"

"Yes, that's my theory," said

RFC Director's Secretary Tells Of Letter Incident

Justice Dept. Checks Tax Evasion Angle

WASHINGTON, March 20 (AP) — Mrs. Florence M. Smoot, secretary to RFC Director Walter L. Dunham, has testified that at a time when her employer was out of the city another RFC director urged her to rush Dunham's resignation to the White House.

Mrs. Smoot said the other director was C. Edward Rowe. She said Rowe wanted her to rewrite the first page of a previously prepared letter of resignation, and then hustle it over to Presidential Assistant Donald Dawson.

Dunham has testified the move to get him to resign was an attempt to make him the "goat" in the congressional investigation of RFC. Rowe denied this.

Dunham "Approved" Changes

Rowe testified that it was true he had suggested changes in Dunham's letter. But, he said, it all was done with Dunham's approval. Rowe denied he had urged immediate delivery of the resignation, which Dunham had prepared in case President Truman wanted it.

Mrs. Smoot said the letter was not delivered to the White House. She said that after Rowe urged her to deliver it, she called up Dunham, who was in Florida, and he got "very angry" and told her not to let the letter go.

The testimony was given yesterday behind closed doors, and was made public today by a Senate Banking subcommittee.

The subcommittee has been investigating the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, a government agency which lends billions of dollars. Some of the RFC directors are accused of "favoritism" and yielding to political influence.

Justice Dept. Enters Probe

In addition to the testimony, there were these developments:

1. The Justice Department began looking into possible tax evasions in connection with a grand jury investigation of RFC operations. Edward W. Molenoff of the department's tax division sat in today on the grand jury hearing.

2. Sen. Dworshak (R-Idaho) called for the outright liquidation of RFC. He told a reporter it had outlived its usefulness. Dworshak called the RFC "a political auxiliary for the Truman administration."

3. The chief of the subcommittee's investigating staff, Theodore Herz, said that E. Merl Young, husband of a White House stenographer, and William M. Boyle, Jr., Democratic national chairman, own stock in a company in which Herz also is a stockholder.

U. N. Will Meet In Paris In Fall

LAKE SUCCESS, March 20 (AP)—The United Nations General Assembly voted 24 to 17 tonight to hold its 1951 session in Paris. Twelve countries abstained on the vote and seven were absent.

The session will be held beginning Nov. 6, delayed six weeks from its normal opening date in September to allow the French government to erect new buildings to house the Assembly.

The Assembly also approved — over U. S., Philippine, Iraq and Pakistan objections—spending $2,350,000 and possibly more if the expenses mount, to pay for the extra cost of taking the Assembly to Europe. This is up $600,000 over a sum originally approved last December.

Russia and Britain voted with France and the Latin American nations to put the move over.

Adolfo Costa Du Rels, Bolivian delegate who led the fight for the move, pleaded with the Assembly to meet in Paris "because Europe is a sick continent and this organization for peace should go to sit at its bedside."

American Couple And Australian Executed By Huks

Trussed-Up Bodies Found Near Manila

MANILA, March 20 (AP) — An American couple and their Australian farm manager were found shot dead today with hands tied behind them at their dairy 15 miles east of Manila.

U. S. Ambassador Myron Cowen said the triple killing last midnight was "an indication that the Communist Hukbalahaps have embarked on a deliberate policy of slaying Americans."

He expressed a belief that the Huks are making reprisals for U. S. arms aid to the Philippines government.

Army officers said the three were executed by a band of Huks.

The Huks, military arm of the Philippines Communist Party, have been making hit-and-run terror raids off and on since the end of World War II. The Philippines armed forces have been stepping up operations against the guerrilla forces, originally organized to combat the wartime occupation of the Japanese.

The victims were John Hardie, 53; his wife, Marie Wilkins Hardie, 42, and 25-year-old Donald Capuano, an Australian national.

Their trussed-up bodies were found in a yard of the hacienda when an Army patrol investigated sounds of shooting.

Ambassador Cowen took up with the Philippines government immediately the question of protecting American citizens.

A conference of leading American residents at the U. S. Embassy raised the question of whether it might be necessary to evacuate American families. No decision was reached.

Ambassador Cowen said the Hardie farm executions and the slaying of three American members of a U. S. topographical survey party in Quezon Province Jan. 28 raised the question of "whether the Communists think they are sufficiently strong to begin a deliberate policy of murdering Americans."

Filipino employes at the Hardie dairy told police more than 50 armed Huks quietly entered the hacienda early last night and put guards over the Hardies and Capuano in the house and the employes in the yard.

After looting the house of food and other supplies, they said, the main body of Huks left about 10:30 p. m. Ten Huks left behind then told the three through a farm-hand translator they were to be executed.

"This must be a joke," Hardie is reported to have said.

There was no reply from the execution squad leader.

Mrs. Hardie pleaded with them to state a reason for execution. She got no reply, and the leader had the three mowed down by five men shooting automatic weapons.

Government Lists Alleged Top Underworld Figures

WASHINGTON, March 20 (AP) — The government's secret list of "allegedly prominent underworld figures" was made public tonight in connection with a new congressional probe of racketeers' tax returns.

Chairman King (D-Calif) of a special House Ways and Means subcommittee released the list of 126 names prepared by the Internal Revenue Bureau.

David A. Bolich, assistant revenue commissioner, had told another House committee only a few days ago that the Bureau of Internal Revenue is using the list to investigate tax payments of gamblers and gangsters.

The tax returns of individuals appearing on the list, Bolich said, all come in for especially close scrutiny. He said the bureau takes "nothing for granted" and goes behind the books and records of these people.

The list made public by the committee was sprinkled with names of prominent figures and such aliases as Jimmie Blue Eyes, Fat Joe, Trigger Mike, Cherry Nose, Greasy Thumb, Tootsie, The Camel, Socks, Johnny Bath Beach, Charlie the Blade, and Golfbag Hunt.

Among them were the names of Joe Adonis, Samuel R. Beard, Ralph Capone, Anthony Carfano, Mickey Cohen, Louis Compangna, Frank Costello, Philip D'Andrea, Paul Delucia, Frank Diamond, Rocco Fischetti, Vito Genovese, Charles Gloe, Irving Wexler alias Waxey Gordon, and William Lias.

Taft Sees 15 U. S. Divisions Asked For 'Ike'

Says Administration Won't Hold To Six

WASHINGTON, March 20 (AP) — Sen. Taft (R-Ohio) said today the United States may be asked to contribute 15 divisions to the defense of Western Europe before the end of 1952.

The Republican leader told the Senate the Truman administration has "no intention" of holding the American contribution to six divisions, as outlined recently by defense chiefs.

Entering the heated debate on the Senate's troops-for-Europe resolutions, Taft called for "strictly limited" reinforcement of the international army being raised under Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

One-To-Three Ratio

He said he had arrived at the 15 division figure after consultation with a "high authority," whom he did not name. This authority, Taft reported, said there was discussion of furnishing one American division for every three put up by Western European countries.

On the basis of an eventual force of 60 divisions, he said, this would mean that 15 American divisions would be sent across the Atlantic.

Administration leaders sacrificed the Senate's 10-day Easter recess today in order to press on toward a vote on the troops-for-Europe issue. The question has been debated for three days.

When Sen. McFarland of Arizona, the Democratic floor leader, was unable to get an agreement to vote on Thursday he ruled out the long recess. McFarland said the Senate would recess for Good Friday and Saturday of this week and might also be away next Monday.

Aiken Challenges Theory

Sen. Aiken (R-Vt) challenged Taft's theory that more troops would be called for, asking him where he got the idea.

Taft responded that administration leaders had "bitterly resisted any limitation on their power to send troops, and it is only reasonable to think that they intend to do it."

Taft said that a better man than Eisenhower could not be found to head the Western European forces, "but the mere fact that he is there means that we are going to be called upon constantly to furnish more and more troops."

"Monty" Named "Ike's" Deputy

PARIS, March 20 (AP) — Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower chose British Field Marshal Lord Montgomery as deputy commander of his Atlantic pact army today and completed the high command with the appointment of eight other officers to staff jobs.

Montgomery won fame with his victories over the Germans in the North African desert and served under Eisenhower as commander of British ground forces in Europe in World War II. He is 63.

The appointments nearly wind up the planning stages for an international force of perhaps 3,000,000 men to defend free Europe against Communist aggression.

The force still hasn't many soldiers, airmen or sailors — or guns, planes and ships. These, however, are to be supplied as swiftly as possible by the 12 Atlantic pact nations supporting Eisenhower's Supreme Headquarters, Allied Powers in Europe.

Eisenhower picked another Briton for his deputy commander for air. He is Air Chief Marshal Sir Hugh Saunders, 57, a veteran of air warfare in the Far East.

Nagasaki-Type A-Bomb Data Obtained By Spy

NEW YORK, March 20 (AP) — The atom bomb sketch which Confessed Spy David Greenglass says he gave his brother-in-law for relay to Russia was identified today as a drawing of the bomb dropped at Nagasaki.

The brother-in-law, Julius Rosenberg, his wife, Ethel, and Morton Sobell, a radar expert, are on trial in Federal Court, charged with conspiring to spy for Russia during wartime. Mrs. Rosenberg is Greenglass' sister.

If convicted all three face a possible death penalty.

The sketch and othe data which Greenglass has testified he gave to Rosenberg were identified by John A. Derry, special assistant to the director of production of the Atomic Energy Commission.

Tandem-Rotor Helicopter Demonstrated

A new tandem-rotor, two-place helicopter designed for such jobs as crop dusting, pipe line patrol and forest fire spotting, is demonstrated for the first time at Los Angeles. The craft can climb 1,520 feet per minute or travel horizontally at 100 miles per hour, according to its builders.

Labor Attacks On Mobilization Setup Renewed

New Deal Demanded At Pair Of Rallies

WASHINGTON, March 20 (AP) — Leaders of most of the nation's labor unions heaped new criticism on the mobilization program today, said it was "going on the rocks" and called for a new deal.

Local and statewide leaders of the AFL, CIO, machinists, and non-operating railroad unions met at two separate rallies at which the wage stabilization program and many other phases of the government's planning were assailed.

The meetings were called by the United Labor Policy Committee, composed of leaders of about 15,000,000 organized workers in nearly all unions except John L. Lewis' miners and the operating railroad brotherhoods.

The ULPC recently ordered the withdrawal of all labor members from mobilization agencies, including the Wage Stabilization Board, in a move to emphasize displeasure with what it called "big business" control of defense policy.

"We are convinced the program is going on the rocks—that it cannot mobilize this country to do the task this country faces," Al J. Hayes, head of the machinists, said in speech.

"We withdrew from it because the people were being misled into thinking it was just and equitable."

George M. Harrison, head of the railway clerks and an AFL vice president, said he regarded the program as "hopeless."

Harrison said the mobilization program might have to continue for 20 years, and in that time under present policies he said, workers "will certainly be a regimented bunch of serfs."

Mobilization Director Charles E. Wilson, chief target of the labor attacks, was described as an agent of big business who regards labor "as a commodity."

George Meany, AFL secretary-treasurer, said the order setting up Wilson's office made the former General Electric Corporation chief "more powerful than the President."

Economic Stabilizer Confers With Truman

KEY WEST, Fla., March 20 (AP) — President Truman today directed Economic Stabilizer Eric Johnston to redouble his efforts to find a formula for ending the administration's troubles with labor.

Johnston flew back to Washington immediately after the conference, in which Charles S. Murphy, special counsel to the President, and his chief White House spokesman in negotiations with union leaders, participated.

Student Pilot Killed In Crash Near Elkton

ELKTON, Md., March 20 (AP)—Joseph Lorin Mastin, Wilmington, Del., 37-year-old student pilot, was killed in a plane crash near here this evening.

Mastin was soloing a light plane crashed into a farm fence and was demolished.

13-Year-Old Boy, High Jump Champ, Leaps For His Life

OWENSBORO, Ky., March 20 (AP) —Bobby Cravens, 13-year-old holder of a junior high school high-jumping record, did a jump yesterday that may have saved his life.

Bobby, while engaged in a snowball fight, darted into the path of a police cruiser.

Bobby jumped.

The leap carried him onto the auto hood and against the windshield.

Defense Officials Rapped For Loan

WASHINGTON, March 20 (AP) — Key defense officials went on the griddle today about an alleged "can't lose" venture in which three men put up $600 to get a $7,800,000 government loan on a defense plant.

Chairman Hardy (D-Va) of a House investigating committee roundly criticized the federal officials for approving the loan.

The Virginia legislator discounted a rider which provided that the trio must raise $1,000,000 in private capital before the loan finally becomes effective.

If all goes well, Hardy said, the three men will become "multi-millionaires" in a few years.

In Hazleton, Pa., one of the principals in the loan application, Benjamin S. Dowd, said $1,000,000 in cash is available for completing the loan requirements. He said he and his two associates, Martin C. Charles and James H. Hopkins, have already spent $250,000 in developing the proposed steel plant and said it will be in production by Dec. 1.

"If you were to start from scratch today, it would take at least two and one-half years to three years to finish such a plant," Dowd said.

The House committee's disclosure came while senators were pressing their investigation into charges of "influence peddling" in the granting of huge federal loans by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Butler Backers Brand Printer's Ride Story "Lie"

Cries Of "Perjury" Mark Election Probe

WASHINGTON, March 20 (AP)—Witnesses who opposed the reelection of Sen. Tydings (D-Md.) last fall unfolded their story to Senate investigators today, punctuating it with cries of "perjury" and an attack on what they called Tydings' "wounded ego."

Ewell G. Moore, Jr., denied to a Senate Elections Sumcommittee the story of the "midnight ride" previously related by William H. Fedder, Baltimore printer who did some work for Tydings' successful opponent, Sen. Butler (R-Md.)

Perjury Trial Demanded

Moore testified under oath before a packed hearing room that Fedder "lied" when he said he had been taken for a ride and threatened by members of the staff of Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.). Moore asked the committee to recommend to the Department of Justice that Fedder be prosecuted for perjury.

Moore, a 28-year-old Arlington, Va., lawyer who was a part-time worker for McCarthy during the last campaign, also asked that Tydings and Louis Fried, a committee investigator previously identified as conducting a business near Fedder's in Baltimore, be "investigated for subornation."

(Subornation means inducing someone else to lie).

Commentator Testifies

Moore testified Fried helped Fedder prepare his story and Tydings "put Fedder forward as his witness and adopted part of his testimony as his own."

Donald A. Suvine, another McCarthy employe, also testified that "Fedder lies to this committee when he charges he was threatened or 'taken for a ride.'"

Fulton Lewis, Jr., radio commentator, read a 26-page statement accusing Tydings of making statements to the committee "based on unsubstantiated hearsay, wounded ego, and an irresponsible disregard of fact."

Plan To Realign Assembly Seats Proposed In Senate

ANNAPOLIS, Md., March 20 (AP)—A realignment of legislative seats which would give Baltimore seven districts and parcel out the rest on a population basis was proposed in the Senate today.

Sen. Preston (D-Balto. 5th) submitted a constitutional amendment which would increase the members of the House of Delegates to 134 and the Senate to 30 members. It was the latest of the many plans offered in recent years. None has ever received Assembly approval.

If approved, the plan would be submitted in the 1952 election. Preston's bill would work this way:

Baltimore City would have seven legislative districts instead of six as at present, with six delegates and one senator from each.

Each county would still have a senator.

Counties of 25,000 or less population would have two delegates; over 25,000 and 40,000, three delegates; over 40,000 and to 60,000, four delegates; over 60,000 and to 80,000, five delegates; over 80,000 and to 100,000, six delegates; over 100,000 seven and no more.

Under Preston's bill, the lineup would be as follows:

Two delegates—Calvert, Caroline, Charles, Howard, Kent, Queen Anne's.

Three delegates—Cecil, Dorchester, St. Mary's Garrett, Talbot, Somerset, Worsester.

Four delegates—Carroll, Harford, Wicomico.

Five delegates—None.

Six delegates—Allegany, Frederick, Washington.

Seven delegates—Anne Arundel, Baltimore, Montgomery, Prince Georges.

Allies Only 8 1-2 Miles From 38th

Ban On Mention Of Line Lifted

TOKYO, Wednesday, March 21. (AP)—Allied troops pushed today to within eight and one-half miles of Korea's 38th parallel.

South Korean troops reached that close to the artificial boundary between North and South Korea along the east coast above Kangnung.

In West-Central Korea, U. S. Eighth Army troops drove within 11½ miles of the parallel near Hangye.

That road town is 15 miles southeast of Chunchon, the last big enemy base below the 38th. But there was no evidence the retreating Reds would fight for Chunchon. Today Eighth Army forces were five miles south of it in considerable strength.

Chunchon is eight miles from the 38th parallel.

Allied forces were less than 15 miles from the boundary at several other points.

Tuesday night a ban was clamped on any mention of the 38th parallel. Today the ban was lifted.

There was no immediate explanation as to whether the brief ban was linked with military operations or with political implications.

The Allied advance was general all across Korea against Reds showing only rear guard resistance.

Elements of China's Third Field Army were identified in the front line as a screening force for the withdrawal.

Red Patrol, Yanks Clash

Early today a Chinese Red patrol clashed briefly with U. S. troops northeast of Seoul and then withdrew. Elsewhere across the western front, U. S. and South Korean patrols probed north of the Han River without contacting the foe.

In the same area, the Allied troops underwent heavy Red artillery, mortar and small arms fire Tuesday.

The Eighth Army said today that the 26th Chinese Army Corps of the Third Field Army now is on the front line. The corps holds positions north of Allieli-won Chungpyong reservoir, some 20 to 30 miles northeast of Seoul.

A field dispatch said this corps was screening the withdrawal of the 50th Army Corps and part of the 38th Army Corps, both of the Chinese Red Fourth Field Army. The Third Field Army has been in reserve in Northeast Korea since the U. S. 10th Corps boarded ships and pulled out of Hungnam last December.

Resistance Stiff In Center

AP Correspondent Jim Becker reported that Chinese Reds manned defense positions in Western Korea to the east of the Seoul-Uijongbu corridor. North Koreans were west of it to the Yellow Sea. Uijongbu is 12 miles north of Seoul.

Allied troops in Central Korea met the stiffest resistance in days Tuesday.

Rear guard Reds fought bitterly northeast of Hongchon, abandoned Red bastion 55 miles east of Seoul.

New Atom Tests Held In Pacific

WASHINGTON, March 20 (AP) — A new series of atomic bomb blasts is under way at the Eniwetok proving grounds in the Pacific, the Atomic Energy Commission hinted today.

It referred to a "test" program of a "major" character and said one aim is to gather information which will help architects design buildings to stand up better under atomic blasts.

The project at the remote Pacific atoll has been nicknamed "Operation Greenhouse."

The commission gave no hint as to what type, or types, of atomic weapons were involved.

Presumably, they would be models substantially improved compared with those tested in the first series of Eniwetok trials in the spring of 1948. The three bombs tested then were described as "improved" over their predecessors: Presumably, too, the tests would involve something different from the weapons tested recently at Las Vegas, Nevada — that is, different in explosive capabilities, or in proposed use.

It is even conceivable that a trial explosion of the proposed hydrogen bomb might be attempted, just to see what headway has been made on the full-scale studies which have been underway for more than a year now.

Curfew Imposed On Iran Capital

TEHRAN, Iran, March 20 (AP)—The government imposed a curfew on this capital tonight and made a show of force with tanks under martial law in a hard-hitting effort to smash a reign of terror by assassins.

Premier Hussein Ala's new pro-Western government acted amid strikes and a flood of unconfirmed reports of new assassinations in the wake of the killing of Premier Gen. Ali Razmara 13 days ago and the wounding of former Education Minister Abdul Zanganeh by an enraged student yesterday.

One rumor said Governor General Manouchar Egbal and his police chief had been slain at Tabriz, capital of Azerbaijan Province. That province was ruled by a pro-Soviet separatist government in 1946.

A rumor that was officially denied said Mayor Mehdi Namdar and Jamal Imami, a member of the lower house (Majlis) of parliament had been targets of assassination attempts.

The new government proclaimed martial law immediately after it had been presented to Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi at noon. Some cabinet posts still were not filled because prospective members were too terrorized by assassination threats to accept the jobs.

VA Contact Offices Will Remain Open

WASHINGTON, March 20 (AP) — Sen. O'Conor (D-Md) today received formal notice from Veterans Administrator Carl R. Gray, Jr., that five contact offices in Maryland will remain open though they once were listed to be closed.

Gray informed O'Conor that it had been decided to continue office's at Hagerstown, Frederick, Annapolis, Cambridge and Salisbury.

TV To Follow Probers

NEW YORK, March 20 (AP)—The American Broadcasting Company and the Dumont network said tonight they will televise Senate crime committee hearings from Washington.

The committee plans to resume work in the capital on Thursday.

U. S. Holds Ships Entitled To USSR, Russia Declares

WASHINGTON, March 20 (AP) — Russia, which has been under American pressure for the return of 672 wartime lend-lease ships, came back today with a complaint that the U. S. is holding up 13 craft to which it is "legitimately entitled."

The 13 were among those seized from Nazi Germany at the close of World War II and earmarked as reparations for the victors. An American - British - Soviet commission recommended the transfer to Russia in 1947.

Moscow said in a note delivered to the State Department that three years is long enough for the U. S. to decide whether it approves the recommendation.

Truck Weight Issue Debated

ANNAPOLIS, Md., March 20 (AP)—If Maryland is to preserve its investment in existing roads there will have to be a cutback in the axle load of trucks, a Senate committee was told today.

It just isn't so, said truckers who are battling to keep limits where they are. They argued that all the findings for lower weights so far are based on wrong conclusions.

The Senate Judiciary Committee held a hearing on a bill which says the loads should not exceed 18,000 pounds for a single truck axle. The limit now is 22,400 pounds.

Spokesmen for the State Weight Commission, with charts, mechanical gadgets and testimony, attempted to show that anything over 18,000 pounds in axle weight beats up the roads.

The Senate bill follows the recommendation of the weight commission.

The truck people contended the commission had based its recommendations on the "apparent results" of a six-month road test near La Plata and on some damage to the Pulaski highway. They said any damage at La Plata was because of poor engineering of the road in the first place.

Furthermore, they said, the engineers are still trying to work out final conclusions.

State Senator Acts To Do Something About Flood Of Local Legislation

ANNAPOLIS, Md., March 20 (AP)—An attempt to do something about the flood of local bills in the General Assembly—which probably has more of them than any other state—was made today by Sen. Preston (D-Balto. 5th).

Preston offered a resolution proposing appointment of a state commission to get into the problem of local legislation.

The resolution noted that between 60 and 65 per cent of all bills going into the General Assembly cover local matters. They take up time and reduce legislative efficiency, it added.

Under Maryland procedure, hundreds of things dealing with changes in county or municipal laws have to get Assembly approval.

Ordinarily, the county or city delegation proposes local legislation and everybody else goes along. But the bills have to go through the same routine as if they were of statewide nature.

Preston's resolution contended that statewide problems are of such nature "as to require the ability and capacity of all the members without the distracting efforts now required of them in the consideration of local bills."

The proposed commission would be appointed by the Governor and consist of three members from each judicial circuit.

The House gave preliminary approval to a bill to give every member of the state police force a $300 pay raise. It must pass one more House test before it can go to Gov. McKeldin for signature into law.

The delegates engaged in more jockeying over a bill to compell all trains to stop while setting and releasing brake retainers on mountain grades. Finally, it made a special order of business for tomorrow. The bill, by Delegate Reed (R-Allegany), came out of the Judiciary Committee with an unfavorable report. The delegates refused to accept the committee's recommendation that it be killed.

DiSalle Forecasts Early Price Break

BOSTON, March 20 (AP)—An early break in consumer prices was forecast tonight by Michael V. DiSalle, director of price stabilization.

He told the National Industrial Conference Board that he previously had "felt that the break in prices was still months away. Now I feel justified in moving up that schedule."

Price movements in the spot and primary or producers' markets, DiSalle said, would be reflected in consumer goods prices in retail stores in several weeks.

For four successive weeks, he said, the Bureau of Labor Statistics spot market price index "has gone down with increasing speed."

Death At 65 Ends Militant Career Of Rev. James Cox

PITTSBURGH, March 20 (AP) — Death today ended the militant career of the Rev. James R. Cox, 65-year-old Catholic priest who sandwiched a campaign for the presidency in a lifetime of crusading for the poor and jobless.

He died in Pittsburgh's Mercy Hospital—where he once was chaplain—several hours after suffering a cerebral hemorrhage. He was stricken in the rectory of old St. Patrick's Church, which he served for 28 years.

Father Cox blazed his name across the headlines when he led some 20,000 despairing depression victims on Washington in 1932 to plead with former President Herbert Hoover and Congress for help in finding jobs.

Vets' Dividend Will Be Mailed In April

WASHINGTON, March 20 (AP) — The first of 8,000,000 special life insurance dividend checks for World War II veterans will be put in the mail in early April.

The Veterans Administration said today that the $685,000,000 fund will average out at about $85 apiece.

This dividend is for three years, from 1948 through the 1951 anniversary. The first checks will go to those with a January date. Others will go out within about two months of their anniversary dates, for it takes about that long to figure them, VA said.

First Price Ceiling Violation Is Charged

LOS ANGELES, March 20 (AP) — The first criminal charges filed in the nation under the new price stabilization program were lodged today against a Los Angeles used car dealer and his sales manager.

A complaint, filed late today with the U. S. Commissioner, named as defendants Norman Frank, Inc., doing business as Jack Parmer's Auto, and Albert Rontell, sales manager of the firm.

James E. Harrington, attorney for the Office of Price Stabilization here, said the information stemmed from the sale of an automobile to Burt E. Taylor for an alleged $4,587.92 in place of a ceiling maximum of $3,660.25.

Resurgence Of Germany

Whether the present meetings of the deputy foreign ministers in Paris result in some real accomplishment or only in another stalemate, the Germans cannot fail to emerge from them in a stronger international position. The democracies are making more and more concessions, political and economic, to West Germany. The Russians are making noises about a unified Germany, thus testifying to the uneasiness of their control in East Germany.

West Germany, with twice the area and almost thrice the population of East Germany, is treated as an economic equal among the nations in the Schuman plan and as a political equal in the Council of Europe. A way is being sought to give her military recognition under the Atlantic Security treaty. And she might well be a member of UN today, less than six years after German surrender in World War II, if the Soviet Union held no veto power over membership.

It was almost eight years after the end of World War I before Germany was admitted to the League of Nations. It was more than a dozen years after that war's end before the Allies stopped trying to exact reparation payments and gave up their controls over the German internal economy. And it was almost a dozen years after the war before the Allies abandoned their military occupation of the Rhineland.

Crushing defeats in war in the 19th century didn't prevent France from becoming an equal among the great powers soon again. After Waterloo her conquerors immediately wooed her as an ally, explaining that they had fought only against Napoleon, not against France.

The financial and territorial concessions which France had to make to Germany in 1871 failed to prevent Czarist Russia from contracting a French alliance that ultimately took in Great Britain and was able to stand up to the German and Austro-Hungarian camp. Apparently a great nation in the heart of Europe may be down but it is never out.

Mail To GI's

Heard about any "beefs" from soldiers in Korea on delay in getting mail from home? The Army admits it has had "some" complaints along this line, and there must be many more that don't go direct to the Army.

The complaints have prompted the Army and Air Force to send test letters to Korea from various parts of the U.S., and to check on the time required for delivery. Mail to the G.I.'s in Korea goes out of San Francisco and is cleared through Yokohama in Japan.

According to the Army, an airmail letter takes about eight days, on the average, to get to a soldier in Korea after it leaves San Francisco. Two days more may have been needed to get that letter to San Francisco if it came from some place in the eastern part of the U.S. The Army thinks this isn't too bad, considering that many of the G.I.'s are shifting around in active fighting and that a full day is lost when the international date line is crossed west of Hawaii.

But letters sent by regular mail are something else again. These take an average of 25 days out of San Francisco, inasmuch as they have to wait until a surface ship is available and this may not be exactly the fastest one in the world. And the transportation from mailing point to San Francisco by train may need up to five more days. The moral is that Mom and Sugar and Uncle Fred should always use airmail to Joe out in Korea.

The Army says it doesn't have enough space in planes, in view of the supplies urgently needed at the front, to use westbound planes for letters not sent airmail. During World War II this problem of space for mail was met in part by microfilming letters that lent themselves to that process. The Army says it now has microfilming "under study" for mail to Korea.

Peace Without A Treaty

The Western democracies are said to be almost ready with plans for each to declare a state of peace with West Germany. The American, British and French foreign ministers at their meeting in New York last September reached a decision, in effect, to go ahead without Russia in ending the war officially. That is probably one reason why the Kremlin has been calling for new negotiations on a peace treaty with all of Germany.

The legal difficulties are many in declaring a state of peace with only one section, even though the major section, of a country that has been defeated in war. And traditionally you don't have official peace with a nation until a peace treaty with it has been ratified on both sides.

However, the United States broke that tradition after World War I. When the Senate turned thumbs down on the League of Nations, it had to reject the entire peace treaty of Versailles inasmuch as the Covenant of the League was embodied in the treaty.

Then, in 1920, Congress passed a resolution declaring a state of peace with Germany. It was vetoed by President Wilson, and the veto was sustained in a vote pretty much along party lines. But a similar resolution was signed by President Harding in July, 1921, two years and eight months after the end of hostilities. The resolution accepted the settlements of the Versailles treaty insofar as they affected the United States.

The Russians point out that all the nations at war with Germany and Japan in World War II agreed not to conclude a separate peace with the enemy. The democracies reply that this pledge was obviously meant to apply only while hostilities were going on, and that it had no valid meaning any longer after Germany and Japan surrendered.

How To Keep Well

Re-Vaccination Against Smallpox

SMALLPOX is most common in cold months. Up to the time of this writing, we have managed to sail through the winter season with only a handful of cases, but other countries have not fared so well; the rate continues to be excessive in India, for example, and a new epidemic was reported recently from Britain. We have no need to fear that it will cross the ocean and spread to the United States because of our rigid quarantine regulations.

In this country we rely upon vaccination. This to our knowledge is the best preventive. We do not inherit natural immunity to smallpox; even newborn babies are not protected for the first few months of life as they are against most contagious diseases. When smallpox is contracted in pregnancy it may involve the unborn child and reports have appeared in the medical literature about infants who were born with the typical eruption. Immunity is acquired only by having the malady or through vaccination. Unfortunately, the effect of the vaccine may not be permanent and for this reason revaccination is recommended every five years. Most re-vaccinations do not "take," demonstrating immunity. But now and then, to everyone's surprise including the physician's, a positive reaction follows.

One of our editors had this experience recently. Every year he goes to Mexico, where smallpox crops up from time to time. Even as recently as three years ago his vaccination did not "take" because he still had enough immunity in his system to prevent the formation of the pustule. This year a typical "take" followed re-vaccination. As an intelligent man, he appreciated the significance of the incident and now feels more secure because of the realization that he is immune. We could all profit by his experience; the more lax we become, the more unprepared the majority of us are to withstand an epidemic. Furthermore, our negligence invites an epidemic, and in these days of preparing for shortages and pulling in the belt another notch it might be well to think in this direction.

When an individual who is immune to smallpox is vaccinated, nothing happens at the site of inoculation. In some instances the area becomes red within one or two days after the injection, but this soon disappears. Those with partial immunity may encounter a reaction that reaches its height within three to five days. The lesion consists of a water blister surrounded by a slight aching, fatigue, and tenderness in the armpit. Healing takes place after a few days.

This differs from the typical "take" which also begins to manifest itself on the fifth day after inoculation. A spot, varying in diameter from that of a silver half-dollar to that of a grapefruit, becomes red and swollen. Meanwhile, in the center of this area a pimple-like lesion appears which is covered by a tight clear membrane and contains a milky fluid. The central part caves in like an umbilicus and soon becomes crusted with a hard, black substance that remains for several weeks before falling off. A severe reaction may co-exist so that the individual develops chills, fever, and other uncomfortable symptoms.

The best plan is to keep the lesion clean and as dry as possible. A shield never should be used; it is better to wash the site carefully with alcohol and apply a loose dressing to prevent irritation. Cleanliness is stressed to discourage a secondary infection, but, should this occur, hot compresses and one of the antibotics are used.

TOMORROW: Dr. Van Dellen tells of the management of varicose veins.

GOITER AREAS

E. R. writes: Where is the goiter belt in the United States?

REPLY

This name has been applied to areas around the Great Lakes, Minnesota, the Dakotas, the valley of the upper Mississippi, and certain parts of the Pacific northwest. The incidence of goiter formerly was high in these regions because the iodine content of the soil and water was low; but with modern food transportation and the use of iodized salt, iodine deficiency is not as common as in the past

BEVERAGES IN DIET

Mrs. R. writes: Are coffee and tea allowed in reducing diets?

REPLY

Yes, provided there are no other reasons why the physician should want to exclude stimulants. Tea and coffee are devoid of calories when they are taken without cream or sugar.

SPASM

M. W. writes: Can the heart have a spasm?

REPLY

Not in the usual sense of the word. The heart does not cramp like the calf muscle nor do the valves clamp down like those located at the entrance and exit of the stomach. "Heart spasm" usually refers to an attack of angina pectoris, which some believe to be caused by spasm of the coronary arteries.

Iron Curtain Not Hard To Penetrate Personally; Voice Of America With Berlin-To-Turkey Radio Network Would Pay Dividends For Peace

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Drew Pearson is making a flying tour of the Middle East and Europe, surveying the world situation.)

BERLIN — This is the extreme northern end of the iron curtain. I started this trip at the southern end where it begins, between Bulgaria and Turkey—a long line of barbed wire extending north—and have now reached the other end, where it isn't even barbed wire but fans out into the east zone of Berlin.

One of the most important conclusions I've reached on this trip is that Winston Churchill did the democratic world a disservice when he talked about the border between Russia and the Western world as an iron curtain, because the border isn't as impervious as the word "iron" indicates. Not only is Stalin's curtain between the East and the West not even marked by barbed wire in many places, but it can be crossed fairly easily.

The border between Czechoslovakia and the American zone in Germany, for instance, can be crossed almost any night. In fact, it is crossed constantly by Germans who make their living smuggling goods back and forth.

The border between East and West Germany is like a sieve while, in Berlin, thousands of people walk or ride back and forth daily between the Russian and American zones. I entered the Russian zone without even knowing I was in it and drove through several miles of its battered streets. The only way you have of knowing you are in the Russian zone is through the signs on the streets which say: "You are now entering the democratic section of Berlin."

This fairly easy access into restricted areas behind the iron curtain raises one of the most important omissions on the part of the United States Government—namely, why are we not doing more to influence the people on the other side of the curtain? Obviously the curtain was rung down by Stalin for only one reason: Because he fears intercourse between East and West—he knew contact with the modern marvels of capitalism would make it difficult to keep the Russian people happy under communism.

Therefore our best bet to head off war obviously is to go over the Kremlin's head and reach the Russian people and the satellite millions also forced to remain behind the curtain.

Eager For Information

How effectively this can be done and how eager the satellites are for information about the U. S. A. is shown right here in Berlin, where our State Department is doing its most effective job of propaganda through radio station RIAS. This station, which gets its abbreviated name from "Radio In American Sector," was originally started by the Army but is now operated by three State Department radio men plus 600 Germans.

RIAS carries a regular schedule of radio entertainment not unlike the average American station with quiz programs having the highest Hooper rating and musical cabaret shows second. Interspersed through all these programs, however, are telling wisecracks and political comment which nickle-nursing Congressman John Taber of New York probably couldn't understand and wouldn't approve of but which have East Germans roaring with laughter—at the expense of Joe Stalin.

RIAS is so popular in Eastern Germany that when the Soviet held its big youth meeting in Berlin last December several thousand supposedly Communist youngsters called at the station out of friendly curiosity, while streams of letters pour into the RIAS offices each month from all parts of Soviet Germany.

One of the most popular features on RIAS is the evening news show at which the commentator uncovers a Communist agent in East Germany.

"You may know Hans Goering, the butcher on the corner of Wilhelmstrasse and Luxemburgplatz," says the commentator. "He may pretend to be your friend but he isn't. He's a Communist agent and is reporting what you do and say to the Soviet police."

East Germans eat this up and the East bureau of the Social Democratic party has kept RIAS well supplied with the names and details of Communist agents.

Lack Of Funds Hampers "Voice"

The State Department operates another Voice of America radio station in Salonika, near the southern end of the iron curtain, but because of insufficient funds, it hasn't really begun to scratch the surface of the iron curtain with effective propaganda.

One trouble with the Voice of America is that it operates via short wave. RIAS, on the other hand, operates on a standard wave and fits its programs right in on regular East German programs. And, being close to the scene, it covers local news, uses local wisecracks, and disseminates local political gossip. Making the Voice of America effective from 4,000 miles away is like publishing a newspaper in Chicago from a news desk located in London.

If, therefore, we are to puncture the easily punctured iron curtain, what we need is a series of local radio stations extending from Berlin to Turkey—one along the Czechoslovak border in the American zone of Germany broadcasting in Czech and Slovak languages, one in the American zone in Austria, one in Yugoslavia to reach nearby Hungary and Albania, and one in Turkey to reach Southern Russia.

Such a radio network would pay 100 per cent dividends in getting our ideas beyond and behind the iron curtain.

However, radio propaganda alone, while important, won't do the job. My examination of the iron curtain convinces me that, in addition, we could get all sorts of propaganda into satellite countries. Thousands of people in Czechoslovakia, Hungary and Poland are eager for information about the outside world and are even willing to risk their lives to get it and help disseminate it.

During the war we devised all sorts of schemes to get our propaganda behind the enemy lines. We devised waterproof propaganda leaflets, which could not be destroyed by rain. We devised small printing presses, which one man could carry and operate. We printed messages in Bibles and got them distributed in churches.

But we are neglecting much of this today. We are spending billions to rearm a reluctant Europe, many parts of which don't particularly want to be rearmed. Meanwhile, only a few millions spent on getting our propaganda behind the iron curtain might pay a bonanza of dividends for peace.

War Prevention

DEAN ACHESON, in the course of his discussion before the Connally committee, said:

"So our first purpose—and this is something we need to make absolutely clear to our friends in Europe—is to deter the aggressors from attacking Europe. Our primary concern is not how to win a war after it gets started, but how to prevent it, and how to help Europe stay free in the meantime."

This seems to me poor reasoning, because no nation can go to war without feeling confident that it can win, and when steps are taken to prevent a war, they must be such as would convince the part of the second part that war does not pay.

The learned Secretary of State must have caught himself tripping, for he answers himself:

"There are three deterrent factors to be considered. One is the retalitatory power now in our possession—our capability of striking with air power against the centers of aggression. Another is the reserve power which helps to convince the Russians that they could not win in the end. And finally, there are the integrated forces in being of the North Atlantic Treaty nations."

Then he goes on to talk about the third deterrent, which is the one he likes, but it is obviously a side issue if the first one is not fully achieved. That means that we must be armed to the hilt and have a huge army before we can convince the Russians that war will not pay. Therefore, it is necessary to assess our capacities and those of our allies and the will to fight of the entire group of 12 nations in the North Atlantic Alliance. Unless there is a keen will to fight among these countries, what is there to deter Soviet Russia?

Surely the United States, a nation of 153,000,000, cannot alone produce the strength to fight an empire of 800,000,000 even with our advantage of production. The problem then comes down to ratios: What is the share that each of the members of the North Atlantic Alliance will put up? Dean Acheson does not say.

But the Secretary of State does say this:

"One reason why we cannot continue to rely on retaliatory air power as a sufficient deterrent is the effect of time. We have a substantial lead in air power and in atomic weapons. At the present moment, this may be the most powerful deterrent against aggression. But with the passage of time, even though we continue our advances in this field, the value of our lead diminishes."

Again, it is difficult to understand his reasoning. Why can we not maintain our "substantial lead in air power and in atomic weapons?" If, as he says, this has given us an advantage, why not keep the advantage?

The answer, of course, is that the more money we spend on ground forces, the less we shall have to spend on the airforce and atomic weapons. The supply of money is not unlimited. The 1951-1952 budget will probably run as high as $100,000,000,000. This comes during a period of distressing and frightening inflation.

The decision to use ground forces in Korea was an infantryman's error and has proved costly. Thus far, no evidence has been presented to Senator Connally's committee to prove that American ground forces are sufficient to deter Soviet Russia. Plenty of evidence has been

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — The question which recently upset markets and caused many a flurry of excitement in the last few days is this: "Is there a chance of an end soon to the war in Korea?"

Rumors of a peace settlement, even in the midst of big wars, usually have some basis which starts them going. When General Ridgway, our field commander in Korea, said the other day that our forces could consider that they had won a big victory upon reaching the 38th Parallel again, stock market observers jumped to the conclusion that this was about as far as our armies planned to go. But that wasn't really what General Ridgway meant. He was merely clearing the air for a settlement, if the Communists were really intent on making one. A somewhat similar hint came from General MacArthur, who said the best we could hope for in Korea was a stalemate, if the United Nations forces were not going to be permitted to bomb the Chinese bases of supply north of the Manchurian border.

Chinese Resources Drained

All this adds up to one thing—our military commanders in Korea are restless and are asking for some definition of purpose, some plan that will either let the UN forces liberate all of Korea by bombing the Red Chinese bases and occupying more and more North Korean territory, or else some plan that will permit the UN to negotiate a settlement by diplomacy.

Neither our commanders nor our high government officials intend to waste the fruits of victory by letting the Communists keep their control of North Korea. What they evidently do mean is that if the Chinese Communists have had enough—and they are taking frightful losses every day—maybe a way can be found to let them wiggle out with a negotiated settlement. But such a settlement undoubtedly would require that a plan for evacuation of all Korea by foreign troops would be agreed upon and that some guarantees or assurances would be given by the Communists that Korea will not be attacked again.

While the Chinese Communists may have unlimited manpower, they do not have unlimited supplies of arms or equipment. The Korean War has drained Chinese resources and already has prevented them from sending reinforcements to Indo-China and from starting trouble in Formosa. They also have their hands full now with more and more internal trouble.

It may be that the Chinese Communist leaders will try just one more offensive. The weather in Korea will be getting bad soon—bad for our fliers and for the movement of motor vehicles as the mud and rain slow down everything. Maybe after this last offensive the Red Chinese will be ready for a settlement. The climax in Korea certainly will come within a few months, perhaps weeks, and, just as the Communists suddenly gave up their blockade of Berlin, they may just as suddenly give up their war in Korea. For it is we who are winning the war against aggression by preventing the aggressor from attaining his objective.

Supply And Demand Reaction

There may be a connection between the rumors of peace in Korea and the recent drop in prices. The price readjustment, however, has been in the cards for some time. Tin and rubber prices went skyrocketing when the armament program was announced but, now that the government has stepped in and slowed down its stockpiling, those two commodity prices started downward. In fact, commodity prices generally are leveling off. This is to be noted in grain prices, too. For the last two weeks in February, the retail food index, issued by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, has shown a decline and food prices at wholesale continued a decline after that.

The price levels seem to suggest that maybe the peak in the Korean boom has been reached. What really is happening is that the old law of "supply and demand" is beginning to operate in certain categories of economic action. Some of those who built unusually large inventories of goods are discovering that demand is not as great as they thought, and that some of the hoarded stuff had better be moved, even if it requires lower prices.

The controversy over interest rates—whether the government should hold the bond market at a pegged price or give it a chance to find its own level—is also having some effect on the general situation. There is a testing going on. Bank credit is a target of attack, and an effort is being made to tighten it up, which means that some concerns with heavy inventories may be compelled to get rid of them in order to pay back their loans.

On top of this, a steady reconversion process is going on in industry and there may be some unemployment while the factories change over from civilian goods to the making of military goods. This is a deflationary aspect. It may be expected, however, that this situation will be only temporary, because the build-up of armament is to be larger instead of smaller during the next several months. The peak of our military production is not to come until a year or two from now.

Savers Need Help

By MARK SULLIVAN

WE ARE NOW in the ninth month since Korea created the necessity for controls over the country's economy, including and emphasizing arrest of inflation. We are in the eighth month since President Truman sent to Congress a request for legislation giving him authority to impose controls. We are in the sixth month since Congress gave Mr. Truman announced "ceilings" over prices and wages.

In the present stage, forces entering into what may be called the spiral mechanism accompanying inflation continue in motion. On the part of labor there is resistance to some of the ceilings the control agencies set up. To this resistance the reaction of control agencies is in part compromise, in part firmness. Some ceilings have been relaxed in deference to labor. On the other hand, Economic Stabilizer Eric Johnston a week ago turned down a wage raise of 11 cents an hour for workers in the meat packing industry, on the ground that the raise would pierce the ceiling that the control agency had set up. In general, much depends on the firmness of the control agencies and on whether they are supported by President Truman.

Future Made Uncertain

In a large area of ceilings over prices — that is, prices of farm crops — a condition exists which makes the future uncertain. In the law passed by Congress last September which created the control agencies, it was stipulated that no ceilings should be put over any farm crop selling below the parity price which the Department of Agriculture fixes. This covers a very large proportion of all farm crops. So long as these remain immune from imposition of ceilings by the control agencies, it is doubtful whether rising cost of living can be checked, hence whether rising wages can be checked, hence whether rising wages can be checked, hence whether the spiral mechanism that accompanies inflation can be checked. While control agency eads have made guarded statements about the immunity enjoyed by farm crops, they have made no formal request to Congress that it end this immunity. It is a common apprehension that so long as a large number of farm crops have immunity it will be difficult for the control agencies to effectively control the country's economy as a whole. There is speculation to the effect that President Truman may make the request of Congress which the control agencies are obviously reluctant to make.

The malevolent vitality of the wage-price spiral, its tendency to perpetuate itself automatically, is illustrated by an action that took place recently. The present action was an order by the Interstate Commerce Commission granting railroads increases of freight rates. Preceding this action were others that led up to it. First, railroad workers demanded increases in wage rates and got them. Thereupon the railroads computed the increased cost of service which the wage raises caused them. On this basis the railroads asked the Interstate Commerce Commission to grant increases in freight rates and the Commission did so. This sequence has taken place frequently.

Sacrifice Is Needed

From this point proceeds a far-reaching ramification. Increased freight rates cause increased prices of many kinds of goods that railroads carry, and increased prices of each line of goods ramify into others. As a specially dynamic example, coal carried by railroads is used as fuel in industries, and increased price of the fuel leads to increased prices of goods these industries make. Automatically reciprocal increases of wages and of prices go on throughout the whole of the country's economy.

The control agencies at Washington have the responsibility for checking the wage-price spiral and the inflation of which it is an accompaniment. The steps they take call for sacrifice on the part of many individuals and groups, and

BEARING THE CROSS

And they compel one Simon a Cyrenian, who passed by, coming out of the country, the father of Alexander and Rufus, to bear his cross. Mark 15:21 (K. J. V.). Read the chapter.

None of us will ever be able literally to carry the Cross of Jesus. That honor belongs to Simon of Cyrene alone. But cross-bearing is nevertheless a necessity to salvation.

Only now and then does a man meet with a great event. And successful living does not so much depend upon what he is compelled to do as upon the thought he brings to it. There was once a woman who made a supper for Jesus; another who poured ointment on his head; a man who gave him a grave. Little deeds! But they live in the pages of history and work their way into simple souls who stand and wait before God to whom great and small are terms that have no meaning.

Again, there is blessedness and honor in helping the Christian cause. Jesus stumbling on his Calvary road represents a spirit that is today struggling to make itself felt in the midst of an evil world. The honor of giving it impetus falls on us.

Let Us Pray: O God, may the knowledge of Jesus bearing his Cross teach us the joy of walking beside him in his sufferings. May it never be a burden, but a lift to our spirits. Amen.

The Old Second Guesser

By JOHN N. WHEELER

LA GRANGE, Ga.

AFTER listening to some of the intelligentsia around the big wheels, it is refreshing and encouraging to come to a small town and hear sentiments about the advantages of opportunity and regards for enterprise which made this country great. Usually when an orator refers to the "solid south" he means solid in favor of the Democratic party, but I got here the impression it also should stand for solid Americanism. When I mentioned this to a friend, he said,

"Remember our people are a pretty pure strain, and we are only two generations away from a devastating war, the effects of which we have had to overcome."

For the first ime in more than a year I traveled on a highclass train—the Crescent Limited, an all-Pullman conveyance. The trip was interesting and gave me a chance to observe my fellow passengers, although I hope I won't be considered snobbish when I hasten to add I avoided acquaintance with members of both sexes. Sitting in the club car, I noticed a fairly stylish lady who might be described as aging, and that would be giving her a break. She had blue hair.

There had been a gent, who was no springer himself, sitting at the table next to me sipping a drink, but he had stepped out to see a man about a fox terrier dog or something. Our heroine took the seat the male passenger had been occupying.

"There is someone sitting there," said the porter politely.

The woman moved to the other side of the table, and soon he came back, so shortly they were engaged in conversation, and he was picking up the tabs. I left, spending an hour or so reading, and then had my dinner. When I returned to smoke a cigar, the man had a collection of checks which looked like a deck of cards, and both were pretty "stiff". She said,

"I hope you won't tell your wife I picked you up, because I didn't mean to."

Why he should mention the matter to his wife at all was beyond my comprehension, especially as it turned out she was at home by her [illegible], or supposed to be.

"My, my missus only worries about blondes," he answered with a certain lack of gallantry. She smiled and maybe by now she thought she fitted the description.

He rang for the porter and asked him to wake up a male traveling companion so they could all have dinner, and it looked to me like he was trying to shake the lady. In a few minutes the messenger returned with the information that his and the friend's car had been cut off at Washington and was now rolling south as part of the second section.

"Ye gods and little fishes," she said.

What he said to the porter, you could put in an asbestos capsule and still run some risk of an explosion.

"You heard me ask him whether my car stayed on the train," he kept repeating and, of course, she agreed. It turned out he could wait at Greenville for the other section and his baggage. He paid the checks and the last I saw of them they were weaving towards the diner.

When I arrived I found an invitation to go to the weekly Rotary Club luncheon, and I was a little skeptical. It used to be fashionable from the days when Sinclair Lewis, Henry Mencken, and George Jean Nathan were in their prime, to sneer at these small-town groups as boobs. Therefore, it was surpising

Jeaneen Hartley Is Being Honored At Shower Parties

To Be Bride Of Clinton E. Cage

Several pre-nuptial parties are being given in complement to Miss Jeaneen Ruth Hartley, fiancee of Clinton E. Cage. Their wedding ceremony is to be solemnized Saturday at 8 p. m., in Central Methodist Church with Rev. Crates Johnson officiating.

Miss Doris Hartley will be her sister's maid of honor while Richard Davis serves as best man. James Stemple and William Hartman will be the ushers.

The Cumberland Free Public Library staff entertained in honor of Miss Hartley with a kitchen gadget shower, Sunday at the home of Miss Jean Bittinger, Myrtle Street.

Each gift was accompanied by an original verse and the bridal motif was carried out in the decorations. A white wedding bell was suspended from the chandelier above the tiered shower cake, toppd with a miniature white umbrella and miniature white umbrellas were scattered on the table. A buffet lunch was served.

Attending were Miss Mary G. Walsh, Miss Ella C. Hodgson, Miss Margaret Walsh, Mrs. Nora Troxell, Miss Mary Ernestine Davis, Mrs. Thomas Hartley, Mrs. Wilbur Cage, Mrs. Bruce Waters and Mrs. Earl F. Bittinger.

Miss Betty Jean Kight and Miss Joann Campbell were hostesses at a surprise miscellaneous shower for Miss Hartley, last evening at Miss Kight's home, Decatur Street.

A green and yellow shower sprinkling can was arranged on the mantel and from it cascaded a shower of green and yellow streamers which were attached to the shower gifts arranged around the bride's chair.

Spring flowers were used throughout the house and clusters of wedding bells were in the archways. The same color scheme was repeated in the two tiered cake adornd with a miniature bride and bridegroom and decorated in yellow rosebuds with green leaves. Different colored miniature umbrellas were given as favors and white candles were at either end of the table. A large white bell hung from the chandelier over the cake.

The evening was spent informally with canasta and bridge featuring the entertainment.

Guests were Miss Mary Ellen Slite, Miss Mary Davis, Miss Eleanor Durst, Miss Vivian Smith, Miss Marian McKenty, Miss Mary Straw, Miss Virginia Lou Haus, Miss Shirley Lester, Miss Doris Hartley, Mrs. Roy Hansrote, Mrs. Leroy Morton, Mrs. Walter Hartman, Mrs. Frederick Weber, Mrs. T. E. Hartley, Mrs. William Kight, Mrs. J. C. Rice and Mrs. Wilbur E. Case.

Manhattan Temple Has Visitation

Mrs. Louella Shipley, Brunswick, grand chief, made her official visitation to Manhattan Temple No. 8, Pythian Sisters, Monday evening. She was accompanied by Mrs. Agnes Love, grand manager and member of the local temple; Mrs. Sarah Schram, Lonaconing, grand secretary; and Mrs. Viola McGann, Midland, district deputy.

Mrs. Elsie Lehr was in charge of the program, which consisted of a drill, with members of the team in pastel colored evening gowns; and a mock wedding.

Mrs. Genevieve Wagner was the reader for the wedding. Mrs. Ruth Root portrayed the bride; Mrs. Ann Drenning, the bridegroom; Mrs. Thelma Poland, the best man; Mrs. Myrtle Browning, the maid of honor; and Mrs. Agnes Comer, the minister.

Other members of the bridal party were Mrs. Lehr and Mrs. Viola Hudson, bridesmaids; Mrs. Genevieve Wotring, ring bearer; Mrs. Fae Lee Burner, flower girl; Mrs. Millie Zimmerman, usher. Mrs. Love represented the mother of the bridegroom; Mrs. Marie Frankland, the father of the bridegroom; Mrs. Josephine Biggs, mother of the bride and Mrs. Laura Stevenson, father of the bride. Mrs. Gertrude Rice sang, "I Love You Truly," with Mrs. Ada Keady at the piano.

Beware the Ides of March! . . . 'Twas an evil day in Ancient Rome and March 15th is a headache for taxpayers, collectors and the Post Office Dept. in our times . . . Russian delegates at Lake Success whittle away their "off hours" in the Delegates Lounge, where, with a great show of concentration, they read copies of the Moscow edition of "Pravda" which they receive daily by air.

One Soviet delegate the other day, called to the phone in a hurry, dropped his paper on the floor . . . A curious American newspaperman picked it up and studied the item which the Soviet had been reading . . . Here it is, translated in its entirety:

"Last night a fire broke out in the Stalin Comissariat on Stalin Street, north of Stalin Square, and near the Comrode Stalin Subway Station.

The fire brigade immediately arrived on the scene and put out the fire, showing true Stalinist discipline in their work.

"They used new fire hoses manufactured at The Joseph Stalin Factory.

"Only under the wise leadership of the genius Stalin was it possible to prepare such efficient hoses. Again, Comrade Stalin has heartened the workers and has shown them the right road."

For a little daughter, turn a weekly manicure session into fun! It's the way to cultivate hand loveliness.

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

IT's never too soon in the life of a little lass to start cultivating hand loveliness. Good habits are sure to turn ten little fingers into two beautiful hands. Let your little girl's introduction to hand care be fun!

To make her feel importantly adult at the time of her weekly manicure, turn the bathroom into a "let's-pretend" beauty salon. Through just such simple make-believe, you can teach her correct hand-care methods and instill lifelong pride in pretty, groomed hands.

Pretty Little Fingers

Let her help you gather all the equipment before you start. You will need an emery board, oatmeal, baking soda, a soft nail brush, your own bottle of facial oil, cuticle nipper and a new type of instrument, available for a few cents, which is an orange stick with a small nylon brush at one end.

Start by shaping the nails with the emery. Keep them short but oval to encourage graceful fingertips in later years. After the nails are shaped, run your fingers over them to detect any snagging edges.

Now have the child soak both hands in the basin of warm water to which you have added two tablespoons of dry, uncooked oatmeal, two teaspoons of baking soda and enough mild soap for rich suds. After a moment, brush under the nails, across the knuckles and wrists with the nail brush. Should a speck of grime remain under the nails, remove it with the little brush attached to the orange stick.

Growing Loveliness

Rinse the hands thoroughly, pat them dry and massage a small quantity of your facial oil into the hands, wrists and elbows. Pay particular attention to the cuticle. While the oil soaks into the skin, go over each nail with the flat of the orange stick, pushing the cuticle back gently. (Never cut it—if a hangnail develops, remove it with nippers.

Next rinse and dry the hands. To cultivate pride—and to banish nail biting — apply a thin coat of nail protector which is colorless and lustreless. The little lady will feel so grown-up that the first thing you know, she'll master this manicure technique herself. Then you can make a pleasant, companion-duet of your manicure sessions!

ON THE LINE

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK (INS)

YOUNG GRIFFO was an old time fighter who, in blowsy retirement, used to make coffee and cake by dropping a handkerchief on a bar room floor and betting any stew in the joint that the stew could not hit him in the head with a punch.

Young Griffo would not move the handkerchief. He'd just weave and bob, and in time the stew would have to pay off. Between these bouts, Young Griffo also could pick up a buck or two by catching flies with his index finger and thumb. He was a fast man, and the artful dodger to end them all.

Well, he was a bum compared to some of the punch slippers we've had on the stand in the Kefauver hearing. Sample:

"What's your name?"

"I refuse to answer on the ground it might incriminate me."

"Did you have a meeting on September 17, 1934, at the Brass Knuckles A.C. with Butch McGlook, Mahem Murphy, and Shifty Shaughnessy?"

"Who, me?"

"Yes. Did you?"

"I didn't get the question. Would you repeat it?"

• — • — •

The question is repeated.

"Oh, you mean September 17, 1934, at the Brass Knuckles A.C., right? No, I didn't go to no meeting there."

"Well now, Mr. O'Gargantua, were you there on that date?"

"Sure."

"Did you talk with McGlook, Murphy and Shaughnessy there?"

"I did and I didn't."

"Did you?"

"Yeah. But it wasn't no meeting. Just a get-together to discuss things."

Then we had Walter Ahearn, the greatest detective since Perry Mason.

"Are you trying to tell us that you've worked in Saratoga for 18 years, and part of that time for such clubs as Piping Rock and Arrowhead Inn and you didn't know they had gambling there?"

"What gambling?"

And then "Honest Mike" Borelli, stalward "scourge" of Hoboken gambling.

"Have you read Malcolm Johnson's 'Crime On The Labor Front?'"

"I don't believe what's in that book."

"Did you read it?"

"I didn't care to."

And Bully-Boy Ed Florio, paunchy Hoboken longshoremen's organizer.

• — • — •

"'Crime On The Labor Front' charges that you got your job by maneuvering with Joe Ryan, president of the International Longshoremen's Association. How about that?" he was asked.

"I deny it."

"Then how did you get the job?"

"I asked Ryan for it."

"What about violence on the waterfront? What about the bombings?"

"That wasn't violence."

My two favorite witnesses during the endless Monday session were Johnny Broderick, the tough ex-cop, and a Mr. Rosenblat.

Mr. Broderick appeared out of the blue in answer to a passing remark by Sen. Tobey earlier in the day to the effect that "one Broderick, said to be an ex-cop, gets $25 a nite for taking gamblers over to Jersey."

Johnny came to the stand, was sworn in, blurted "I'm not that Broderick. I'm the one who beat Costello's man Toplitz. I don't fear Costello or all his gunmen;" and left.

Mr. Rosenblat was an even more concise witness. His name was called by Bill O'Dwyer, to confirm O'Dwyer's contention that Sen. Tobey's home state of New Hampshire is a bookie's paradise.

"Is Mr. Rosenblat here?" O'Dwyer called several times.

He wasn't, and therefore endeared himself to the reporters who by then were suffering several cases of "the bends" from writer's cramp.

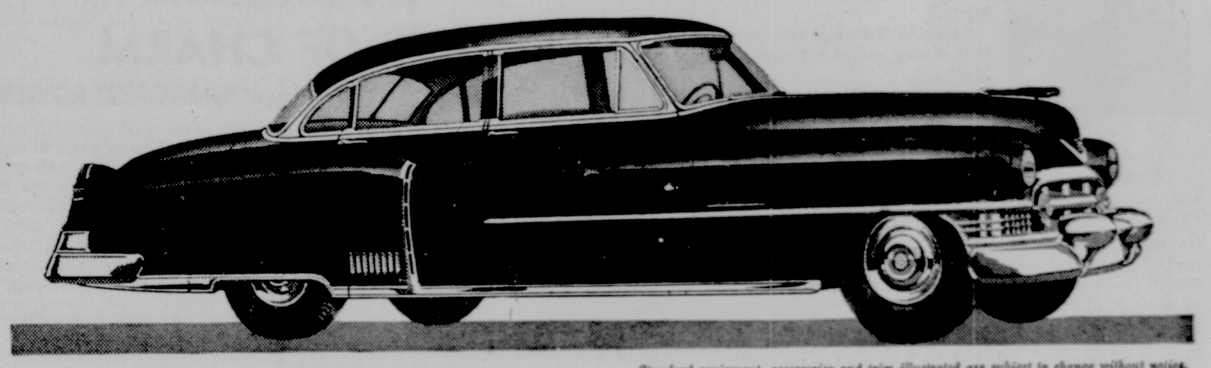
Cadillac

Its Great Name is Free!



Standard equipment, accessories and trim illustrated are subject to change without notice.

If there were some way to strip a Cadillac of every identifying emblem it possesses, and judge it solely by the way it rides and handles and performs—it would still be quickly recognizable as the "Standard of the World."

But think what a Cadillac brings you in addition to the solid value of its engineering and performance and comfort and handling ease—the wonderful Cadillac name!

Perhaps in all the world, there is no inanimate object which speaks so eloquently as the Cadillac shield. It talks of background, of progress, and of faultless workmanship. It proclaims a promise of years and years of the utmost motoring satisfaction. It speaks of its owner, and identifies him as a man of accomplishment and discrimination.

In fact, there is nothing good and wonderful a motor car can bring that isn't promised or implied by the beautiful Cadillac shield. And it speaks a universal language, which is understood and appreciated the wide world over.

And remember, you pay no extra penalty for the pride and pleasure of having this great and distinguished name. They come as a "special dividend" with every Cadillac car.

We deeply regret that we are unable to deliver new Cadillac cars without some delay. But the demand for the car is unprecedented—and much of the company's energies and materials are now being devoted to the needs of national security. Once the car is delivered into your hands, however, we know you'll agree that—patience never brought a richer reward.

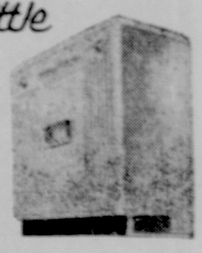
No more stretching! Leave "the stretch" to baseball or the race track—but take it out of clothes drying. Stretching's gone for good when you have an automatic GAS clothes dryer.

No more props! Props, pins, lines—you save the time you now spend caring for them—you save space you use for storing them. They're all unnecessary when you have an automatic GAS clothes dryer.

It's easier Just toss your wash into your dryer, set the dial, turn a knob. That's all. When they're dry, take them out. What could be easier?

It's faster Your automatic GAS clothes dryer is speedy—faster than any other automatic method. While one load washes, another dries.

It costs so little



Only $2.50 pays for fuel to dry your clothes for a YEAR. Not a month—a YEAR! Less than a cent a load. No other automatic dryer operates so economically.

Why not decide now to have an automatic GAS clothes dryer for your home? See the new models at your Gas Appliance Dealer's or Gas Company Office.

Former Eckhart Man Enters Baltimore Mayoralty Race

A native of Eckhart will be running for the Republican nomination for Mayor of Baltimore when the primaries are held this spring.

He is Joseph L. Carter, attorney, and chairman of the Maryland Republican Central Committee. He was born at Eckhart, July 20, 1904, and at the age of 18 went to Baltimore.

An old friend and classmate of Governor McKeldin, Carter was the successful campaign manager for McKeldin when he was elected Mayor in 1943 and when he was elected governor last fall.

Carter financed his way through the night law school of the University of Maryland by working for the Fidelity and Deposit Company.

He and McKeldin both worked for this firm while attending night classes. Upon his admission to the bar, he continued as claim attorney in the company's trust department. He began the private practice of law in 1930.

A lifelong Republican, he was appointed assistant U. S. attorney, under Simon E. Sobeloff, in 1932, and served until 1934.

During McKeldin's administration as mayor of Baltimore, he served on the City Planning Commission.

Carter is a director of the Baltimore Civic Opera Company and has served as a trustee and treasurer of Morgan State College.

Swallows On Schedule

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO, Calif., March 20 (AP)—Right on schedule, the swallows swooped down on Mission San Juan Capistrano yesterday.

They flew north out of the dawn and were on hand to greet the mission gardeners when they arrived for work about 6 a. m. (PST), Father Arthur J. Hutchinson, OFM, reported.

Local Historians note that the swallows have almost invariably arrived on St. Joseph's Day, March 19.

Former LaVale Man Quits Post In West Virginia

M. Burns Stanley, formerly of LaVale, has resigned his position as assistant attorney general of the State of West Virginia to enter private industry.

Stanley will become a member of the legal staff of the Ford Motor Company at Detroit on April 15.

A native of Bluefield, W. Va., he was graduated from Allegany High School in 1938. He received his bachelor's degree from Emory University and during World War II served as a lieutenant in the Marine Corps. He was wounded on Saipan.

Stanley was graduated from Harvard Law School and in September 1948 became head of the gross sales tax division of the Tax Commission of West Virginia. He became assistant attorney general for the Tax Commission in October, 1949.

He is married to the former Miss Alice Keller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Keller, 776 Fayette Street.

Stanley, a son of Rolley S. Stanley, former head of the police department at the Celanese Corporation plant here, and now of Hartford, Conn., will be replaced in Charleston by Joseph E. Hodgson, Fayetteville, W. Va.

Hodgson, 37, was born in Morgantown, W. Va., and lived later in Keyser, and was graduated from the West Virginia University School of Law in 1938. He practiced law in Keyser and in 1940 was elected prosecuting attorney of Mineral county.

During his four years in the Army during World War II, he was assigned to the Criminal Investigation Division in India and to the War Crimes Investigation Division in Singapore.

Hodgson became a legal assistant in the West Virginia State Department of Unemployment Compensation in 1946, but the following year went to Fayetteville to practice law.

Goss Freed Under Bond In Bookie Case

State Asks Trial In Circuit Court

Raymond Henry Goss, 214 Maryland Avenue, arraigned in Trial Magistrate's Court on a state gaming charge, will appear in Circuit Court at the April term, according to Paul M. Fletcher, state's attorney.

Goss waived his right to jury trial when arraigned before Magistrate Frank A. Perdew, but the state requested trial in Circuit Court.

Bond was fixed at $500 and Goss was released when Jesse E. Hopcraft, 219 Maryland Avenue, posted surety.

The action was the result of a raid on a downtown alleged "bookie" establishment over the weekend.

The charge against Goss reads that he "did on March 17 keep rent, occupy and maintain a building (23 Mechanic Street) for the purpose of gambling, betting or making bets, selling pools or books on the result of any race or contest."

Lt. Edwin R. Lilya, head of the Cumberland Police Department Detective Bureau, led the raid Saturday and confiscated a loud speaker, several telephones, pencils, papers, marked racing forms and books.

It was learned the "search and seizure" warrant for the raid was prepared by the state's attorney's office at the request of City Attorney W. Earle Cobey, and with the knowledge of Police Commissioner John J. Long.

The warrant was signed by Associate Judge Morgan C. Harris on the oath of Lt. Lilya, who obtained the gaming warrant yesterday before Goss was required to post bond in court.

Commissioner Long referred to the raid at Monday's meeting of the Mayor and Council, and commented more will be heard of the action later.

Road Complaints Once More Plague County Commissioners

Annual Spring Visits Made By Delegations

A stormy session of the Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday saw Millard Hughes, spokesman for a delegation from the Town Creek Club, and Commissioners William H. Lemmert and James Holmes clash over road-building in the eastern area of the county.

Hughes stated the residents of the Lower Town Creek section felt the board did not give that area much consideration as it failed to provide for two miles of hardsurfaced construction on the Lower Town Creek Road. Hughes said that Lemmert had promised that two miles would be built, but that only one mile has been included in the federal aid program for this year.

Lemmert and Holmes took exception to Hughes' statements in general and pointed out the two miles of road were to be built if money was available. They also stated that failure of property owners along the road to grant right-of-ways promptly also delayed the projected work.

The case of one man who wanted $500 for five walnut trees in front of his property was cited as an example of the snags in obtaining rights-of-ways. Surveys have been made by the State Roads Commission for the additional mile in question, but the county board said the necessary money is not available.

Part of the heated discussion was a rehash of arguments concerning the inclusion of the Mill Run Road in the Georges Creek area near Barton in the county's federal aid road building program. Both Lemmert and Holmes said the Mill Run project affected quite a bit of traffic and was one of the first roads considered for the federal aid program.

The county commissioners also told Hughes that the eastern section of the county has been given as much consideration as other areas.

Members of the board told the group that the two throughfares in question were not bona fide county roads and that the board would have to wait until after the next levy to determine if there would be money available for the repairs.

The group said that a bad sewage situation prevails in the area due to seepage from septic tanks and other sewers. They declared the Allegany County Health Department has jurisdiction on this. It was also pointed out that sewage disposal is the responsibility of the property owner involved.

A graduate of Allegany High School, Storey works in the traffic department of the University station. He was a member of the 1947 state championship basketball team and also played football. At the university he is a member of Alpha Delta Sigma, professional advertising fraternity.

State May Buy County Owned Land

Several tracts of rugged land on the east side of Dan's Mountain comprising about 1,490 acres have been offered by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners to the State Game and Inland Fish Commission for use as a public hunting grounds.

Leslie J. Clark, local attorney, appeared before the county board yesterday as the representative of the state agency. Clark said the state wishes to take options on the land and he listed the tracts involved.

All of the land reverted to the county in tax sales. Located in the Big Survey tract, the land has been offered to the state for $2.50 per acre. Members of the county board said that the land is to be used for wildlife purposes and will be a fine addition to public hunting grounds in the county.

The area is covered by scrub growth and had been cut over by timber men years ago. The state is buying approximately 5,000 acres in the Dan's Mountain area for use in its wildlife program.

A large part of the money to be spent acquiring the land will come from federal funds provided under an act of Congress to propagate wild life and provide public hunting grounds.

Besides aiding in the program of the State Game and Inland Fish Commission the action of the county board yesterday will take more or less useless land off the tax books and bring in $3,925 to the county.

Industry And Revenue

To The Editor of The News,
Sir:

I have read the article in The Sunday Times paper by Staff Writer John Byrd, Jr., relative to statements of Mr. Richardson Wood, city and county industrial consultant.

Frankly, I wish I could say that after reading the article, that same degree of optimism as expressed by Mr. Wood was as deeply imbued in my mind. But no. I still have that same old feeling and it is this, "Unless those people who are charged with the moral responsibility of the welfare of the people of the tri-state area use the brains that God gave them," make a proper analysis of the ills that have contributed to our economic unrest and security, then the only optimistic outlook I, as a parent, can entertain for the future is that my son may, after completing his primary education, enlist in the United States Army or walk the streets; my daughter can either stay at home and help take care of the house or find some menial employment; or the other alternative of leaving home and going to some town or city where they do have initiative and have provided those inducements that all industries demand and must have.

I had hoped that the firm of which Mr. Wood is the head, would by this time have been able to tell the people of this area what has been the contributing factor to the loss or lack of industrial facilities in Allegany County and then have been in a position to offer the corrective measures. In other words he could have furnished the window dressing to enable us citizens to sell Cumberland and the surrounding area. By window dressing I mean providing some inducement for industry to want to locate in Cumberland, abolishing the harassments that keep industry away.

The citing of the Frostburg situation, namely the Berkowitz pajama factory, is creditable only to the people of Frostburg. If the people of Allegany County must use that as a yardstick for every future industrial accomplishment, then I would say that the cost is not only too great but the means will prove unsound for general practice. Our problem is not a local one, but one that effects the entire area and was recognized as such when the county authorities were asked to contribute to the payment of fees for the above named industrial consultants. Does the potential exist in this area to secure adequate industry for our economic needs as a growing community? Personally I believe it does; I also believe that it may become a reality if the people of the area are acquainted with all the basci facts relative to our needs.

First, I believe we should determine the derogatory factors that must be recognized and then, if possible, eliminate those factors. I would enumerate them not in their importance but as they come to mind, thus: The high prevailing tax rate in the county, high utilities and general public practices that are classified as contributing harassments to the welfare of industrial expansion and continuity of employment. These factors must be eliminated if we are to compete with other sections of the nation in securing new industry; until we do so every cent we spend either with consultants or other ideas of promotion is so much wasted. In other words we've just got to sell the package with the coupon on the back.

To correct the above abuses I would suggest that while the Legislature is still in session, whether it be by constitutional amendment or by general law, that proper authority be given those in charge of such matters, to exempt of any and all taxes, both municipal and county. That suggestion to apply to existing industry as well as potential.

That the Legislature grant the County Commissioners the authority to issue bonds to pay the cost of constructing an adequate water line from the Savage River Dam down the Potomac River Valley to Cumberland as an added inducement for industry to locate in that area bordering the Western Maryland and Baltimore and Ohio Railroads between Westernport and Cumberland.

That local authorities endeavor to secure an adequate working agreement with local utilities without interference from the Public Service Commission of Maryland. I believe that this can be done a basis of profit by expansion and that the utility will cooperate fully.

In order that the burden of these corrective measures be not placed entirely on the taxpayers of the county by additional taxes and that we be able to meet existing problems of taxation that also play a part in making Cumberland and other sections of Allegany County a worthwhile package to sell, in that we are a community that is able to take care of our public servants, such as muncipial employes, policemen, firemen, street workers, etc., our county teachers and other county employes, I have suggestions to make. It is indeed unfortunate that at a time when we are in the midst of a multi-million dollar school building program, we must tell teachers and other employes we are unable to keep pace with industry in the payment of wages.

The cost of defraying all the expenses I have enumerated above can be done if the officials of this county will only look to the east of us and see what Montgomery County has accomplished by going after revenue in the proper direction. They have taken over the wholesale part of the retail of alcoholic beverages in that country.

So I suggest that local authorities recommend to the members of the Legislature a bill providing for the county wholesaling of all liquor sold here, and the establishing of county-owned retail outlets for packaged goods to compete with bordering states and acquire the needed additional revenue.

As there has been a great deal of good service, such as the building of hospitals, and in the case of the City of Annapolis where the city fathers were faced with a 20-cent increases in taxes, they increased the license fees on slot machines, I suggest a bill providing for a referendum on the legalizing of slot and other machines of chance. Let's not be hypocritical in this matter. Today the state and county are benefitting from the legalized horse racing and I believe that every source of revenue should be explored.

Mr. Editor, my letter has proven much longer than I anticipated; it may be attributed to the fact that I as a citizen am deeply interested in the future of Cumberland and the surrounding area. I am fully aware of the economic plight of many of the good citizens of this county, as hardly a day goes by that I do not have requests from men and women

Bi-State Scholastic Conference Approves 56 Game Schedule

Barton High School was admitted to membership in the Bi-State Scholastic Baseball Conference yesterday as the eight-team circuit of Pennsylvania and Maryland schools drafted a 56-game schedule for the 1951 campaign at a meeting in Allegany High School.

The opening games are scheduled for Friday, April 20, with Beall High's defending champions hosts to Allegany, Barton at Fort Hill, Central at Bruce and Hyndman at LaSalle. Each school will play 14 contests. The closing date is Tuesday, June 5.

Walter L. Bowers, of Allegany High School, president of the league, presided at yesterday's session. Coaches present were Ed McVicker, Hyndman; John Meyers, Central; Walter (Woody) Woodson, Bruce; John Thomas, Barton; John J. "Bobby" Cavanaugh, Fort Hill; Hubert Radcliffe, Allegany, and Ed Finzel, Beall. Brother Joseph, director of athletics, represented LaSalle High School.

Cecil Warnick represented the Tri-State Umpires' Association.

Murphy, Rindone Clash April 16

Sailor And Ex-Marine To Tangle At Boston

BOSTON, March 20 (AP) — Irish Bob Murphy, the slugging sailor from San Diego, and Boston's "dynamite" Joe Rindone have been signed to fight in Boston Garden April 16, the Callahan A. C. said tonight.

Promoter Sam Silverman said Murphy, who weighed in at 177 pounds for his recent technical knockout win over Danny Bucceroni of Philadelphia in Madison Square Garden, has agreed to get down to 172 for Rindone.

Rindone, a 28-year-old ex-marine, was at 164½ for his recent draw with middleweight Paul Pender here. Joe, a sturdy aggressive puncher, gave a good account of himself before being kayoed by Sugar Ray Robinson and also lost a close decision to France's Robert Villemain.

In an unprecedented happening in North American horse racing, French-bred horses finished one-two-three in the same race this season at Hialeah.

Three Teams Battle For 2nd Half Title In Women's League

A three-cornered fight for the second half championship of the Women's Shuffleboard League of Allegany County will end tonight and there could be a triple tie on the final day of the season.

Stadium Inn, first half champion, has completed its 30-game second half schedule and is idle tonight. Century is the runner-up by one game while Ruth's Tavern is in third place, 1½ games off the pace.

Three wins for Ruth's over Frostburg Legion and a 2-1 victory for Century over Clingerman's would put the three top teams in a triple tie with 22-8 records each.

Tonight's schedule: Frostburg Legion at Ruth's Tavern, Century A. C. at Clingerman's Restaurant, Cumberland V.F.W. at Woodmen of World, Cresap Tavern at Pocahontas and South End Republican Club at Moose. Standings:

Capt. Tichnell, Tim Clark Get Barton Awards

150 Attend Affair Honoring Champions, Suter Kegg Speaker

BARTON, March 20—Thomas J. "Tim" Clark and Capt. Arnold Tichnell were presented sportsmanship awards at the dinner held tonight in Barton High School in honor of the school's state championship Class "B" basketball team.

Clark received the award offered by Kirk's Confectionery—an engraved belt buckle and belt—which was presented by David Kirk. A $5 cash award, donated by "two friends," was presented by Paul Footen to Arnold Tichnell, center, captain and leading scorer of the team.

The dinner was served in the cafeteria and the remainder of the program was held in the school auditorium. Footen acted as toastmaster.

J. Suter Kegg, sports editor of the Cumberland Evening Times and Sunday Times, was the principal speaker. The address of welcome was delivered by Miss Emma Schramm, president of the Student Council which sponsored the affair. Among others who spoke were John J. Thomas, coach of Barton's 1950 and 1951 Maryland Class "C" champions; Alfred H. Benna, principal, and Capt. Tichnell.

William Hyde sang "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling," Joyce Moore presented "Nevertheless" and "I Don't Know Why" and William Frankenberry, William Hyde, William Brown and Bobby Lee Montgomery entertained with instrumental selections. Mrs. Doris Mitchell was accompanist. Two school cheers were presented by the cheerleaders.

A tape recording of the final quarter of the championship game in which Barton defeated Ocean City last Saturday afternoon at College Park was played and enjoyed by the 150 persons present.

Phillips' Oilers Breeze To Victory

DENVER, March 20 (AP)—Phillips 66ers from Bartlesville, Okla., opened defense of their National AAU basketball championship today with a 95-53 breeze over a collection of Wyoming University freshmen.

The champ, aiming for their eighth title in nine years, rocketed to an 11-1 lead in the first two minutes and hardly worked up a sweat the rest of the way against the Mehse-Baker team of Laramie, Wyo.

Phillips plays its second game of the 44th annual tournament tomorrow at 7 p. m. against the Los Angeles Kelbos, a team being carried on the aging shoulders of 41-year-old Frank Lubin, a six-foot seven-inch pivot man.

Hutchinson Hurls Bombshell Into Commissioner Squabble

Players In Majors Ask Part In Picking Chandler Successor

TAMPA, Fla., March 20 (AP)—Top drawer baseball reaction ran the gamut from chagrin to shocked silence today following the suggestion that ball players be given a voice in naming the new commissioner.

Detroit pitcher Freddie Hutchinson, official player-representative of the American League, threw the bombshell into the seething commissioner squabble with the statement yesterday that owners will be petitioned in July to give the players a part in choosing a successor to A. B. Chandler.

If the owners don't agree to this, Hutchinson warned in Lakeland, Fla., then the players may go out and hire a man of their own—maybe the deposed Happy Chandler, himself.

"Players feel we could pay a commissioner $40,000 a year to represent us," the Tiger pitcher added. "That would be an assessment of $100 a player for the 400 major leaguers."

Carpenter Is Shocked

"Somebody should get in another business—the ball players or the owners," he said.

Will Harridge, president of the American League, took a conciliatory attitude on the matter, assuring the players their interests will be protected "regardless of who is commissioner."

"The major league clubs put the pension fund and revised player contracts in operation and will continue to carry them out," Harridge, a member of baseball's executive council, said.

Ford Frick, president of the National League, said in San Francisco he hasn't heard about the proposal. When a reporter offered to read it to him, the NL executive said, "I don't want to hear anything about it—no comment."

In West Palm Beach, Walter F. O'Malley, president of the Brooklyn Dodgers, said:

Thought Chandler OK

"The players are a fine responsible group and anything they say will merit attention. Like the players I, too, thought Chandler was a good commissioner."

St. Louis Cardinals owner Fred Saigh, who led the anti-Chandler forces, said if the players knew the facts they would go along with what the owners are doing.

"Actually the gains they made were through their own representatives' efforts," Saigh said, "not what the commissioner did for them."

The Washington Senators' Clark Griffith, militantly pro-Chandler, said of the players' move: "I don't believe it would pan out although I would dearly love for them (the players) to like and respect their new commissioner, but players come and go so much I'm afraid it would spread out too thick."

Warren Giles of Cincinnati asserted: "A general majority of the players realize the advantages they have as professional ball players and that they are being treated fairly," Giles said.

Hutchinson was sharply critical of owner policy, saying the average player felt the owners refused to renew Chandler's contract because the commissioner had done a lot for the ball players which had never been done before.

Fought Pension Plan

He said most players were in favor of keeping Chandler.

"We definitely know that some club owners, and we have their names, fought the players' pension plan all the way," the Tiger pitcher added. "It just happens that some of these owners were included in the anti-Chandler bloc.

"We have never been told any official reason why Chandler was fired. Only conclusion we can make is that the owners feel it is none of our business.

"We think it is our business just as much as theirs—maybe more of our business. Baseball is our livelihood. To many club owners, it is just a hobby."

St. Michael's Wins Frostburg Church Loop Title, 40-33

FROSTBURG, March 20—St. Michael's won the championship of the Frostburg Church Basketball League tonight by defeating Eckhart Methodist in the final playoff game by the score of 40-33.

It was the 16th straight league victory of the season for Coach Father Regis Larkin's quint which copped 14 games during the regular campaign and defeated St. Paul's Lutheran in the playoff opener, 38-28. Eckhart Methodist defeated Congregational, 48-43, to advance to the playoff finals.

In tonight's third place game on the Beall High court, Congregational defeated St. Paul's, 36-28.

Kansas State Plays Arizona

NCAA Tourney Opens In Kansas City Gym

KANSAS CITY, March 20 (AP)—It's Kansas State or Oklahoma A. & M.—take your pick—as the eight-team field awaits the 9 p. m., (EST) tipoff tomorrow night which will open the Western National Collegiate Athletic Association basketball playoff.

Kansas State, darling of the Big Seven, naturally is the sentimental favorite in this area. But the Aggies from Stillwater are not held lightly. Followers of the court game know Coach Henry Iba has another powerful aggregation, rated second in the nation.

Despite ballyhoo for Brigham Young University of Provo, Utah after its victory in the National Invitational Tournament at New York, the Cougars aren't given much chance in their quest for a grand slam.

Kansas State opposes Arizona of the Border Conference in tomorrow night's opening tilt.

Brigham Young, which is in the same bracket as K-State, plays the second game tomorrow night against San Jose, Calif., State, an at-large team, and isn't expected to encounter much trouble.

In the other first round games Thursday night, Washington University, Pacific Coast champ, plays the Southwest titlist, Texas A-M at 9 p. m., EST, and Montana State of Bozeman, the other at-large entry, runs into Oklahoma A-M at 10:45.

Western Md. Tops B. & O.

Wins Railroad Dux Series By 373 Pins

The Western Maryland Railway duckpin team won its six-game series from the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad pinmen last night by the margin of 373 pins.

Trailing by the margin of 27 pins at the end of three games, Western Maryland won last night's match 5,128 to 4,729, a margin of 400 pins, to clinch the series. The first three games were rolled on the Savoy alleys, the last three on the Club Recreation lanes.

McCoy and Lafferty headed the Western Maryland scorers with sets of 508 and 506 while C. Comer posted a 199 for high single game. Dean and Ziler with three-game totals of 485 and 460 led the B.&O. Dean's 198 was high for one game.

Members of both teams will be the guests of the Cumberland Brewing Company at a feed tonight from 7 to 9:30 p. m. in the recreation room of the brewery.

HOMER SINKS TRIBE

BURBANK, Calif., March 20 (AP)—Tommy Upton, usually not considered a big man with a bat, led the St. Louis Browns to a 6-5 decision over the Cleveland Indians today with an eleventh inning homer.

It was the Browns' first victory over a major league opponent in spring exhibition games this year.

Koszarek Is Champ
Spas' 11 Of 29 Low

Powers To Bat Fifth

By C. V. BURNS

Lou Koszarek, of Portage, Pa. now a member of the Penn State College boxing team, won the Eastern Intercollegiate Boxing Association's 165-pound championship recently by decisioning Billy Maher of Catholic U. in the annual tourney at Charlottesville, Va.

Lou will compete in the national championship tourney at Michigan State College, April 5-7.

Koszarek flattened Lou Morin of Army in the second round of the Eastern tourney's semi-final.

Local amateur fistic fans will recall that Koszarek appeared in two shows here in 1948 and won both matches. He knocked out Robert "Red" Howard, Washington, D. C., in five rounds and earned the nod over "Skeets" Starkey in five. In fact, Koszarek's left hooks floored Starkey twice in the third round of their match.

Mike Valan, owner of the Wheeling Blues, told us Sunday night that he will not enter a team in the All-American Pro League if the circuit is in operation next winter. The reason: Mike doesn't like to set-up and it's costing him too much money.

• — • — •

The Blues really "moidered" the Spas this season, winning seven out of the eight games. When the campaign started Wheeling held a 14-12 edge over Cumberland in games won in three years of league play. Now it's 21-13.

• — • — •

The Spas foul shooting in Sunday's game in which they were eliminated from the playoffs even though they tied Wheeling in field goals 33-33, was the local team's worst performance in 31 contests this season.

The 11 out of 29 for an average of .379 was lower than the 8 for 21 and .381 or the 13 for 33 and .394 earlier in the season against Erie and Johnstown.

In a game against Altoona the locals made 18 out of 20 for .900. Three other times the Spas hit above 85 per cent with 25-28, 22-25 and 23-27.

Les Cosgrove of Mt. St. Mary's College, Emmitsburg, led the Maryland college scorers for 1950-51 with 596 points, 126 of which he tallied in the Catholic tourney at Albany, N. Y.

Nick Scallion, Washington College, was 2nd with 592 and Art (Western Maryland) Press was next with 589.

CHISOX BLANK YANKS

GLENDALE, Calif., March 20 (AP) —The Chicago White Sox embarrassed Yankee manager Casey Stengel in his own home town this afternoon by shutting out the New York club, 5-0 before an overflow crowd of 4,117. The champions could get only four hits off the pitching of rookies Hal Brown and Marv Rotblatt, these being shared by Hank Bauer and Phil Rizzuto. Rotblatt permitted but one single over the last five innings.

The Sox slammed 11 safeties, with Shortstop Chico Carrasquel getting three of them. The infielder also starred afield with 11 chances, nine of them assists. Score:

Big Ten Champs Bag 79-71 Win Before 17,107 Fans In Garden

St. John's Conquers Connecticut, 63-52

NEW YORK, March 20 (AP) — Illinois splintered Columbia's proud unbeaten record 79-71, on the phenomenal long-range sharpshooting substitute Ted Beach tonight and St. John's breezed past Connecticut 63-52, to gain the semi-finals of the NCAA eastern basketball tournament.

The Big Ten champions qualified to meet North Carolina State, 67-62 conqueror of Villanova at Raleigh, N. C., in Thursday's round of four at Madison Square Garden. St. John's will play the winner of the game between top-ranked Kentucky and Louisville.

Although the Illinois - Columbia game was not decided until the final minutes before a roaring Garden crowd of 17,107, it was Beach, a senior troubleshooter who goes in when the sophomores fail, who broke the Lions' hearts with a fantastic exhibition of set shooting just before the end of the half.

Eight pops Beach took at the Columbia basket in the space of as many minutes and seven times the ball went through the nets. He scored 22 points for the evening, including ten field goals.

Columbia matched this scoring pace, however, with a driving attack built around lanky Jack Molinas and went to intermission clutching a 45-38 lead.

The Brooklyn Redmen, completely lacking in fire and spirit, either left their zing in the exhaustive National Invitation Tournament last week or were saving it for their next game here Thursday.

Nevertheless, they rolled up an effortless 25-point lead in the second half against the futile Uconns in a game so dull it bored the fans.

Then at the three-quarter point, the fans were electrified as Connecticut's Vince Yokabaskas and Bill Ebel sparked a surge that whacked St. John's lead to 11 points.

N. C. State, Kentucky Score At Raleigh

RAWLEIGH, N. C., March 20 (AP)—High scoring Kentucky, battled to a virtual standstill most of the game, pulled away in the last eight minutes to defeat a fired-up Louisville team, 79-68, in the NCAA southern basketball quarter-finals tonight before 12,400 fans.

North Carolina State's Wolfpack, trailing 38-32 at halftime, fought back behind the brilliant shooting of forward Bill Kukoy to upset Villanova, 67-62, in the opener of the NCAA quarter-finals.

Kukoy, a Gary, Ind., sophomore filling in for All-American Sam Ranzino, bagged 27 points.

A capacity crowd in N. C. State's huge Coliseum saw the inspired Wolfpack come flying back in the second half to defeat the same team that had defeated it twice during the regular season.

Villanova, paced by forward Ben Stewart of York, Pa., with 19 points, got off to a fast start and built up a 12 point lead in the first half. But the Wolfpack, with Kukoy and Forward Bobby Speight finding the range, began to cut down the margin.

The Wolfpack was without Ranzino and two other senior stars, center Paul Horvath and guard Vic Bubas, because of an NCAA ban on four-year varsity players. All three played varsity ball as freshmen.

Yokabaskas, a six foot two forward from Bloomfield, Conn., racked up 17 points in the last half comeback and finished the evening with 22, high for the game. Ebel, a six-foot-four center and biggest man on the team, had nine points in the last half, 12 for the night.

Zawoluk scored 18 points, collecting seven field goals, while Dombrosky popped in 17 on six field goals and five foul throws.

TIGER OUTLOOK FOR SEASON NOT TOO BRIGHT

Detroit Needs Punch, More Speed And Pitching Aid For 1951

EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the eighth of a series of articles on the 1951 prospects of the major league baseball teams.

By WALTER L. JOHNS
Central Press Sports Editor

LAKELAND, Fla. — "With some real hitting by my catchers, we would have won the pennant."

Robert (Red) Rolfe, beginning his third season as manager of the Detroit Tigers, was talking in the team's clubhouse here and diagnosing the ills of 1950.

"I was dissatisfied with my catchers last year," the carrot-top ex-Yankee star said, recalling how the Tigers led the American league race for two-thirds of the season only to fold up in the stretch and finish second.

"And now," the readhead continued, "I've pitching troubles, too. The loss of Art Houtteman really will hurt, unless Virgil Trucks comes back and helps us.

"My pitching is weaker, that's for sure. Why, in the last two years I lost two 19-game winners in Trucks and Houtteman. If Trucks doesn't help us, who will?"

The catching last year was handled by Aaron Robinson and Bob Swift, who hit a meager .226 and .227. The third catcher, Frank House, the boy who signed for that $65,000 bonus, sat on the bench most of the season.

Brought up this year again is Myron Ginsberg, who batted .336 for Toledo and who has a lot of fire.

"I'm going to work Ginsberg and House this spring and if they can do the work, one of those other boys will go. Of course, I can send House out now, where I couldn't before because of the bonus rule." Rolfe carried on: "What we need, besides help in our pitching and good catching, is more of that long ball. More speed, too. We need somebody who can belt it out of the park. We were only fourth in the league in home runs last year, you know.

"Our situation doesn't look good but it's not hopeless. I look for Boston to do it this year and the Yankees will be tough as usual. And don't forget those Indians, either."

It's in the pitching where the Tigers have to find help. Trucks, who won 19 games in 1949, did little last year, winning only three and getting in few games because of ailments.

Rolfe looks for Hal Newhouser, the ace lefty, to do as well and better this year. Rolfe predicts a 20-game win season for Big Hal, who now is up to 183 pounds in weight.

Dizzy Trout, Ted Gray and Fred Hutchinson are first-line starters but there is no Houtteman on the scene.

There is a terrific prospect in camp, however, in Bill Hoeft, an 18-year-old schoolboy whiz from Oshkosh, Wis., who looks and pitches like Newhouser. He has a terrific record but is not ready and probably will be sent out for seasoning.

Best of the experienced newcomers appears to be Wayne McLeland, a Milton, Ia., boy who won 21 games for Dallas last season. He looked good in a training game here and knows how to pitch.

For relief Manager Rolfe is planning on Harold White and Earl Johnson. The last-named formerly was with the Red Sox but now comes up from Louisville. "I'm hoping Johnson can do it," says Rolfe.

Paul Calvert, former Washington pitcher who was with the Tigers last year, has a fight on his hands to stay with the club, according to Rolfe. Saul Rogovin, who came up highly heralded last year, also is being given another good look in the the hopes he may be the guy to help. Still another flinger is young Ray Herbert, who came up from Toledo after pitching five ball there.

The infield will be the same as last year. Don Kolloway is at first Jerry Priddy at second, Johnny Lipon at short and George Kell at third.

Dick Kryhoski who started last season as the Tigers' first sacker and failed to make good, is back for another try. He finished with Toledo where he hit .333.

Steve Souchok, who twice served sessions with the Yankees, comes up from Sacramento where he had a big year. He hit 30 homers and wound up with a .291 batting mark. He has been one of the hitting stars in camp here. Rolfe plans to use him only as a pinch-hitter although he says Steve can play the outfield, first base and third base.

All three hit over the .300 mark with Wertz and Evers both recording more than 100 RB's each. And the trio belted 60 home runs.

The utility gardeners will be the same. They are Fat Mullin and Charley Keller.

One rookie had a chance to stick. He is George Lerchen, who socked 27 homers and batted in 97 runs for Toledo.

Actually, the Tigers of 1951 will be the same as the Tigers of 1950—with the exception of 19-game winner Houtteman, serving Uncle Sam now.

They'll be in the first division, off last year's showing, but one could hardly pick them for the pennant against the Red Sox or Yanks.

Maryland Bettors On Doubles To Get Consolation Payoff

BALTIMORE, March 20 (AP)—Maryland horse bettors on daily doubles are going to get a consolation payoff even if their second choice fails to start.

They'll still have to pick the first winner, naturally.

But in the past, if they did and their selection in the second race was scratched they got only their $2 back.

The Racing Commission announced today a consolation daily double for such cases. The money bet on all combinations including the scratched horse will be divided among those who picked the first race right.

The consolation double will be in force for the first time in Maryland at the Laurel meeting opening Friday.

Bucs Sign Pitchers

PITTSBURGH, March 20 (AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates home office today reported signing up two pitchers who tried out at a recent camp at Anaheim, Calif. They are Jack Maddy, Phoenix, Ariz., who will play for Waco of the Big State League; and Wallace Sinner, Bell, Calif., who will be sent to Mayfield, Ky., of the Kitty League.

Tommy Holmes Named Manager At Hartford

BRADENTON, Fla., March 20 (AP)—Owner Lou Perini of the Boston Braves announced today that veteran right fielder Tommy Holmes has agreed to become player-manager of the Hartford Chiefs of the Class A Eastern League. Tommy was about to launch his 10th season with the Tribe.

Holmes will assume his new duties at the Myrtle Beach, S. C., training camp site of the Braves' minor league club in about a week.

The 33-year-old Holmes batted .298 last season in 105 games and has a liftime major league average of .304.

PIEDMONT, W. Va.—A second meeting to discuss the elimination of pollution of the Potomac River by garbage disposal will be held in the Piedmont Library at 8 p. m. Thursday.

Mayors of Piedmont, Keyser, Westernport and Luke and City Councils of the four towns, the Chambers of Commerce of the Tri-Towns and Keyser, representatives of 11 service clubs and other interested persons are invited to attend.

Two films will be shown. Talks will be given by William Waller, Keyser, senior state sanitarian, a representative of the Health Department of West Virginia from Charleston and a member of the Maryland Health Department from Baltimore.

The first meeting was held recently by the Mayors and city officials in Keyser with J. B. Dowling, Maryland state Sanitarian.

The proposal calls for the burying of garbage and other rubbish in trenches measuring 20 to 100 feet in length and at a depth just above the water line. Disposal of garbage would be accomplished by dumping the rubbish in a trench and at the end of each day cover it over with a bulldozer and clam scoop. This method averts flies, mosquitoes, vermin and other unsanitary conditions.

This plan has been successful in Baltimore and other easterr cities. Elkins is the nearest location where such a method is used.

KEEPING UP WITH HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, March 20 (INS)—Excited and happy, Maureen O'Hara telephoned to tell me she is being divided into more pieces among the studios than was Gregory Peck. What she meant is that she and 20th Century-Fox rearranged her contract, so now she only makes one a year for them.

Maureen O'Hara

She has a new multiple picture deal, non-exclusive, with Universal-International.

"I made my best pictures for Bill Goetz," said Maureen, "and I am so happy over going back to that studio. Moreover, I can now free lance, too."

Maureen's next picture is "Wild- Maureen O'Hara life" at U.I., which will be made right away. Then Maureen goes to Galway for John Ford's "The Quiet One," which she co-stars in with John Wayne.

"I envy you, Maureen, going to Ireland," I told her.

"Isn't it grand?" she said, "I'll see my mother in Dublin and all my friends."

Dore Schary only had to catch one of the New York Yankees exhibition games against the Los Angeles Angels to realize just how immensely popular Joe DiMaggio is with the diamond fans. Now he wants to do Joe's life story as an M.G.M. picture.

Dore, however, doesn't think any of the Hollywood actors could play the part of the American League's famous swatter as well as DiMaggio could himself.

He and Joe have already huddled over the idea of making the picture with DiMaggio in the leading role, and though the deal hasn't been closed, it probably will be this week. Joe promised to talk it over with his Yankee bosses. If they give him the go signal, he'll sign with M.G.M.

From New York I get the tip a fiction story inspired from the Kefauver Senate Crime Investigating Committee has been written by veteran Newspaper Man Jess Stearn. Far be it from me to hint that it it a disguised saga of Virginia Hill — but that 's the gist of it.

Under the title "The Story of Gloria Wayne," Stearn has drawn a solid drama of a beauty whose life of luxury is lived in the shadow of mobster activities.

Yes, I remember that Joan Crawford starred in a Warner version of what happens to little girls who become gangster's molls in "The Damned Can't Cry." But that had gloves on. The Stearn story doesn't.

Jack Dempsey, who is doing all right as an insurance and real estate broker, is still stage struck. That's why he just signed a contract with Bing Crosby Enterprises to star in the first of a new TV film series, "The Show of Champions."

It's a half-hour program on film about the squared circle and Jack will not only play himself, but also handle the narration. Camera work begins this week at the Hal Roach Studios. Other sports champs of the past and present who have also been signed for the series are: Ben Hogan, Jack Kramer, Gorgeous George, Joe DiMaggio and Joe Louis.

If you're thinking of playing the stock market for the first time, pause long enough to consider the advice of Bernard Baruch, who is reputed to have made millions in his Wall Street manipulations. "If you are ready and able to give up everything else," warns Mr. Baruch, "and will study the whole history and background of the market and all important companies whose shares are listed on the board as carefully as a medical student studies anatomy, and will glue your nose to the ticker tape at the opening of every day of the year and never take it off till night; if you can do all that, and in addition have the cool nerve of a great gambler, the sixth sense of a clairvoyant, and the courage of a lion—you have a Chinaman's chance!"

James Stephens, author of The Crock of Gold, probably has the finest repertoire of Irish stories extant today. An example: Tim and Mike were working on the same construction job, when Tim suddenly lost his balance and plunged five stories to the ground. Mike hurried down to where he lay and asked anxiously, "Are ye dead, Tim?" "That Oi am," moaned Tim. Mike looked dubious. "Faith," he declared, "ye're such a liar Oi don't know whether to believe you or not."

Tim looked triumphant. "That proves Oi'm dead, ye dirty scoundrel. If Oi was alive, ye wouldn't dare be callin' me a liar!"

According to Jerry Wald, a high school student interviewed Gertrude Lawrence after a matinee of "Lady in the Dark" and enthused, "It's wonderful to find you so blonde and young. I always imagined you were years older and a brunette." Miss Lawrence whispered softly, "Don't tell anybody—but I am."

By LAWRENCE GOULD, Consulting Psychologist

Answer: I do not believe so. To one type of person a deadline is a challenge which inspires him to his best efforts while a person of the other type is thrown into a panic in which he cannot do anything at all. The contrast may stem from the fact that the demands their parents made on people of the former type were fair and reasonable, so that they knew they could win approval by complying with them, whereas people who are paralyzed by deadlines never felt as children that they knew or could achieve what was expected of them.

Can you cure yourself of "talking too muc "?

Answer: It is not easy, but you'll find it more than worth while not to have to say so often: "How I wish I had kept my mouth shut!" The trick is to form and hold on to the habit of asking yourself beforehand: "What will be the consequences of my saying what is on the tip of my tongue?" You may say there usually isn't time to do this, but you'll be mistaken. Mental processes take almost no time at all. It is your resistance to allowing anything except the moment's mood to enter your mind that makes "stopping to think" seem so difficult.

Does brain injury make children "defective"?

Answer: No, writes Eloise Oxtoby of the North Jersey Training School in the Journal of Correctional Education. There is no one type of behavior that is characteristic of children with brain injuries. They differ from normal children mainly in being restless and overactive but do not become idiots or morons. The main effect of brain injury is a lack of control which makes the child "restless, erratic, unpredictable, impulsive and illogical." He acts out whatever comes into his mind without regard for consequences.

Child's World Is Wonderful

Carmelita Plonka

The world that children live in is mighty wonderful . . . filled with little daydreams and hopes and joys that make the older folks sometimes wish they were school-age again. But boys and girls have their ups and downs, too, particularly when they are not feeling well. Ten-year-old Carmelita Plonka, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Plonka of 3202 S. Aberdeen, Chicago, Ill., was not feeling good recently and was just too listless to get the most out of her school days. Fortunately for Carmelita, though, her grandmother suggested that her mother give her HADACOL, because she had heard how much it was helping children dificient in Vitamins B1, B2, Iron and Niacin. Now, Carmelita feels fine and her mother says she has a big appetite.

Here is Mrs. Plonka's statement:

"My daughter Carmelita, who is 10 years old and in the fifth grade, had always been underweight and I had to positively force her to eat. She had no interest in food whatsoever, but I knew that she had to eat. When we were visiting my mother in Missouri over the Christmas holidays she suggested I give Carmelita HADACOL. I bought a large bottle of it that same day and was amazed at the change in Carmelita. Her appetite picked right up and she now eats three hearty meals a day plus in-between snacks. I have really praised HADACOL, and highly recommend it for everyone."

HADACOL can help you if you suffer such deficiencies. Ask your druggist for HADACOL today.

PIN-WORMS GO! Jayne's P-W Gets Real Results

Fidgeting, nose-picking and a tormenting rectal itch are often telltale signs of Pin-Worms . . . ugly parasites that medical experts say infest one out of every three persons examined! Entire families may be victims and not know it.

To get rid of Pin-Worms, these pests must not only be killed, but killed in the large intestine where they live and multiply. That's exactly what Jayne's P-W tablets do . . . and here's how they do it:

First—a scientific coating carries the tablets into the bowels before they dissolve. Then—Jayne's modern, medically-approved ingredient goes right to work—kills Pin-Worms quickly and easily.

Don't take chances with this dangerous, highly contagious condition. At the first sign of Pin-Worms, ask your druggist for genuine Jayne's P-W Vermifuge . . . the small, easy-to-take tablets perfected by famous Dr. D. Jayne & Son, specialists in worm remedies for over 100 years.

Earmarks Of Success

HENRY "If-At-First-You-Don't-Succeed" Morgan is with us again on a TV program which has all the earmarks of success, a terrible thing. At least, a terrible thing for Mr. Morgan who has carved out a fruitful career for himself by failing at most everything he did in radio. However, his were not ordinary failures.... When a Morgan show folded, the air was full of clamor and controversy, stimulating stuff to the industry, the columnists and, I suspect, Mr. Morgan himself.

John Crosby

Back when I was a boy, the native population could be divided roughly into two classifications—those who listened to Morgan and to nobody else on radio, those who didn't listen to Morgan and listened to everything else. This made it easy to cast a dinner party. You put a pro-Morgan next to an anti-Morgan, all the way down the line. Within five minutes the pros would be breaking soup plates over the heads of the antis and everyone would have a lovely time. It was a surefire way to break a lease, too.

• — • — •

Now success looms. He's got a sponsor and everything. Pretty soon, the teenagers will be annoying him for his autograph, the tradespeople will expect him to pay his bills, he'll have to learn how to deposit money, and, in general, life will be vexing.

To get down to the show itself, "The Great Talent Hunt" (NBC-TV, 9:30 p. m. EST Fridays) is a parody on all the talent shows that infest television. That in itself is significant. When television starts parodying itself on a regular weekly basis—it's been done intermittently before—it has reached a degree of self-anlysis which is one of the first inklings of maturity.

In announcing his new show, Mr. Morgan said he was seeking odd talents. "You know, a man who tap-dances on Jello, things like that." I don't think anyone has tap-danced on Jello yet but the talents on display have been almost equally curious. At various times, Morgan has produced the world's champion lady wood-chopper, a lady punchingbag expert from South America, a farmer who played castanets with his muscles, a welder who played "Sleepy Time Gal" on a matchbox, and a couple who sang arias while standing on their heads.

An appearance on his show, Mr. Morgan cheerfully confesses, is the first step on the ladder to oblivion. "Immediately after his appearance here," said Morgan of one contestant, "a very important producer called him. He rushed to the phone, fell through the cellar door and broke his neck."

It's a very gentle, disarming and rather surprisingly handsome Morgan who wanders through these innocent proceedings. "Welcome, to the great Talent Hunt or as it is often called 'Movies are better than ever.' This program is performing an enormous contribution to television. Makes all the other shows look good." Then on come the people who play xylophones with their kneecaps. I don't know what enchanted forest Henry flushes these people out of but he seems to have an inexhaustible supply of them.

Morgan treats them gingerly, as if he were afraid they might disappear before his eyes. There is no real meeting of minds. The lady punching-bag expert, a humorless lady, didn't seem to know what Henry was doing there or what he stood for exactly and Henry seemed a little puzzled about it himself.

• — • — •

Arnold Stang, Morgan's perennial sidekick, whose face matches his ludicrous accent in every particular, has passages at arms with Mr. M. when the talent gets out of the way. Very funny exchanges, too, these two supplementing each other perfectly.

"Got a terrific act to close the show," says Stang.

"Baboon?"

"No."

"A flight of pigeons?"

"No, this is a person."

"Oh, people!"

"What's the matter with people?"

"We've already had 'em on the show."

I couldn't vouch for that last statement.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of Don Laffey who passed away eight years ago, March 21st, 1943.

Many silent thoughts,
Many silent tears,
Many beautiful memories
Of one I loved so dear.
May his soul rest in peace.
Sadly missed by his Grandmother,
Mrs. Jessie Kalbaugh

In loving memory of our Dear Mother, Alice V. Spiker, who departed this life one year ago today, March 21, 1950.

A precious one from us has gone
A voice we love is stilled
A place is vacant in our home
Which never can be filled
In our hearts your memory lingers
Sweetly tender, fond and true
There is not a day, dear Mother
That we do not think of you.
Sadly missed by her children.

Cards of Thanks

I wish to thank those who were so kind during my bereavement, the death of my beloved cousin, Raymond Sheppard, and also want to thank those who sent flowers and donated the use of their cars. I especially want to thank Ronald B. Landis and those who were pallbearers.

Anna R. Van

"She's a chip off the ol' block, isn't she?"

Miniature Atomic Detection Devices Unveiled At Exhibit

NEW YORK—(INS)—A miniature atom bomb detection device, which can be worn around the neck like a "dog tag," may soon come into common use in America.

So may several other atom-age gadgets.

The device, developed by Eastman Kodak Company for the U. S. Navy, was unveiled in the naval exhbit at the 1951 convention of the Institute of Radio Engineers.

The detection gadget will enable persons subjected to an atom bomb attack to determine quickly the amount of radiation they have absorbed.

It is a one-inch silver capsule about the size of a lipstick and weighs only two ounces. In the capsule are four crystals which change colors as radiation strikes.

The color of the crystals indicates the amount of radiation.

The capsule can be hung from the neck on a cord like a "dog tag." It is called a "self indicator."

It enables your doctor to tell immediately whether the radition effects on you are minor, whether your need a blood transfusion or whether you are likely to die.

Naval personnel everywhere will soon be wearing the gadget and, ultimately, it may be as coomon to Mr. and Mrs. Average Citizen as was the gas mask in World War II.

Gadget No. 2 is about the size of a cigaret lighter. In it is a special piece of glass which, when exposed to radition, changes its ability to transmit infra-red light.

You can also wear this around your neck. You can't make the radition reading yourself. You've got to take it to a doctor, or to the casualty official.

Two other devices, for use by civil defense workers, were also shown at the exhibit.

One of them looks like a bulldog-faced flashlight battery and actually is a miniature Geiger counter which can determine the amount of radiation in any given area.

It weighs two and one-half pounds. You turn it on by pushing a button and the amount of radioactivity is recorded on a tiny-meter. It can be worn around your waist, attached to a belt. It records the rate of exposure.

The fourth device resembles an alarm clock and is called a "self indicator dosimeter with alarm." It is six inches, by four inches, by 1¾ inches.

It is set like an alarm clock. You set the mark at 40, 50 or whatever degree of radiation you decide to subpect yourself to.. If you select 50, the alarm rings at the 50 mark. It is for military and area work, after an atom bomb has been dropped.

The devices are the outcome of intensive activities in atom bomb detection on the part of the electronics division of the Navy's Bureau of Ships.

The Old Second

and pleasing to find such genuine friendliness and Americanism.

W. H. Duckworth, Chief Justice of the Georgia Supreme Court, made a speech in which he criticized sharply the waste in Washington, and the idea of encouraging the people to vote for a paternal government. He reminded his audience of the stern qualities of the citizens who had built this country. You don't hear any sound sentiments like those at Twenty One, the Stork Club or other glittery places in New York. The next day I attended a lunch of the Kiwanis, and found the same wholesome spirit of concern for the country and patriotism.

That night I had dinner with a young man and his pretty bride, just starting out in life, and their eagerness and earnestness were impressive. Before the meal, she said,

"Will you ask a blessing, dear?" We bowed our heads in thanks, as he said grace.

They drove me back to the hotel. He remarked,

"You were talking to Governor Cox in Miami today."

Surprised and thinking he was a mind reader, I inquired,

"How did you know?"

"Because when I asked for you at the desk, the clerk said,

"'You'll have to wait. He's talking to Governor Cox in Miami on the telephone'."

presented to establish that an American airforce is invaluable. I refer to General MacArthur's stalemate statement.

Dean Acheson's conclusion is:

"In other words, the best use we can make of our present advantage in retaliatory air power, is to move ahead under this protective shield to build the balanced collective forces in Western Europe that will continue to deter aggression after our atomic advantage has been diminished."

If what he calls the "protective shield" is all that has deterred Russia thus far, why does he not want to strengthen "the protective shield" but to substitute something else for it? This exercise in logic is hard to follow except that some men, having long lived with a good and faithful wife who helped to build the family fortune, discard the wife to spend her sacrifices upon some floozie. It is often done, but not with too much credit for the doer.

It is a serious matter for the country when the Secretary of State speaks so casually about the expenditure of American lives.

(Copyright, 1951, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Savers Need Help

the sacrifice is not always willing. Those who resist or deplore sacrifices they are now called on to make ought to give thought to an immense group who have been sacrificing for several years. These are the country's savers.

Year after year the savers have put their savings into life insurance, United States Savings Bonds, savings banks, pension systems and similar institutions. And year after year they have seen the value of their savings dimimish through reduction in the purchasing power of the dollar. While the savers have been thus enduring loss, they have seen labor get wage raise after wage raise and have seen farmers benefit by prices of farm crops kept artificially high by the government.

The detriment thus suffered is a cruelty to an immense number of persons, those who have saved in order to have security in their old age and now find their security impaired by reduction in the purchasing power of the dollar. To check reduction in the purchasing power of the dollar, as a part of checking inflation, is a heavy obligation upon the control agencies at Washington.

Three Officers To Get Hearings Today

The Civil Service Commission will conduct a hearing today for three officers dismissed from the Police Department for "conduct unbecoming an officer."

H. Clifford Spiker, chairman, said the public hearing is set for 7:30 p. m. in the Council chamber of City Hall.

The officers, Karl W. Frankfort, Vernon E. Browning and Lewis A. Miller filed an appeal to the commission February 24 after their dismissal.

The men, with a total of 14 months' service, were suspended indefinitely January 30 as a result of an incident at Midway Inn on McMullen Highway early in the morning of January 28.

In Japan most newspapers use carrier pigeons to bring play-by-play reports of ball games to their offices, according to Japanese scribes now in this country.

A few papers are installing telephones but most have their baseball writers release a carrier pigeon from the press box at the end of each inning.

Our College Park correspondent reports that Ernie Schramm and Dave Thomas, stars of Barton High's last W.M.I. League championship team of 1926, were sitting side by side last Saturday when Barton defeated Ocean City for the Maryland Class "C" championship.

Ernie is a resident of Cumberland.

Dave is an uncle of John Thomas, coach of the present Barton team, and is now sales engineer with the Warren Car Company of Warren, Pa. He lives at 5700 Anniston Road, Bethesda, Md., is married and has a son 10 years old.

Branch Rickey believes that a happily-married baseball player is a good player.

The other day Pittsburgh's general manager told Etan Rojek to get married, adding: "The day you get married I'll give you a $1,000 bonus."

Rojek told Rickey he would have to find out what his girl thought about the proposal.

Later, Stan said he had notified her and received some advice.

"She told me to hold out for $2,000," he declared.

asking for help in securing them employment. When I have advised some of them to go to some other city I have received an odd look or should I say that I have noted a strange expression on their faces, and I have wondered if that expression was questioning me, such as if my friend questioned my faith in the future of the community, if he as an unemployed person, sometime in want, sometimes ill or with a member of the family ill, still had faith and I was in doubt.

Mr. Editor, your newspaper and you have a moral duty to the people and the community to try and bring before us those questions relative to well being. I am not asking that you endorse any part of the text of this letter but I do ask that you present it to the public that they must digest what I have suggested and probably from the whole some little part may contribute to a better future for your children and mine.

Prices Remain Depressed In Quiet Market Session

NEW YORK, March 20 (AP) — A last-minute flurry of buying in air lines was not enough to budge a torpid stock market today, and most prices remained depressed at the close.

Trading came to only 1,020,000 shares, the smallest session since Oct. 3, 1949, when 760,000 shares changed hands. And it was 100,000 shares under yesterday's extremely quiet day.

Losses ran to a low of $2.50 a share among the leaders with gains extending to around $1.50.

Air lines same to life late and added outside gains of nearly a dollar a share. Three of the 16 most active issues were air lines.

The Associated press average of 60 stocks lost 20 cents at $93.00. The industrial component of the average advanced 10 cents, but rails lost 40 cents and utilities 20 cents.

Trading again involved a narrow list of securities, only 1,074 individual issues were on the tape. Yesterday the total came to 1,071 shares. That was the smallest in a little more than six months. Nevertheless there were nine new highs. New lows were touched by 17 issues.

Westinghouse Electric was the day's most active issue off ⅛ at 36⅞, Radio Corp. was second unchanged at 20, and American Air Lines was third up ½ at 15¾.

Some of the principal losers included Santa Fe off 2¼ at 158¾, Southern Railway ¼ at 53¾, Nickel Plate 2½ at 208, Baltimore & Ohio ¼ at 20⅜, Standard Oil (NJ) ¼ at 101¼, Bethlehem Steel ½ at 53⅝, Douglas Aircraft 1¾ at 95¼, Schenley industries ¼ at 35, American Woolen ⅝ at 40⅝, and American Telephone ⅜ at 154¾.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

A REPEATED DOUBLE

WHEN your partner has made an informatory double, asking that you take out the doubled bid into some other suit, there is no question about your duty in most situations. Some players seem not to understand a good player's meaning if his double had been taken out by an intervening bid, you had passed and he then doubles a second time. With most fine cardsmen, that second double is just as much for a takeout as the first one, so long as the doubled bid is not higher than three.

	♠ 7 6 4 ♥ K J 9 7 ♦ J 7 5 2 ♣ Q 8
♠ K J 9 ♥ 3 ♦ A K Q 10 9 ♣ K J 6 4	N W E S	♠ 8 5 2 ♥ 8 6 5 2 ♦ 6 4 3 ♣ 10 7 3

(Dealer: South. North - South vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	2 ♦	Pass	Pass
Dbl	3 ♦	Pass	Pass
Dbl	Pass	4 ♥

That neat bid by North was made at one table of a team game. He reckoned that, if his partner could take full responsibility for playing at some contract above 3-Diamonds, the cards in North's own hand were enough additional to justify a game bid. He was right, as nice play made the contract.

In the other room, the bidding was exactly the same up to the double of 3-Diamonds. In this case, North decided to pass, feeling that South's double was now optional and there was a prospect of beating the contract satisfactorily. As the play went here, West made it, losing only one trick in each suit. All of which gave his side a tremendous swing, a big factor in his team's winning of the match.

Where North soundly bid the 4-Hearts, East led the 6 of his partner's diamonds. The Q won that and the heart 3 was returned to limit ruffing. North won with the J and launched a productive cross-ruff. He trumped the diamond 5 with the heart 10 and led the club 2 toward the Q. West scored his K and, disliking other leads, returned the 4 to the Q. The diamond 7 was ruffed then by the heart Q, club A used for discarding the spade 4, club 9 ruffed by the heart K, diamond J by the heart A, the spade A scored and the spade 3 led to the 7 and heart 6. This third and last trick for the defense brought, of course, a heart return to give the 9 and 7 the last two tricks.

Six-Year-Old Boy Dies In Flood Control Ditch

Child Drowns In Eight-Foot Water Pool

Ronnie Knippenberg Falls While Playing

A six-year-old boy war drowned in an open ditch of the local flood control project on Furnace Street, while playing last evening a couple of blocks from his home. The lad fell into about eight feet of water and disappeared from the view of his playmate.

Identified as Ronald Keith Knippenberg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Knippenberg, 530 Riehl Avenue, the little victim was known in his neighborhood, school and Sunday School, as a well mannered, personable child who seldom wandered far from his home.

Last evening, after eating supper, Ronnie and his friend Bobby Detrick, eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Detrick, 539 Fairview Street, went to the flood control area to play.

Bobby said his playmate suddenly slipped on the edge of the ditch, and fell into the deep muddy water. Ronnie went down . . . came up once . . . went down again and disappeared, Bobby said. Unable to reached his friend, and unable to see him, the Detrick boy ran to his home and told his father.

Detrick went immediately to the area, while Mrs. Detrick notified police.

Several Attempts Made

At the scene, Detrick said he was unable to locate the child although he tried several times to find him in the bottom of the muddy pool.

In the meantime, Charles A. Drew, Jr., 23, of 539 Furnace Street heard the commotion. He went outside jumped into the pool and in a few minutes discovered the boy's body.

Efforts were made to revive the child by artificial respiration and the police resuscitator, but the little boy did not respond.

He was taken to Allegany Hospital, where further efforts to revive him failed.

Dr. H. V. Deming, county deputy medical examiner, said last night that death was due to drowning at about 5:55 p. m.

Police and others estimated the child had been in the water about half an hour.

Complaints Made

People in the area have complained to city officials about the delay on the job, as well as complaints of hazards to children playing in the area.

Commissioner of Streets and Public Property Lucile W. Roeder, who said last night she knew Ronnie Knippenberg personally and had him in a nursery school class at Sunday School a couple of years ago, declared the hazardous situation had been called to her attention several times.

Mrs. Roeder said she investigated the hazard in the neighborhood and asked flood control engineers and contractors to either pump out the ditch or cover it to protect children in the area.

Last night she went to the scene of the tragedy and made a personal inspection.

Neighborhood Bitter

People in the neighborhood last night were very bitter over the incident and it was indicated a delegation will go to City Council at the next meeting, on the flood control hazard question.

City Police received notification of the accident at 6:40 p. m. and rushed to the scene. Upon arrival the boy's body had been recovered and artificial respiraton was started. The boy was then put in the patrol wagon and taken to Allegany Hospital where he was admitted about 7 p. m.

Officers John G. Powers, Ernest M. Powell, C. W. Thompson and Assistant Chief B. Frank Gaffney went to the scene. East Side firemen were notified and a crew from the station went to the scene but upon arrival found police already working on the boy.

Knippenberg, a first grade pupil at Columbia Street School was born on October 19, 1944. He is survived by his parents Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Knippenberg, and he lived at the home of his grandmother Mrs. Elizabeth Wills.

Victim Of Flood Control

Shown above is the scene on East Furnace Street where Ronald Keith Knippenberg, 6, of 530 Riehl Avenue, was a victim of drowning last night at about 6 o'clock. Charles A. Drew Jr., 23, of 539 Furnace Street, is shown looking at the spot where he recovered the body of the boy. The hole, which resulted from construction work now underway on one of the phases of the Cumberland flood project, measures about 10 or 12 feet across at the point. The depth of the water in the middle of the hole is about eight feet deep.

Below is a picture of the victim. Ronald was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Knippenberg, and lived with his mother at the home of his grandmother, Mrs. Elizabeth Wills. Ronald was a first grade pupil at Columbia Street School and attended Sunday School at Centre Street Methodist Church.

Increased City Taxes Opposed By Whitworth

Against Lobbying By Prosecutor's Office

Objecting sharply to lobbying activities of the Allegany County State's Attorney's office, Delegate Horace P. Whitworth, Jr., said last night he will oppose, at a hearing set today to reconsider action on police and fire department increases, any boost in taxes in Cumberland at this time.

Delegate Whitworth said the hearing was set as a result of a visit from William H. Geppert, assistant state's attorney and attorney and spokesman for the Police and Firemen's Welfare Association, urging reconsideration of three bills providing $584 flat annual wage increases, and a boost in vacation and sick leave allowances for the departments.

Saying it was no use to talk economy unless one is willing to follow through with action, Whitworth said he is still opposed to raising taxes in Cumberland at this time.

Depends On Assessments

He said he believes the people of Cumberland would like to give every city employe a raise, but that the burden of taxation is great enough as it is.

He pointed out that the Mayor and Council may be able, if increase in property assessments brings in sufficient money, to grant the increases.

He said he objected to members of the State's Attorney's office who are paid by the people of Allegany County, spending time which belongs to the people in lobbying activities.

Whitworth also attributed to action of lobbyists the flood of telegrams from labor unions of Allegany County asking that the boosts for police and firemen be granted.

Wants To Be Consistent

He said he has had to take an economy stand in state government and saw no reason to be inconsistent in reference to Cumberland, which, because of economic conditions, cannot stand more taxes at this time.

Whitworth said the action of the Delegation in reference to the police and firemen's increases is "one more instance why home rule should be voted for Cumberland, so the people can govern their own destiny."

He said he was sure that if money is available later, the Mayor and Council will do all within their power to increase the salaries of all city employes.

Action on the Bowling Green taxing area bill is expected soon, Whitworth said.

UMW Driving To Unionize Preston County

Bullet Rips Through Caretaker's Shack

By JACK DAVIS

KINGWOOD, W. Va., March 20 (AP) — The United Mine Workers is making its most determined drive in 15 years to unionize Preston County, one of the last non-union fields in West Virginia.

Harry Myers, UMW organizer, said today the union has come into the area "because the miners asked us to." And we're staying, he added.

The UMW began distributing food to the striking miners six weeks ago —two weeks after the strike started. The union also has provided gasoline for the cars hauling the pickets.

Only about 500 of the county's nearly 3,000 miners are UMW members. Many of the non-union mines have been working on a reduced scale until pickets stopped the miners from entering the pits.

Since the fatal shooting of one picket and the wounding of two others last Saturday, feeling between the union and non-union sympathizers has become even more strained.

Last night a non-union miner serving as caretaker of a mine idle since the strike began barely escaped being hit by a "punkin-ball" bullet that ripped through his shack.

Caretaker Leaves

State Police Lt. W. E. Murphy, serving with the reinforced detachment here, said Thomas Kifer, about 65, reported he heard four shots splatter outside his shack beside the Sigley Coal Co. tipple near Tunnelton.

As he reached up to turn off the light, Kifer told officers, a slug ripped through two walls, missed him by about six inches and dug into a third wall. Kifer moved out at 7 a. m. today.

(A "punkin-ball" is a bullet packed into the end of a shotgun shell and fired from a conventional shotgun. It generally is used against big game up to about 200 yards.)

A request for a temporary injunction filed by the operators a week ago to prevent picketing still has not been acted on by Circuit Judge C. P. Wilhelm.

Decision Slated Soon

Wilhelm said today he may announce his decision Thursday or Friday.

Meanwhile, business in this county seat has dropped off considerably. The Albright National Bank of Kingwood reported its clearings last month were down 30 per cent, the lowest since 1946.

Other concerns reported similar decreases in turnover.

Most of the county's UMW sympathizers are expected to turn out in force tomorrow for the funeral of Joe Arnold, 29-year-old Kingwood coal loader, who was shot Saturday night near Clay, nearly 200 miles south of here.

State police at Clay said George Burnett Hudson, 57, in whose front yard the shooting occurred, had admitted firing the shots. He is being held in jail pending filing of a formal murder charge.

Hudson was a foreman at a non-union mine near here.

The two men wounded still were in separate hospitals.

Plan Proposed To Aid Parking At Post Office

Beall To Be Asked To Support Program

Federal legislators will be asked to support a plan to eliminate the present grass spot in front of the Cumberland post office in order to improve traffic and parking conditions on Pershing Street.

Mrs. Lucile Roeder, commissioner of streets and public property, and Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long introduced the plan sponsored by O. C. Hileman, this city, at a meeting of the Mayor and Council.

Hileman, on February 20, suggested to Commissioner Long that the sidewalk be moved back to the building line in order to improve parking at the post office and to relieve traffic on Pershing Street.

The action included a motion to contact Rep. J. Glenn Beall and other federal legislators, asking support for the plan.

Finance Commissioner William H. Buchholtz suggested that parking meters at the post office be operated on a 12 minutes for one cent basis, since that time would be sufficient for routine business at the post office.

The Hileman suggestion has already been forwarded to Postmaster Thomas F. Conlon, who referred it to the General Service Administration, Washington,

Postal officials said they suggested that an engineer be sent here to survey the situation.

Policeman Resigns

Leroy Klosterman, who has been on the City Police Force for the past 15 months, resigned yesterday to get a job out of the city.

Final Notices Sent On Delinquent Taxes

Final delinquent tax notices totaling $600 were mailed this week by the City Tax Collector.

George E. Davis, tax collector, said the notices are the last to be sent on the 1948 levy, explaining that the city must advertise and levy on the properties if the tax is not paid within four years of the date of the levy.

NEWS IN BRIEF

West Side firemen were called early yesterday afternoon to the home of Michael Kelly, 521 Beall Street, to extinguish a flue fire. No damage was reported.

The board of directors of the Junior Association of Commerce meets today at 7:30 p .m. at the office in the Liberty Trust Building.

The Capt. Robert French Bible Class of Kingsley Methodist Church will hold a business and social meeting Friday at 7:30 p. m. in the church. An Easter program will be presented.

Property Sold For $30,000

Sale of four parcels of real estate for a total of $30,000, was recorded in deeds filed with the clerk of Circuit Court.

Roger M. Combs and Audrey L. Combs sold property on Charles Street in Dressman's Addition of Election District No. 29 to Edward McCagh and Martha F. McCagh for about $12,500, according to one deed.

Guiseppe DiMatteo and Clementina DiMatteo transferred ownership to the Cumberland Realty and Storage Company of property on North Centre Street for about $6,500, their deed discloses.

William O. Shipley and Iris E. Shipley have sold property on Harold Drive in Cresaptown to James W. Tyree and Veronica I. Tyree for about $6.000. according to another deed. Bruce F. Richardson, May M. Richardson, Kirk C. Richardson and Olive J. Richardson have sold property on Fairview Avenue at Riehl Avenue to James W. Cordry and Dorothy K. Cordry for about $5,000, according to another deed.

Street Widening Plan Is Studied

The city is considering the possibility of widening portions of two streets in connection with the flood control project.

Mrs. Lucile Roeder, commissioner of streets and public property, said that department has asked Albert S. Paye, city flood control liaison engineer, to investigate the possibility of widening Wineow Street from the A. and P. market to the B. and O. subway, and South Mechanic Street from Harrison to Williams Street.

It is possible, Mrs. Roeder said, that the work may be done at considerably less expense to the city if it can be coordinated with the flood control work.

Industrial Fund Bill Is Favored

The Allegany County Delegation yesterday gave a favorable report on House Bill 606, which enables the city and county to aid in industrial promotion activities in Allegany County.

Delegate Charles M. See, chairman of the Delegation, said the bill provides legislation authorizing the City of Cumberland and the Board of Allegany County Commissioners to give $5.000 each to the Cumberland-Allegany Industrial Development Company for aid in expanding industrial development.

The Delegation is expected to act today on a Delegation sponsored bill to increase Cumberland's operating tax levy from 90 to 95 cents.

Equity Case Filed

An equity case was filed in Allegany County Circuit Court yesterday in a bill of complaint titled Anna Bell Christman vs. Franklin Bane Christman.

Woman Places 1,400 Pennies In Circulation

Apparently impressed by the recent government plea to discontinue hoarding pennies, a local woman brought a paper bag containing 1,400 copper coins to the office of Tax Collector Ernest B. Treat yesterday to purchase her new automobile license plates.

The woman was one of 38 persons who purchased new plates yesterday at Treat's office in the Court House. Total sales have reached about 7,650 there. The office will be closed all day Good Friday along with other offices at the Court House.

Used Car Lot Ordinance To Be Enforced

Strict observance of a city ordinance regulating used car lots in this city may result from action of the Mayor and Council this week.

Charles C. Sullivan, 304 Magruder Street, had asked permission to operate a used car lot at Thomas and Cresap Streets, a site he said had previously been used for the same purpose.

The application was referred to the chief of police, the fire department and the City Engineer's office.

Mayor Thomas S. Post said that provision should be made, before such a license is approved, that all terms of the city ordinance are met.

The ordinance, No. 1,799, requires that the entire surface of the lot be oiled at least once each 60 days, from April 1 to December 1 or be paved with blacktop or concrete.

Routine action of the Mayor and Council this week includes:

Permission for Charles Heavner, Wiley Ford, W. Va., to operate a parking lot at 140 Harrison Street.

Referred to the Street Department a communication from Lewis C. Soethe, 431 Greene Street, thanking the city for correcting a sewage condition and asking a settlement for expenses he incurred in trying to overcome the situation.

Tabled a recommendation of W. Earle Cobey, city attorney, that the city pay $30 for X-rays in connection with the examination of Mrs. Lillian Simons, following a fall at City Hall.

Man Acquitted In Slots Cases

PARSONS, W. Va.—Two long-pending charges against Fred L Stone, steward of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Home here, of allowing the operation of slot machines in the home, were settled yesterday when a petit jury in Tucker County Circuit Court here found him not guilty.

Stone was arrested last April by West Virginia State Police. He was charged with allowing the operation of two slot machines, one for nickels and the other for quarters.

Last June the charges against Stone were thrown out of the Tucker county court on grounds that the indictments were improperly drawn. When the cases were heard during the September term of court they resulted in a hung jury

Meeting Set Tonight At Shaft Fire Hall

Another in the series of Civil Defense meetings of area volunteer fire companies will be held tonight at 8 p. m. in the Shaft Fire Hall. Joseph G. Wenrich, Cresaptown, who has been serving as acting chairman at these weekly meetings said last night it is hoped to have representation from all volunteer fire companies along the Georges Creek section.

Wenrich added he hopes to have representatives from the fire departments of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company at Luke, and the Baltimore and Ohio Shops in Keyser, W. Va.

The program was set up some time ago by the Allegany Garrett Firt Chiefs Association in an effort to map out the immediate area and assign zones to be taken care of by area firemen in the event of attack by bombing.

William C. Barger, county director of Civil Defense is having a map prepared of the entire area. Each volunteer fire company will be given such a map. It will contain a layout of all manufacturing areas, towns etc. and the degree of importance of protection and required help in time of need. Plans are also underway to have fire departments inspect plants of which they will be concerned in time of attack. In this manner they will become acquainted with the layout including water supply and other facilities.

Kimble Supports $250 Boost For State Teachers

Sponsors $100-$200 Increases In County

ANNAPOLIS, Md., March 20 (AP)—Senate Minority Leader Kimble (R-Allegany) today backed $250 pay raises for Maryland school teachers.

His move lacked administration support. Governor McKeldin has rejected additional state aid for teachers.

Neither was Kimble able to muster solid support of the Senate's 11-man Republican bloc.

He said he would introduce a bill to provide for the raises tomorrow. He estimated the cost of approximately $4,000,000 would be met if the Legislature boosts the state income tax on corporations from four to five per cent.

Kimble sponsored a bill calling for the tax increase last week.

His decision on teachers' pay followed two caucuses of minority senators and a midnight conference with Governor McKeldin last night.

Governor Opposes Plan

The governor repeated his opposition to higher taxes for more school funds. He said before he thinks it's primarily a local problem.

After the second caucus today, Kimble said Republicans decided against any action "to commit the minority senators to any program."

Reports indicated most Republicans favored higher pay for teachers but declined to take the initiative because of the governor's attitude toward new taxes.

Kimble said he had found no takers among Democrats to whom he suggested introducing the pay-raise bill under bipartisan sponsorship.

His will be the second teacher salary measure in the legislative mill. A group of delegates last week recommended $500 raises. They sent to the House a bill drafted by school authorities with endorsement of the State Department of Education, Parent-Teacher and faculty associations.

Backs Boosts Here

Earlier today Kimble put in SB394 to instruct Allegany County commissioners to provide their teachers with $100 and $200 increases. The amount would depend on length of service. Existing county revenue sources would pay the cost.

"Until the state changes its policy and decides that it doesn't have any responsibility to render assistance to the local governments for schools, I feel I am justified in introducing the statewide bill," Kimble said.

The Senate yesterday passed and sent to the House SB192, by McLaughlin, which provides for confiscation by Washington, Allegany, Carroll, Cecil, Garrett and Howard Counties, of monies seized in gambling and lottery raids within the county.

Slot Measure Dropped

The largest crowd to sit in a Maryland legislative hall this year wrestled until early yesterday over slot machines.

The debate before more than 800 persons jammed into the House chamber was whether there will be a new bill to legalize the machines in Prince George's county.

The Prince George's delegation, after the hearing decided it would not sponsor any slot machine bill at this session.

The Senate passed and sent to the House a bill to authorize sentencing judges to set the date for hangings. The governor now issues death warrants. He still would be able to stay executions.

Senators shunted to the finance committee a bill by Minority Leader Kimble (R-Allegany) to restore the State Commission on Prevailing Wages. This group was dissolved by a recent Court of Appeals decision.

Set up by the 1950 legislature, it set minimum wage-hour standards for workers on state projects. The high court ruled the legislature had no authority to pass such legislation in an even-year session.

Ballistics Lab Expansion Plan Is Underway

Contract To Be Let On Huge Addition

A 10 to 15 percent increase in employment will take place at the Allegany Ballistics Laboratory at Pinto after completion of the new three-quarter of a million dollar production development line, O. B. Case, plant manager, said yesterday.

Four area contractors are being considered this week for the construction of a new addition expected to be completed in six months. Preliminary work should begin the first week of April Case added. The contractor will be appointed by the Bureau of Yards and Docks of the Navy Department.

Case said yesterday that employment at the Pinto plant has increased about 35 percent in the past year and the increase of 10 to 15 percent will be over and above the present employment figure.

The new line including operating buildings, magazines and a separate boiler house will be located between the present magazine area and X range. The purpose of the line is to develop efficient operational methods for producing certain explosives which have been developed at Pinto on an experimental basis.

A new construction access road will be built so that construction crews, materials and equipment will cause a minimum of interference with normal operations.

Layout plans, drawings, and specifications are being handled by plant engineer William E. Piper, his assistant Clarence Tottschall, and the plant engineer staff. This staff is being assisted by specialists from the Hercules Powder Company's Home Office including Frank McMullen on general layout, building construction, equipment, etc., Joseph Frand, machine design, Walter Applegate, steam requirements and layout, and William Mearns, electrical layout.

Judge Henderson Back From Vacation

Tanned and apparently well-rested from a three-week vacation in Florida, Associate Judge George Henderson was back at his desk in the Allegany County House yesterday.

Judge and Mrs. Henderson spent most of their vacation in the vicinity of the Naples Beach Hotel at Naples on the west coast of Florida. The jurist reports that because of high winds fishing was difficult. As a result he had no stories to report about big fish that he caught, or those that got away.
